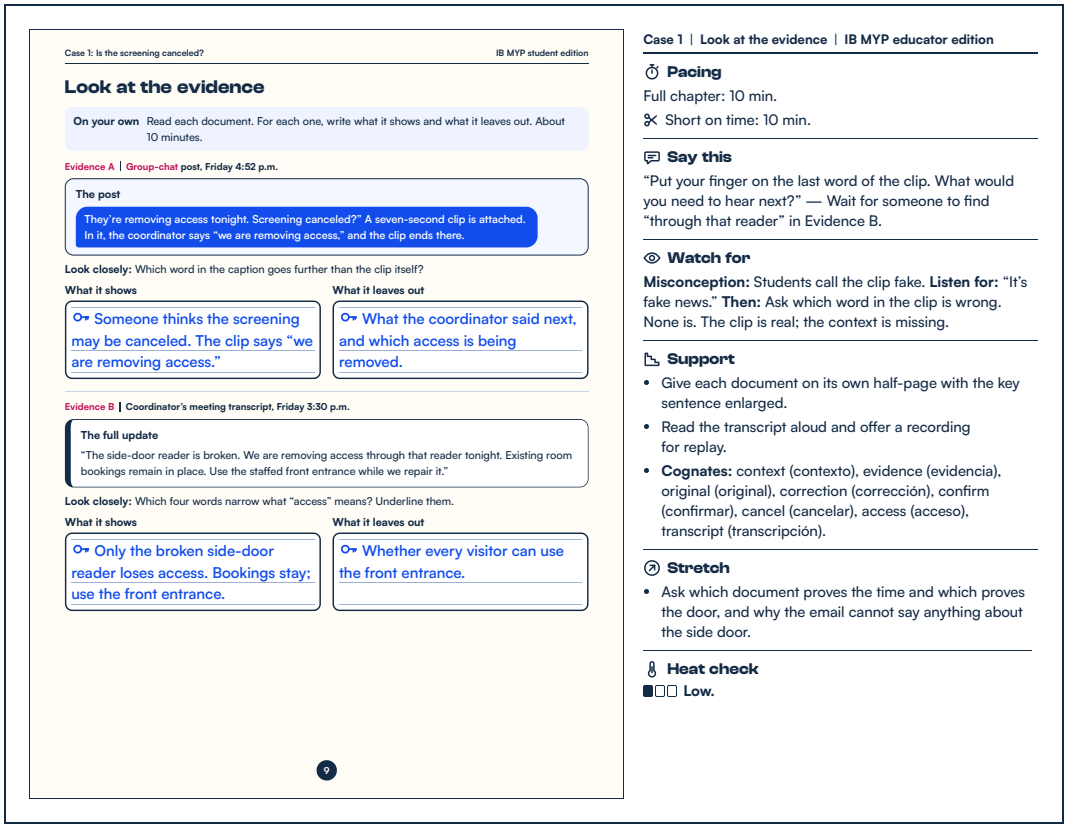
IB Middle Years Programme (MYP)

IB World Schools teaching the Middle Years Programme (students aged about 11—16), mainly in Individuals and societies and Language and literature.

20 cases



Case 1: Is the screening canceled? IB MYP student edition

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document. For each one, write what it shows and what it leaves out. About 10 minutes.

Evidence A | Group-chat post, Friday 4:52 p.m.

The post

They're removing access tonight. Screening canceled?" A seven-second clip is attached. In it, the coordinator says "we are removing access," and the clip ends there.

Look closely: Which word in the caption goes further than the clip itself?

What it shows	What it leaves out
Someone thinks the screening may be canceled. The clip says "we are removing access."	What the coordinator said next, and which access is being removed.

Evidence B | Coordinator's meeting transcript, Friday 3:30 p.m.

The full update

"The side-door reader is broken. We are removing access through that reader tonight. Existing room bookings remain in place. Use the staffed front entrance while we repair it."

Look closely: Which four words narrow what "access" means? Underline them.

What it shows	What it leaves out
Only the broken side-door reader loses access. Bookings stay; use the front entrance.	Whether every visitor can use the front entrance.

Case 1 | Look at the evidence | IB MYP educator edition

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 10 min.

Say this

"Put your finger on the last word of the clip. What would you need to hear next?" — Wait for someone to find "through that reader" in Evidence B.

Watch for

Misconception: Students call the clip fake. Listen for: "It's fake news." Then: Ask which word in the clip is wrong. None is. The clip is real; the context is missing.

Support

- Give each document on its own half-page with the key sentence enlarged.
- Read the transcript aloud and offer a recording for replay.
- Cognates: context (contexto), evidence (evidencia), original (original), correction (corrección), confirm (confirmar), cancel (cancelar), access (acceso), transcript (transcripción).

Stretch

- Ask which document proves the time and which proves the door, and why the email cannot say anything about the side door.

Heat check

■□□ Low.

1. The student page, reduced, with the same page number as in the student edition.
2. Sample answers are blue, italic and start with a key symbol.
3. The educator column names the case, the page and this edition.
4. Blocks for this page, always in the same order.

How to use this educator edition

Each sheet shows one student page on the left and notes for you on the right. Student pages keep their page numbers in this book. Each case starts with a Case plan sheet.

The educator column

Pacing Minutes for the full chapter, and what to cut when you have one period.

Say this Prompts to read aloud, with a note on how to use each one.

Stop and think On reading passage pages: the passage questions and where each one falls.

Watch for A likely misconception, what it sounds like and what to do next.

Support Scaffolds, sentence frames and English and Spanish cognates.

Stretch A harder question or extension for students who are ready.

Heat check How likely the page is to start a hard conversation, and how to cool it down.

Standards The standards the task practices, on the task page.

Answer key Answers that are not printed on the student page.

Answers

A sample answer Each answer is a complete response a strong student could write. Your students' wording will differ.

Heat check

■□□ Low: most students can discuss this without personal stakes.

■■□ Medium: the talk can turn personal. Use the cool-down.

■■■ High: plan the cool-down before class.

Plan the course

Professional standards in this edition

A code of ethics is a standard a profession sets for its own members. Codes for journalists and public relations are voluntary. The rules of professional conduct for lawyers are adopted in each state and can lead to discipline. The FTC guides are law-related guidance, not ethics codes.

SPJ Code of Ethics, Society of Professional Journalists (SPJ). Professional code.

Revised September 6, 2014, at SPJ's National Convention in Nashville, Tennessee.

Who it binds: No one is legally bound. SPJ calls the code "not a set of rules" and says it is not legally enforceable under the First Amendment. SPJ encourages its use "by all people in all media."

Seek Truth and Report It: Cases 1, 9, 18 and 20

Minimize Harm: Case 19

spj.org/spj-code-of-ethics

RTDNA Code of Ethics, Radio Television Digital News Association (RTDNA). Professional code.

Revised code adopted June 11, 2015.

Who it binds: Journalists in broadcast and digital news, as guidance. RTDNA says the code "does not dictate what journalists should do in every ethical predicament." It is not a law.

Truth and accuracy above all: Cases 1 and 20

Independence and transparency: Cases 3 and 14

Opening statement (before the guiding principles): Case 9

PRSSA Ethical Principles for PR Students & Professionals (professional values and member pledge), Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA), the student organization of PRSA. Professional code.

No date shown on the page.

Who it binds: PRSSA student members. PRSSA asks members to follow its Code of Ethics and Conduct and encourages chapters to have members sign the pledge when they join. PRSSA lists the same six professional values as PRSA and says it "models its ethics guidelines after those of its parent organization, PRSA." It does not say it adopts the PRSA Code word for word. The pledge says members who violate it may be barred from PRSA membership.

PRSSA Code of Ethics and Conduct (member pledge): Case 1

prsa.org/prssa/about-prssa/ethical-principles

CEC Ethical Principles and Practice Standards, Council for Exceptional Children (CEC). Professional code.

No adoption date shown on the page.

Who it binds: Special education professionals, who CEC says "are guided by" these principles and standards. It is not a law; IDEA and Section 504 are the laws.

Special Education Standards for Professional Practice: Teaching and Assessment: Case 2

Special Education Professional Ethical Principles: Case 2

Code of Ethics of the Education Profession, National Education Association (NEA). Professional code.

Adopted by the 1975 NEA Representative Assembly. NEA's web page, titled "Code of Ethics for Educators," was published September 14, 2020.

Who it binds: Educators, including education support professionals. NEA says the code states "the aspiration of all educators" and that only NEA and its affiliates set remedies for violations. It is not a state licensing rule or a law.

PRSA Code of Ethics, Public Relations Society of America (PRSA). Professional code.

First developed in 1950. The current code was adopted by PRSA members in October 2000, according to PRSA's Board of Ethics and Professional Standards handbook. The page shows no later revision date.

Who it binds: PRSA members. PRSA says the code "applies to PRSA members." It is voluntary: PRSA says it has no legislative or government power to enforce it, though its board can bar or expel members sanctioned by a government agency or convicted in court for conduct that breaks the code.

Credo for Ethical Communication, National Communication Association (NCA). Professional code.

Approved by the NCA Legislative Council in 1999; reaffirmed in 2011; reaffirmed with edits in 2017 and 2024.

Who it binds: NCA members, who "endorse and are committed to practicing" its nine principles. It is a statement of values with no enforcement process.

"We accept responsibility for the short- and long-term consequences of our own communication..." (one of nine unnumbered principles): Case 3

"We advocate sharing information, opinions, and feelings..." (one of nine unnumbered principles): Cases 6 and 9

"We strive to understand and respect other communicators' intent..." (one of nine unnumbered principles): Cases 7 and 16

"We advocate truthfulness, accuracy, honesty, and reason..." (one of nine unnumbered principles): Case 18

"We endorse freedom of expression, diversity of perspective, and acknowledgement of dissent..." (one of nine unnumbered principles): Case 19

ASPA Code of Ethics, American Society for Public Administration (ASPA). Professional code.

Revised 2013. ASPA has promoted ethical standards for public servants since 1984.

Who it binds: ASPA members, who "may be sanctioned" for failing to uphold it. ASPA also aims to raise awareness among "all those who work in public service in all sectors."

5. Fully Inform and Advise.: Cases 4 and 18

3. Promote democratic participation.: Cases 4, 10 and 19

4. Strengthen social equity.: Case 17

AACRAO Ethics and Practice, American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO). Professional code.

Adopted by the AACRAO Board on December 3, 2009; amended March 31, 2010; ratified by members April 23, 2010; reviewed without changes in 2016 and 2019.

Who it binds: AACRAO members, such as college registrars and admissions officers. It is not a law; FERPA is the federal law on education records.

Standards of professional practice: Case 6

Principles of professional ethics: Case 6

aacrao.org/resource/ethics-and-practice

FTC Endorsement Guides (16 CFR Part 255), Federal Trade Commission (FTC). Law or regulation.

Current text as revised July 26, 2023 (88 FR 48102), read on the eCFR.

Who it binds: Advertisers, endorsers (including influencers and reviewers) and intermediaries such as PR firms, under Section 5 of the FTC Act. The Guides are the FTC's "administrative interpretations" of that law. They are law-related guidance, not an ethics code.

§ 255.5 Disclosure of material connections: Case 8

NPPA Code of Ethics for Visual Journalists, National Press Photographers Association (NPPA). Professional code.

No revision date shown on the page.

Who it binds: Visual journalists (news photographers and video journalists) and the people who manage visual news. The code says they "are accountable for upholding" its ten standards. It is not a law.

Code of Ethics, standard 3: Case 10

nppa.org/resources/code-ethics

ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct, American Bar Association (ABA), Center for Professional Responsibility. Professional code.

Adopted by the ABA House of Delegates in 1983 and amended since.

Who it binds: Lawyers. The ABA writes the Model Rules as a model. Each state adopts its own rules of professional conduct, most based on this model, and those rules bind the lawyers it licenses. Lawyers can be disciplined for breaking them. The rules do not bind people who are not lawyers.

Rule 3.1 Meritorious Claims and Contentions: Cases 10 and 16

Rule 2.1 Advisor: Case 12

AIGA Standards of Professional Practice, AIGA, the professional association for design. Professional code.

Text read in AIGA's Design Business + Ethics (2009 edition). AIGA's current web page for the standards could not be opened.

Who it binds: AIGA members. AIGA says the standards "represent the distinction of an AIGA member in the practice of design."

The designer's responsibility to the public: Case 12

The designer's responsibility to society and the environment: Case 13

The designer's responsibility to other designers: Case 14

FTC Green Guides (16 CFR Part 260), Federal Trade Commission (FTC). Law or regulation.

October 11, 2012 (77 FR 62124), current text read on the eCFR.

Who it binds: Marketers who make environmental claims, such as calling a product "recyclable." The Guides say they "do not operate to bind the FTC or the public," but the FTC can act under Section 5 of the FTC Act against claims that are deceptive. They are law-related guidance, not an ethics code.

Access, language and discussion

Supports in this edition

- Vocabulary: Display the key concept, related concepts and global context for the unit, plus the case concepts with Spanish terms.
- Read aloud: Read sources aloud and provide recordings; for language-acquisition learners, add visuals.
- Bilingual planning: MYP classes are often multilingual: allow research and planning in the mother tongue and provide the Spanish glossary. Never ask a student to disclose a disability, immigration status, family finances or private records to take part.
- Oral rehearsal: Rehearse scripts and presentations with peers before recording.
- Other ways to respond: Accept podcasts, infographics, storyboards and presentations as the route specifies, assessed against the same criteria.

Cognates

The terms and evidence sheets list English and Spanish cognates in the Support block, such as context (contexto). Point them out before reading. A fluent Spanish reader checks every list before release.

Heat check

Every sheet rates how likely the page is to start a hard conversation.

■□□ Low: most students can discuss it without personal stakes.

■■□ Medium: use the cool-down if talk turns personal.

■■■ High: plan the cool-down before class.

No one has to share

No student needs to share private experiences, create a social media account or post publicly. Students can answer every question with the evidence on the page.

How this book works

Each case is a short chapter. The pages follow the same order in every case, so you learn the layout once.

- What happened Read the story and the question you will answer.
- Reading passage Read a longer passage about the case. Stop and think at each question.
- Key idea and In the news Read the idea behind the case, a code of ethics and two real news stories.
- Practice Choose the best response and fix two phrases in a student's draft.
- Check your work Answer yes-or-no questions and mark your level in the rubric.
- Talk about this case at home Take home a page of questions for your family.
- Key terms Learn the words the case needs, each with its Spanish word.
- Look at the evidence Read each document. Write what it shows and what it leaves out.
- Sort the evidence Decide which evidence supports each claim and whose view is missing.
- Your task Follow the numbered steps, plan in the boxes and write your draft.
- Questions to discuss Write short answers, then finish My take.

Labels on the page

Evidence A | Group-chat post
A document from the case. Read it closely and compare it with the other documents.

Real source | Publisher | Date
A real news story, code or study. Scan its code to read the original.

Directions on each page

On your own A short direction under a heading tells you what to do if you work without a teacher, and about how long it takes.

When a page continues

Filling in this book

- Fill it in on paper or in a PDF app. Save a copy before you type.
- What you type stays on your device. Nothing is sent to us.
- Do not write private information about yourself or other people.

Say this

"Every case in this book follows the same order, so you learn the layout once." — Point to the list of sections as you say it.

"An "Evidence" label marks a document from the case. A "Real source" label names its publisher and date." — Ask two students to find one of each in Case 1.

Watch for

Misconception: Every document in a chapter comes from the news. Listen for: "Where was this group chat published?" Then: Point to the labels. Evidence documents belong to the case; a real source always names its publisher and date.

Support

- Read the page aloud with the class.
- Show the "On your own" strip on one case page before students work alone.
- Repeat the rule: do not write private information about yourself or other people.

Say this

"Find the case we are starting and write its first page number in your notes." — Page numbers match the educator edition, so you can call out pages.

Watch for

Misconception: The class must do every case in order. Listen for: "Do we have to start at Case 1?" Then: Tell students which cases the class will use and in what order.

Support

- Mark the cases your class will use before you copy the page.

Case 1: Is the screening canceled?

Content note

The optional film clip from The Hunger Games (2012) shows coercion and danger to young people. Preview it before class, or skip it, because students need only the evidence in the story.

Overview

Students read a short story about a neighborhood screening. A cropped seven-second clip in the crew's group chat seems to say the event is canceled. Students compare the post with two documents, the coordinator's meeting transcript and a booking email, and decide what the evidence supports. They then write a short group-chat update that corrects the claim and says which entrance to use.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- tell an observation from an inference
- judge whether a source is reliable from who made it and when
- write short instructions for a younger reader

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- write a statement of inquiry that links communication, context and a global context

Objectives, continued

- evaluate a clip, a transcript and an email for reliability
- write a three-step checking routine a younger student can follow
- connect the case to one other context in a short reflection

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Evidence A, B and C
- The guide template: a title and three numbered steps
- Your school's MYP year-level descriptors for the criteria you assess

The task in this edition

Task: Develop a statement of inquiry (e.g., "Communities decide what is true through the sources they choose to trust") and a media-literacy guide for younger students using this case.

Students make: One-page guide plus 150-word reflection on the statement of inquiry

Case 1: Is the screening canceled?

A cropped clip in the group chat seems to cancel the crew's screening, so you check the original documents and write an update.

On your own Read What happened. Underline the sentence that worries the crew. About 6 minutes.

Your role: You're the one who reads the full transcript before Gia posts. New skill: Find the original source.

Gia and Mateo read the message about tonight's screening.

What happened

It is Friday afternoon at the Common Room, a shared event space inside a bookshop in Fort Greene, Brooklyn. Mateo, 22, booked the room for tonight's 6 p.m. screening, the crew's first in the neighborhood. He has been moving tables and chairs all afternoon.

Gia, 21, is helping between her class and her shift at a café. Jordy is testing the projector and captions. Sami is on her way from the print shop.

At 4:52 p.m., someone forwards a seven-second clip to the group chat. The clip comes from a meeting about the room. Its caption asks whether the screening is canceled.

Gia wants to warn people before they leave home. Mateo hopes the post is wrong. Gia has about ten minutes before she has to leave for work.

Your question: Is the screening really canceled, and what should the crew tell people?

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Read What happened aloud. Skip the opening question.

Say this

"What would you do if this landed in your chat right now?" — Take two or three answers. Do not correct anyone yet.

Watch for

Misconception: Students decide from the caption alone. Listen for: "It's canceled, obviously." Then: Ask which document would prove it. Write "We need to check" on the board.

Support

- Read What happened aloud while students follow along.
- Point to the time on the post, 4:52 p.m., and the screening time, 6 p.m.

Heat check

In this case: The caption "Screening canceled?" is a claim. It ends with a question mark, and no document confirms it.

Context Context is the information around an event or a quote that you need to understand what it means.

En español: contexto

In this case: The full transcript adds the words "through that reader tonight." Those words show that only the broken side door is closing.

Framing Framing is choosing which parts of a situation a message brings forward.

Watch for

Misconception: Students hear "claim" as "lie." Listen for: "The claim is fake." Then: Reread the definition. A claim can turn out to be true or false; evidence decides.

Support

- Pair students who share a language to explain each term in their own words.
- Frame: "A claim is ___. In this case, the claim is ___."

The story: Ten minutes before Gia's shift

On Friday afternoon, the Common Room smells like coffee and cardboard. The shared event space sits inside a bookshop in Fort Greene, Brooklyn, and tonight it belongs to the crew. Mateo booked it for a 6 p.m. screening, their first in the neighborhood, and he has been dragging folding chairs into rows since lunch. Jordy is running a caption test on the projector. Gia is squeezing in an hour of help between class and a café shift. Sami is on the train from the print shop.

At 4:52 p.m., the group chat lights up. Someone has forwarded a seven-second clip from a meeting about the room. The coordinator says, "we are removing access," and the video ends. The caption reads, "They're removing access tonight. Screening canceled?"

The pressure arrives at once. Gia sees people asking whether to turn around, and she wants to protect them from a wasted trip. Mateo admits he wants the clip to be fake. Jordy, who spends a lot of time with edited video, notices that the clip stops in the middle of a sentence. Before anyone answers, Jordy asks for the rest of the recording.

In this case, you are the person who reads the full transcript before Gia posts. That is a small job with large effects, because every guest who sees the chat will act on what the crew says next.

Stop and think. Gia and Mateo both have reasons to want a quick answer. How could each reason push the crew toward a mistake?

Pacing

Reading: about 6 min (658 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: Ten minutes before Gia's shift": Gia and Mateo both have reasons to want a quick answer. How could each reason push the crew toward a mistake?
2. After "Three possible replies, one set of facts": Why is "The post is fake" a weaker reply than a holding statement, even though the screening is on?
3. After "Framing in the real world": Where have you seen a cropped clip or screenshot change what people thought happened?

Three possible replies, one set of facts

The caption makes a claim, a statement that something is true. You can check a claim with evidence. The coordinator's meeting transcript from 3:30 p.m. is the original source. It says the side-door reader is broken and that access is being removed "through that reader tonight." It adds that existing room bookings remain in place and that people should use the staffed front entrance. Mateo's booking email, sent Tuesday, confirms the event for 6 to 9 p.m. It lists a step-free front entrance with staff at the desk from 5:30.

Context is the information around an event or a quote that you need to understand what it means. With context, the clip means something narrow: one door is closed. Without it, the clip seems to cancel the whole night.

Consider the three replies the crew could send. "Cancel your plans" spreads the rumor before anyone checks. "The post is fake" goes too far, because the clip is real. The problem is what it leaves out. The strongest first move is a holding statement, a short update that says what is known, what is still being checked and when people will hear more. Jordy posts one: "We're checking the original. Hold your plans for a moment." Then Gia corrects the claim in the same chat where it started. She gives the time and the front entrance, which Sami needs because she usually comes in the side way.

> Stop and think. Why is "The post is fake" a weaker reply than a holding statement, even though the screening is on?

Framing in the real world

Media researcher Robert Entman described framing as a process of selection and emphasis (Robert M. Entman, "Framing," 1993). Framing is choosing which parts of a situation a message brings forward. A crop is one of the simplest frames. It keeps "removing access" and drops "through that reader." You do not need to prove intent to point out a frame. You only need to show what the edit leaves out.

Real fact-checkers see the same pattern with screenshots. PolitiFact examined an image that looked like a story from The Atlantic about President Biden. It looked official, but the outlet never published it (PolitiFact, August 1, 2022). PBS NewsHour Classroom teaches students to treat a screenshot as a claim, not proof, and to trace it back to the original post (PBS NewsHour Classroom, November 17, 2022).

Professional codes say the same thing. The Society of Professional Journalists tells reporters to "verify information before releasing it" and to "use original sources whenever possible" (SPJ Code of Ethics, September 6, 2014). The crew's version of that rule is small and concrete: find the full transcript, then post. Every later case in this series builds on that first skill.

Notes

This page continues page 6. The notes for both pages are on the sheet for page 6.

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document. For each one, write what it shows and what it leaves out. About 10 minutes.

Evidence A | Group-chat post, Friday 4:52 p.m.

The post

They're removing access tonight. Screening canceled?" A seven-second clip is attached. In it, the coordinator says "we are removing access," and the clip ends there.

Look closely: Which word in the caption goes further than the clip itself?

What it shows

Someone thinks the screening may be canceled. The clip says "we are removing access."

What it leaves out

What the coordinator said next, and which access is being removed.

Evidence B | Coordinator's meeting transcript, Friday 3:30 p.m.

The full update

"The side-door reader is broken. We are removing access through that reader tonight. Existing room bookings remain in place. Use the staffed front entrance while we repair it."

Look closely: Which four words narrow what "access" means? Underline them.

What it shows

Only the broken side-door reader loses access. Bookings stay; use the front entrance.

What it leaves out

Whether every visitor can use the front entrance.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 10 min.

Say this

"Put your finger on the last word of the clip. What would you need to hear next?" — Wait for someone to find "through that reader" in Evidence B.

Watch for

Misconception: Students call the clip fake. Listen for: "It's fake news." Then: Ask which word in the clip is wrong. None is. The clip is real; the context is missing.

Support

- Give each document on its own half-page with the key sentence enlarged.
- Read the transcript aloud and offer a recording for replay.
- Cognates: context (contexto), evidence (evidencia), original (original), correction (corrección), confirm (confirmar), cancel (cancelar), access (acceso), transcript (transcripción).

Stretch

- Ask which document proves the time and which proves the door, and why the email cannot say anything about the side door.

Evidence C | Booking email to Mateo, sent Tuesday

The booking email

Friday, 6—9 p.m. Screening confirmed. Front entrance: step-free. Staff member at the desk from 5:30 p.m. Contact the coordinator for arrival support.

Look closely: What does this confirm? What does it not say about the side door?

What it shows

The screening is on Friday, 6—9 p.m. The front entrance is step-free and staffed.

What it leaves out

Anything about the side door. It was sent on Tuesday, before the Friday meeting.

What is still missing from the evidence?

Whether every visitor can use the staffed front entrance (the email says step-free, not that every arrival need is covered), who first cropped the clip and why, and how many people already changed their plans.

Key idea: framing

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

The clip in the group chat is real, but that only tells you the video is authentic. A claim is a statement that something is true. You can check a claim with evidence. Context is the information around an event or a quote that you need to understand what it means. Here, the clip stops before the rest of the coordinator's sentence, so the clip alone cannot confirm the caption's claim.

Framing is choosing which parts of a situation a message brings forward. Media researcher Robert Entman uses this idea to study what messages select and emphasize. The crop makes "removing access" stand out and hides "through that reader," the words that limit the change to one broken side door. You do not have to prove that anyone meant to mislead people. You only need to show what the edit leaves out.

A holding statement is a short update that says what is known, what is still being checked and when people will hear more. It gives people a next step while the crew checks the documents. The correction that follows needs the time, the door and a contact for arrival help. People who are already traveling need those details before they arrive.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the SPJ code as a law. Listen for: "They could get arrested for that." Then: Say: "A code of ethics is a standard a profession sets for its own members. The SPJ code is not a law."

Heat check

Medium. The missing-perspective question can turn to disability access.

Cool-down: Keep it about the characters. No student speaks for a group. Return to what the booking email says about arrival support.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose the message you would send and explain why. Then fix the two marked lines. About 8 minutes.

The post arrived a few minutes ago, and nobody has checked the original yet. What do you send to the group chat?

- ☐ A Cancel your plans before you travel.
- ☑ B We're checking the original. Hold your plans for a moment.
- ☐ C The post is fake. Ignore it.

Why I chose it

B. It names the uncertainty without repeating the claim as fact. A could make people change plans too early. C goes further than the evidence, because the clip is real.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Hey everyone, so there was a clip going around that said the screening was canceled but (1) that is NOT true lol. Someone didn't watch the whole thing and posted it anyway which is kind of annoying. I checked with Mateo and he said the booking is still good. They are just removing access through one door so everything is fine and (2) you can come like normal. The event is still happening Friday. Bring snacks if you want, Jordy is doing the projector. See you there!! Also if you have questions ask Mateo.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

The clip is real, but it stops before the coordinator says which access.

Rewrite phrase 2

Please use the staffed, step-free front entrance. The side door is closed.

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: skip this page.

Say this

"Nobody has checked the original yet. Which message do you send?" — Vote first.

Watch for

Misconception: Students choose "The post is fake." Listen for: "Just ignore it." Then: Ask for a false word in the clip. There is none.

Heat check

■■□ Medium. Students may guess why the clip was posted.

Cool-down: Say the documents do not show why. Go back to the options.

Answer key

A revised version: Update on Friday's screening: it is still on, 6—9 p.m. The clip going around cut off mid-sentence. The full update from the coordinator says the side-door card reader is broken, so that door is closed tonight, but existing bookings are still in place. Please use the staffed front entrance, which is step-free. Staff will be at the desk from 5:30. I checked the coordinator's transcript and Mateo's booking email. If you need help arriving, message the coordinator before you leave. Thanks for waiting while we checked. Jordy is still confirming arrival support with the coordinator.

Other notes on the draft:

- "Someone didn't watch the whole thing and posted it anyway" This guesses at the poster's motive. The sources don't tell us what they knew.

Your task

On your own Read the steps. Fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 15 minutes.

Develop a statement of inquiry (e.g., "Communities decide what is true through the sources they choose to trust") and a media-literacy guide for younger students using this case.

Use: All three documents; global context: Scientific and technical innovation (how digital tools change information).

You'll make: One-page guide plus 150-word reflection on the statement of inquiry

Time: 100 minutes

1. Write a statement of inquiry that uses communication, context and one global context.
2. Rate Evidence A, B and C for reliability. Give one reason for each.
3. Write three steps a younger student can follow before sharing a clip.
4. Put the steps on a one-page guide with a title.
5. Write a reflection of about 150 words that connects the case to another context.
6. Check your guide and reflection with the questions on the Check your work page.

- Statement of inquiry links key concept, related concept and global context
- Guide steps are accurate and usable
- Evaluates at least two sources for reliability
- Reflection connects the case to another context

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes. Use your planner from the page before. About 30 minutes.

Guide title

Before you share a clip

Step 1

Find the original. Ask who posted the clip, and look for the full video or the notes from the meeting.

Step 2

Read what comes next. Check the words right after the clip ends. In this case, they were “through that reader tonight.”

Step 3

Share what you know and what you are still checking. Say when you will post again.

Reflection, about 150 words

Our statement of inquiry says that how a message is cut and captioned changes what a community believes. The Common Room case shows how. A seven-second clip ended one sentence early, and the caption turned a broken side door into a canceled screening. The same kind of mistake could happen with a school closing. If someone shared only part of an announcement, students might stay home when only one entrance was closed. That is why my guide starts with finding

This page continues page 19.

🔑 Answer key

How to assess: The educator judges the guide with Language and literature criterion C and the source evaluation with Individuals and societies criterion B, using the school’s own year-level descriptors.

Proficient looks like:

- Evidence: Uses the transcript or email to correct the claim accurately.
- Reasoning: Explains the difference between an entrance change and a cancellation.
- Audience & purpose: Gives time, entrance and a contact.
- Revision: Adds a missing fact or removes an unsupported claim.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then finish My take. About 10 minutes.

1 The clip is real. How did it lead people to the wrong conclusion?

The crop ended at “we are removing access,” one sentence before “through that reader.” The caption filled the gap with the biggest meaning.

2 Should the crew say why they think the clip was posted? Why or why not?

No. Nothing in the sources shows what the poster knew. A guess about motive weakens the correction and can start a new argument.

3 Jordy’s holding message does not repeat the word “canceled.” Why might that matter?

Some people read only one word. If the holding message says “canceled,” they might take it as the answer.

My take

My claim: ___.

The crew should post a holding message, then a correction with the time, the entrance and the source.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The transcript, because it has the words the clip cut off: “through that reader.”

Pacing

Say this

“Answer with a detail from a document, not a feeling about the poster.” — Post the question numbers and call on one student per question.

Stretch

- Map how the rumor would travel through three different chats and who would miss the correction.
- Going further: Ask who has already changed plans because of the post, and how the crew can reach them. Then write two truthful captions for the correction. What does each one make a reader notice first?
- Going further: Trace the clip back to the full meeting transcript. When you share the clip, keep the sentence before it and the words that come right after it.
- Going further: Make a 20-second correction video with readable captions and a link to the source.
- Going further: Ask a teacher or someone in the front office which channel carries official changes, such as email, an app or the school website. Save that channel so you can check it before you repost a screenshot.
- Write a one-paragraph policy for how the Common Room posts urgent updates

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

A fast warning protects people who are already traveling.

I would change my mind if ___.

The coordinator said the room itself was closing.

Case 2: Does the worksheet show what Dec knows?

Content note

This case discusses disability, evaluations and support plans. No student should share their own grades, diagnosis or support plan, so keep the discussion on Dec's situation.

Overview

Students read about Dec, a high school senior who explains a circuit well out loud but loses his place on a dense practice sheet. They sort the evidence into what is observed, what might explain it and what is not established, using a summary of the IDEA evaluation rule. They then redesign the practice sheet or draft a support request that Dec could approve.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write a focused research question
- represent a point of view they do not hold
- write dialogue for two speakers

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- investigate how assessment design shapes what a school learns about a student
- use IDEA vocabulary accurately
- present a teacher's perspective and a student's perspective fairly
- reflect on the global context of identities and relationships

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Evidence A and B
- One article on assessment design that you provide
- The script template with host and guest parts. Recording is optional.

Case 2: Does the worksheet show what Dec knows?

Dec can explain a circuit out loud but gets lost on a crowded worksheet, so the crew asks what the task measures.

On your own Read What happened. Underline what Dec can do out loud and where he gets stuck. About 6 minutes.

Your role: You're the one who reads the goal line before anyone decides what Dec knows. New skill: Check what a task is meant to measure.

Dec points to a small light circuit on the table while Anika watches.

What happened

Anika, 16, and Dec, 17, are at the study table twenty minutes before theater rehearsal. They are building a light circuit for a school set. Dec can explain out loud how the current travels through the circuit. On the written practice sheet, he loses his place in the instructions.

The sheet has six dense paragraphs and one small diagram. Anika's first idea is to run the same timed practice sheet again. Then she draws a larger sketch, and Dec traces the whole circuit correctly.

Mari, 19, is on her break from the bookshop. She does not assume she knows why Dec is stuck. Dec wants help with this task, but he does not want a diagnosis from the group chat.

Your question: Does the practice sheet show what Dec knows, and what should Dec ask his teacher?

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Evaluation An evaluation is a school's formal process for learning about a student's needs, using more than one measure.

- Evaluation: An evaluation is a school's formal process for learning about a student's needs, using more than one measure.
- Eligibility: Eligibility is meeting the requirements for a particular service or program.
- Context: Context is the information around an event or a quote that you need to understand what it means.

The story: A cue sheet with no numbers

The study table is covered in wire, a battery pack and a drawing that is getting bigger by the minute. Anika, 16, and Dec, 17, are building a light circuit for a school set, and rehearsal starts in twenty minutes. Dec can trace the current out loud without a pause: battery, switch, LED and back. On the written practice sheet, he gets halfway through a question and loses his place. The sheet has six dense paragraphs and one small diagram. “It’s like a cue sheet with no numbers,” he says.

Anika’s first instinct is repetition. She suggests running the same timed practice sheet again. Later she admits she kept pointing at the page and saying “it’s right there” without ever looking at how the question was written. When she sketches the circuit larger, Dec traces the whole path correctly. Mari, 19, is on her break from the bookshop. She switches between print and audio in her own reading, and she does not assume she knows why Dec is stuck. She asks him to walk her through it first.

Dec is clear about one boundary. He wants help with this task, but he does not want his friends to diagnose him. Before anyone tells his teacher, Ms. R, what he needs, they have to ask him.

Stop and think. Anika’s first idea was to repeat the timed sheet. What would a second try on the same sheet show, and what would it miss?

Reading the goal line

In Case 1, you found the original source before trusting a cropped clip. The original source here is the practice brief. Its goal line reads: “Explain how a simple circuit works.” The brief lists no time limit.

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (589 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After “The story: A cue sheet with no numbers”: Anika’s first idea was to repeat the timed sheet. What would a second try on the same sheet show, and what would it miss?
2. After “Reading the goal line”: How would you know that a new format shows Dec’s learning more clearly instead of giving away the answer?
3. After “Where the crew’s power ends”: Why does a study session fall outside the IDEA evaluation rule?

A learning goal is the knowledge or skill that a task is meant to show. Once you know the goal, you can ask a sharper question. Is the sheet measuring circuit understanding, reading speed or both? Dec's study-table notes answer part of it. Out loud, with the larger sketch, he traced the whole circuit correctly. On paper, he skipped a line in the instructions and answered a different question from the one asked.

Case 1 also gave you the word context, the information around an event or a quote that you need to understand what it means. A single written answer is a little like a cropped clip. It is real, but it leaves out the spoken explanation that shows what Dec knows.

Stop and think. How would you know that a new format shows Dec's learning more clearly instead of giving away the answer?

Where the crew's power ends

The crew can change a practice plan. It cannot decide what support Dec qualifies for. An evaluation is a school's formal process for learning about a student's needs, using more than one measure. Eligibility is meeting the requirements for a particular service or program. Under IDEA, a federal law, a public school must use varied tools in an evaluation, and no single measure can be the only basis for deciding eligibility (U.S. Department of Education, IDEA regulations, 34 CFR 300.304). Special educators hold themselves to a similar standard. The Council for Exceptional Children asks them to use assessments that "accurately measure what is intended to be measured" (CEC Ethical Principles and Practice Standards, no date listed).

Federal guidance on testing makes the same point from another side. Tests should measure a person's skill, not their disability (ADA.gov, U.S. Department of Justice, February 28, 2020). Reporters are still asking whether common supports, such as extended time, help students show what they know (Education Week, October 13, 2025).

So the crew does what it can. Dec tries the clearer diagram and explains his reasoning again. Anika changes the study plan. Dec decides for himself whether to ask Ms. R about more support. Your role is to read the goal line before anyone decides what Dec knows.

Stop and think. Why does a study session fall outside the IDEA evaluation rule?

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document. For each one, write what it shows and what it leaves out. About 12 minutes.

Evidence A | Practice brief, handed out Monday

The assignment

Goal: Explain how a simple circuit works. Read the six paragraphs below before you answer. Use the diagram to trace the path of the current from the battery through the switch and the LED and back. Answer questions 1—4 in complete sentences.

Look closely: Which skill does the goal line name, and which does it leave out?

What it shows	What it leaves out
The goal is explaining a circuit. The page has six dense paragraphs and a small diagram.	How the sheet is scored, and what the six paragraphs are meant to test.

Evidence B | Study-table notes, Wednesday 3:40 p.m.

Dec's explanation

Out loud, with the larger sketch: traced the whole path, battery to switch to LED and back. Correct. Written sheet: skipped a line in the instructions and answered a different question from the one asked. Dec: the layout is hard to follow.

Look closely: What did Dec get right out loud that the sheet did not record?

What it shows	What it leaves out
Out loud, Dec traced the circuit correctly. On paper, he skipped a line.	Why the layout is hard for him, and whether he wants formal support.

Pacing

Watch for

Misconception: Students read the notes as proof of a disability. Listen for: "So he has a learning disability." Then: Ask what the notes record: two observations and Dec's own words. They do not record a cause.

Support

- Give Evidence A with the goal line enlarged and the paragraphs numbered.
- Read Evidence B aloud.
- Cognates: evaluation (evaluación), eligibility (elegibilidad), circuit (circuito), diagram (diagrama), observation (observación), format (formato), instructions (instrucciones), diagnosis (diagnóstico).

Heat check

■□□ Low.

What is still missing from the evidence?

Whether Dec wants formal support at all, how the sheet is scored, whether other students lose their place in the same layout, and what the teacher meant the six paragraphs to test.

Notes

This page continues page 30. The notes for both pages are on the sheet for page 30.

Key idea: learning goals

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics. Then answer the question in the box. About 12 minutes.

Dec's written answer and his spoken explanation give the crew different information. A learning goal is the knowledge or skill that a task is meant to show. The practice brief names one goal: explain how a simple circuit works. It does not list speed, and it does not list reading six dense paragraphs. So the next question is what the sheet was meant to measure and what got in the way.

CAST's Universal Design for Learning Guidelines encourage giving learners more than one way to take in information and show what they know. For Dec, a larger diagram is a practice option to test. It is not a diagnosis, and it does not change an official test. Ask Dec what helped, and check that he can still explain the circuit.

An evaluation is a school's formal process for learning about a student's needs, using more than one measure. Under IDEA, a federal law, a public school must use varied tools in an evaluation. No single measure can be the only basis for deciding eligibility. Eligibility is meeting the requirements for a particular service or program. A study session is not an evaluation, so Dec decides whether to ask his school how that process starts.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what the crew should try and explain why. Then fix the two marked lines. About 8 minutes.

What should the crew try at the study table?

- [ ] A Run the same timed sheet again so Dec gets more practice.
- [x] B Let Dec explain with a larger diagram, then compare his reasoning with the sheet.
- [ ] C Tell Dec he probably needs an IEP.

Why I chose it

B. It keeps the circuit goal and gathers a second observation. A does not test the layout problem Dec described, and C decides something only a school evaluation can decide.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Hi Ms. R, Dec failed the circuit sheet again and we think the test is unfair to him. He obviously knows the material because he explained it to us perfectly. At the study table he went through the whole thing out loud with no mistakes. (1) We think he might have a learning disability and should get an IEP so he can get extra time. My cousin has one and it helped her a lot. (2) Can you give him an easier version? We really think this would help him pass. Thanks, Anika and Mari.

Medium. Option C can prompt stories about classmates' IEPs.

Cool-down: Say that no student's plan is discussed here. Ask what the evidence shows about Dec, then go back to the options.

Answer key

A revised version: Hi Ms. R, I'm working on the circuit practice sheet. The goal says we should explain how a simple circuit works. When I talked it through with a larger diagram, I could trace the whole route. On the written sheet, I lost my place in the paragraphs and answered a different question. Could we talk about how the sheet checks the goal and what support options might help me show my reasoning? I can bring both attempts. Anika and Mari helped me write this, and I asked them to. Thanks, Dec

Your task

On your own Read the steps. Fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 15 minutes.

Investigate the question "How do schools decide what a student knows?" and produce a short podcast script with a peer.

Use: Case evidence plus one teacher-provided article on assessment design; global context: Identities and relationships.

You'll make: Podcast script, 3—4 minutes, plus source list

Time: 100 minutes

1. Copy the research question into the planner and underline its key words.
2. Plan two perspectives: a teacher balancing a class and a student like Dec.
3. Find one point from the article and one from the case for each perspective.
4. Write the script's opening and first exchange on the Your draft page.
5. Finish a script of three to four minutes with your partner, and list your sources.
6. Check your script with the questions on the Check your work page.

Our research question

How do schools decide what a student knows?

Pacing

Full chapter: 15 min.

Short on time: 15 min.

Say this

"A good podcast lets both guests make their best case. What is the teacher's best case for one sheet for everyone?" — Write the teacher's reasons on the board before students plan.

Watch for

Misconception: The teacher becomes a villain in the script. Listen for: "The teacher doesn't care." Then: Ask for the teacher's real constraint: a full class, one sheet and limited time.

Support

- Statement of inquiry frame
- Script template with host and guest parts
- Option to record rather than write
- Script frame: HOST asks. GUEST answers with one fact from the case or the article.

Stretch

- Include at least two perspectives: a teacher balancing a class, and a student like Dec.

Standards

IB MYP: Individuals and Societies A: Knowing and understanding; Individuals and Societies D: Thinking critically; Language and Literature B: Organizing.

C3 Framework: D2.Civ.13.9-12; D4.7.9-12.

The Case plan sheet gives each code in plain words.

The teacher's perspective

One sheet for a whole class is quick to hand out and score.

The student's perspective

Dec can explain the circuit aloud but loses his place on paper.

IDEA words we will use, and what they mean

Evaluation: a formal school process. Eligibility: meeting the requirements for a service.

Notes

Answer key

A strong response:

- Research question is clear and focused
- Uses accurate IDEA vocabulary
- Represents two perspectives fairly
- Reflects on the global context

Script opening and first exchange

HOST:

HOST: How do schools decide what a student knows? Today we're looking at one practice sheet about circuits. GUEST: The sheet's goal is to explain how a simple circuit works. A student named Dec traced the whole circuit out loud. On paper, he answered a different question. HOST: So which result shows what he knows? GUEST: Both show something. The spoken answer shows he understands the circuit. The written answer shows he skipped a line in the instructions. HOST: What would a teacher with a full class say? GUEST: That one sheet for everyone is easier to hand out and score. That matters too.

Source list

Pacing

Full chapter: 30 min.

Short on time: 30 min.

Say this

"Read your script aloud with your partner. Does each speaker sound like one person?" — Time one exchange to check the three-to-four-minute length.

Watch for

Misconception: The script shares personal stories about support plans. Listen for: "My friend has an IEP and..." Then: Keep the script about Dec and the sheet. Restate the no-disclosure norm.

Answer key

What to notice in the sample:

1. Treats the evidence fairly instead of picking a side too early.
2. Brings in the second perspective the task requires.

Check your work

On your own Answer the Check your work questions and mark your level in each rubric row. Then write one change you made. About 10 minutes.

Is your research question clear and focused?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Do you use IDEA vocabulary accurately?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Do you present the teacher's and the student's perspectives fairly?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Does your script reflect on identities and relationships?	☑ Yes	☐ No

How your work is scored

Mark one box in each row.

Skill	Beginning	Developing	Proficient	Advanced
Evidence	☐ Mentions only the score.	☐ Describes Dec's explanation vaguely.	☐ Cites the goal and two specific observations.	☐ Uses observations and notes what they cannot show.
Reasoning	☐ Concludes Dec has a disability or the test is illegal.	☐ Suggests easier content without linking to the goal.	☐ Connects a possible format barrier to the learning goal.	☐ Distinguishes classroom support from IDEA evaluation accurately.
Audience & purpose	☐ Message speaks for Dec without his input.	☐ Mentions Dec but ignores his voice.	☐ Written in Dec's voice with his permission.	☐ Respects Dec's control and gives the teacher a clear next step.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then finish My take. About 10 minutes.

1 Is the practice sheet checking circuit understanding, reading speed or both?

The goal line names only circuit understanding, and no time limit is listed. But six dense paragraphs mean the sheet also checks reading, so a wrong answer can come from either.

2 How would you know a new format shows Dec's learning more clearly instead of giving away the answer?

Check that the new sheet still asks Dec to explain the path of the current in his own words. A bigger diagram shows the circuit, but it does not explain it for him.

3 What does the IDEA evaluation rule cover, and why does a study session fall outside it?

It covers formal evaluations by a public school, which must use varied tools. A study session is friends practicing, not a school evaluation.

My take

My claim: ___.

The sheet may be measuring reading as much as circuit knowledge.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The study-table notes, because Dec traced the circuit out loud but went off track on paper.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 9 min. Skip question 2.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from the brief or the notes, not a story about someone you know." — Post the question numbers and call on one student per question.

Stretch

- Design a universal design version of a real quiz from another class. Keep its learning goal the same.
- Going further: Write down your first guess about why Dec got stuck. Then compare the two observations in the evidence, and write what changed your mind.
- Going further: Design two practice sheets that keep the same learning goal: explaining how a simple circuit works. Ask a classmate which one makes the goal easier to show.
- Going further: Find the IDEA evaluation rule in its federal source, 34 CFR § 300.304. Quote the part about using more than one measure, and name where it comes from.
- Going further: Find your school's handbook or web page on learning support. Write one question you want answered, without naming a classmate. Then ask a counselor how students or parents start a request.
- Research how your state describes the timeline for an initial evaluation after a parent consents
- Design a UDL version of a real quiz from another class

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

Dec just needs more practice with the same timed sheet.

I would change my mind if ___.

Dec could not explain the circuit out loud either.

Content note

The recap caption blames younger attendees for a late start. Keep the discussion on the event in the story, and do not ask students to describe times they were blamed or stereotyped.

Overview

Students read a short story in which the crew's recap caption blames "the younger crowd" for a late start. They build a timeline from Jordy's setup log, which shows that a projector failure caused the delay, and compare it with Gia's first apology draft. They then write a correction that names the error and a repair step with an owner and a way to check it.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write a statement that links two ideas
- turn a general idea into a specific, testable step
- use evidence from a case to justify a choice

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- write a statement of inquiry that connects fairness to communication
- write checklist items that are specific and testable

Objectives, continued

- justify the checklist with evidence from the case
- test the checklist on a second post

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Evidence A, B, C and D
- A corrections checklist from a school newspaper, if you have one
- Your school's MYP year-level descriptors for the criteria you assess

The task in this edition

Task: Create a statement of inquiry on fairness and representation and a corrections checklist for a student club.

Try it at your school

Help a club you're in write a corrections rule.

- Ask the editor or advisor of a school newsletter, club account or yearbook how they fix mistakes
- Suggest a three-step checklist: name the error, show the evidence, say what changes
- Offer to test it on an old post together

- Keep any real examples anonymous

Who to ask: School newspaper or yearbook advisor, club advisor, student council secretary

Safety: Don't repost someone else's mistake to criticize them. Talk to the club privately first.

Case 3: What should a group do after a public mistake?

The crew's recap caption blamed younger neighbors for a late start, but the event log shows the projector failed.

On your own Read What happened. Underline the caption and the time the projector failed. About 6 minutes.

Your role: You're the one who checks the log's times before the correction goes up. New skill: Correct a public mistake.

Gia and Jordy sit at a table with a laptop and a printed page.

What happened

It is Sunday at the edit desk. Caio, 24, edited a short recap of Friday's screening. The crew posted it on Saturday morning. Gia's caption, "Great night, once the younger crowd finally got organized," sounded believable, because a few people did arrive late.

Then Jordy checks the setup log. The projector failed at 5:40 p.m. The replacement was not running until 6:20, twenty minutes after everyone was seated. The log also says Anika and Dec helped carry chairs before the doors opened.

Anika sends the group a voice note asking why she and Dec are the problem in the post. Gia wants to take responsibility. Her first draft of a correction is mostly about how bad she feels, and the recap caption is still up.

Your question: What should the correction say, and what will the crew do differently next time?

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Read What happened aloud. Skip the opening question.

Say this

"Imagine a post says your group caused a problem, and you were helping. What should the post say instead?" — Take two answers. Keep the focus on the crew's post.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the caption as a harmless joke. Listen for: "It's just a caption." Then: Ask who the caption names and what it says they did. Point to Anika's message.

Support

- Read What happened aloud while students follow along.
- Write the three times on the board: 5:40, 6:00 and 6:20.

Heat check

■■□ Medium. The caption blames an age group, and students may bring up times they were blamed.

Cool-down: Keep the talk on the crew's post. Nobody needs to share a personal story.

Key terms

On your own Read each key term and its example. Then write your first guess in the box. About 6 minutes.

Claim A claim is a statement that something is true. You can check a claim with evidence.

En español: afirmación

In this case: The caption claims the late start happened because "the younger crowd" was not organized. Jordy's setup log checks that claim.

Correction A correction is a public statement that replaces wrong information with accurate information.

En español: corrección

In this case: Gia edits the original caption, not just her story, so people who saw it learn what was wrong.

Accountability Accountability is owning a mistake and doing what you said you would do to fix it.

En español: rendición de cuentas

In this case: The crew names who fixes the caption, who contacts Anika and Dec, and who checks the next recap against the log.

Who is involved

Gia

Wrote the recap caption

"I wrote 'once the younger crowd finally got organized.' A few people did come in late, so it felt true. I never checked why we started late."

Jordy

Kept the setup log on Friday

"My log says Anika and Dec were carrying chairs before doors opened. The caption turned them into the reason we started late."

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Short on time: 4 min. Read the key terms aloud. Skip Who is involved.

Say this

"Write your first guess now. You will come back to it at the end." — Keep first guesses private unless a student wants to share.

Watch for

Misconception: Students think saying sorry is the same as a correction. Listen for: "She apologized, so it's fixed." Then: Reread the definition. A correction replaces wrong information with supported information.

Support

- Pair students who share a language to explain each term.
- Frame: "The claim was ___. The correction says ___."
- Cognates: correction (corrección), evidence (evidencia), error (error), projector (proyector), stereotype (estereotipo), repair (reparación), responsibility (responsabilidad), public (público).

Heat check

Answer key

Any first guess is fine. Students return to it on the My take page.

Your first guess

Before you look at the evidence, what should Gia's correction say first?

My first guess is ___, because ___.

My first guess is an apology to Anika and Dec, because the caption hurt them.

Words to know

- Claim: A claim is a statement that something is true. You can check a claim with evidence.
- Correction: A correction is a public statement that replaces wrong information with accurate information.
- Accountability: Accountability is owning a mistake and doing what you said you would do to fix it.

The story: Sunday at the edit desk

The screening from Case 1 went ahead, and on Saturday at 11:08 a.m. the crew posted a recap. Caio, who edits the crew's videos, cut it together. Gia wrote the caption: "Great night, once the younger crowd finally got organized." It sounded right to her. A few people had come in late, and the start had slipped.

On Sunday, Jordy opens the setup log they kept on Friday. The entries are short and exact. At 5:40 p.m., a projector failure was reported. At 6:00, attendees were seated. At 6:20, the replacement projector was connected. A note at the bottom says Anika and Dec helped carry chairs before the doors opened. Jordy admits something uncomfortable in the group chat. Nobody opened the log before posting, including Jordy.

Then Anika's voice note arrives: "We were helping you set up. Why are we the problem in this post?"

Gia owns the caption, and she knows it. She has already drafted a correction, though it has not gone up. It reads, "Sorry if this came across wrong. We love our younger neighbors and would never want anyone to feel excluded." When she reads it back, she hears the problem herself. "If?" she says. It came across exactly the way she wrote it. The draft also never mentions the projector.

Stop and think. Why might Gia's caption have felt true to her even though it was wrong?

Building the correction

Start with the skill from Case 1, finding the original source. The caption makes a claim, a statement that something is true that you can check with evidence.

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (574 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: Sunday at the edit desk": Why might Gia's caption have felt true to her even though it was wrong?
2. After "Building the correction": Why does Caio want to fix the same post instead of writing a new one?
3. After "How real organizations get this right or wrong": What evidence would show that the crew's repair happened, beyond a new caption?

The log is the original record, and it contradicts the claim. The delay came from equipment, not from a group of people.

A correction is a public statement that replaces wrong information with accurate information. Placement matters. Caio insists on fixing the same post rather than burying it under a new one, because the people who saw the mistake need to see the fix. The correction should name the wrong claim, give the log's times and leave Gia's feelings for last, or out entirely.

Accountability is owning a mistake and doing what you said you would do to fix it. The crew assigns owners. Gia corrects the original post. Caio keeps a visible correction note with the edit. Jordy adds a source check before the crew publishes anything new. Anika decides for herself how she feels about the response. Jordy argues that Anika should not have to approve the correction in public. The crew can offer her a private way to answer and leave it there.

Stop and think. Why does Caio want to fix the same post instead of writing a new one?

How real organizations get this right or wrong

A 2016 study of apologies found that taking responsibility and offering to repair the harm mattered most (The Ohio State University News, April 12, 2016). The peer-reviewed paper behind it identified six elements of an effective apology, including an offer of repair (Lewicki et al., Negotiation and Conflict Management Research, April 6, 2016).

Brands face the same test. In 2017, Dove expressed regret after an ad played into a racial stereotype (NPR, October 8, 2017). In 2018, H&M hired a diversity leader after outrage over a "monkey hoodie" ad (NBC News, January 17, 2018). Comparing the words of an apology with what changed afterward is exactly the move Jordy suggests. Judge a fix by what readers understand, not by how sorry it sounds.

Professional codes set the bar. The PRSA code asks practitioners to "act promptly to correct erroneous communications for which the practitioner is responsible" (PRSA Code of Ethics, October 2000). Your job is to check the log's times before the correction goes up.

Stop and think. What evidence would show that the crew's repair happened, beyond a new caption?

The caption

Great night, once the younger crowd finally got organized.

Look closely: Which group does this caption ask readers to blame, and on what evidence?

What it shows	What it leaves out
The crew told viewers that younger people caused the slow start.	Any evidence for that, and what caused the delay.

Evidence B | Setup log, Friday evening

Jordy's event log

5:40 p.m. Projector failure reported. 6:00 p.m. Attendees seated. 6:20 p.m. Replacement projector connected. Note: Anika and Dec helped carry chairs before doors opened.

Look closely: What happened at 5:40 that the caption never mentions?

Anika was helping with setup, and the caption blamed her anyway.	Whether Anika wants any public response from the crew.

Evidence D | Draft correction, Saturday 2:15 p.m., not posted

Gia's first correction

Sorry if this came across wrong. We love our younger neighbors and would never want anyone to feel excluded.

Look closely: What fact does this correct? Who does the word "if" put the problem on?

What it shows	What it leaves out
Gia's good intentions and her wish to apologize.	The wrong claim, the projector failure and any change the crew will make.

Key idea: corrections

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

Gia's caption did two jobs at once. It explained the late start, and it blamed a group of people for it. A claim is a statement that something is true. You can check a claim with evidence. Jordy's setup log checks the caption's claim and shows a projector failure instead.

A correction is a public statement that replaces wrong information with accurate information. It should appear where people saw the mistake, so the crew should edit the recap caption itself. A 2016 study of apologies found that taking responsibility and offering to repair the harm mattered most. Gia's first draft talks about loving younger neighbors, and it does neither.

Accountability is owning a mistake and doing what you said you would do to fix it. That means naming who corrects the caption, who contacts the people it blamed and who checks the next recap. Anika does not have to comfort Gia or approve the correction in public. The crew can offer her a private way to respond.

Dove Expresses 'Regret' For Racially Insensitive Ad

A real brand apology after an ad played into a racial stereotype; compare the words with what changed afterward.

Sort the evidence

On your own Compare the four accounts. Mark where they agree, where they differ and which one was written at the time. About 8 minutes.

Place the four accounts side by side. Where do they agree, where do they split, and which one was written down at the time?

Account 1

Caption: the night went well once the younger crowd got organized.

Account 2

Event log: projector failed at 5:40; replacement connected at 6:20; Anika and Dec carried chairs.

Account 3

Anika: "We were helping you set up."

Where they agree

The screening started late.

Where they differ

What caused the delay: a group's behavior or an equipment failure?

Check: Which account was recorded at the time rather than remembered afterward?

Whose perspective is missing?

Whose view is missing from these documents? What would you ask them?

The view that is missing is ___. I would ask ___.

The views of Dec and the other attendees. I would ask attendees why they thought the screening started late.

Pacing

Watch for

Misconception: Students trust the caption because Gia was there. Listen for: "Gia was there, so her caption counts." Then: Ask which account was recorded at the time. The log was written that night, and the caption came the next morning.

Support

- Let students write A (agree) or D (differ) in each box before writing sentences.

Heat check

Medium. The missing-perspective question can lead to talk about how younger people are treated.

Cool-down: Keep it about the people in the case. No student speaks for an age group. Return to the log.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what goes first in the correction and explain why. Then fix the two marked lines. About 8 minutes.

What should go first in the correction?

- [ ] A An explanation of how bad Gia feels about the caption.
- [x] B The wrong claim, and what the event log shows.
- [ ] C Delete the post and stay quiet.

Why I chose it

B. It owns the error and gives new facts people can check. A centers Gia's feelings, and C lets screenshots keep spreading the claim.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

We want to apologize for our last post. We didn't mean to offend anyone and we love having younger people at our events. It was a really stressful night and (1) things were hectic so we said something we shouldn't have. Honestly we were all tired and trying to get everything set up on time, and it's been a lot. We are sorry if anyone was hurt. (2) We promise it won't happen again and we hope everyone keeps coming! Thank you all for your support and understanding, it means a lot to us.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

The projector failed at 5:40 p.m., and a new one ran at 6:20.

Rewrite phrase 2

Gia and Jordy will check causes against the log before each recap.

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: skip this page.

Say this

"Gia is ready to post. What goes first?" — Vote first.

Watch for

Misconception: Students choose A because it sounds sincere. Listen for: "She should say how bad she feels." Then: Ask what A tells Anika about the delay.

Heat check

■□□ Low.

Answer key

A revised version: Correction: our recap said the screening started late because younger attendees were disorganized. That was wrong. Jordy's event log shows the projector failed at 5:40 p.m. and the replacement was connected at 6:20. Anika and Dec actually helped carry chairs before doors opened. We have edited the original caption and messaged the people it blamed. Starting with the next event, Gia and Jordy will check any claim about causes against the event log before we post. We're sorry we blamed people who were helping us. If you see something we got wrong, message Jordy.

Other notes on the draft:

- "We didn't mean to offend anyone" Talks about intent. It still doesn't say what was wrong.
- "We are sorry if anyone was hurt" "If" puts the problem on readers. Name who was blamed.
- "we hope everyone keeps coming" Good goal, but a repair makes that more likely than a hope.

Your task

On your own Read the steps. Fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 12 minutes.

Create a statement of inquiry on fairness and representation and a corrections checklist for a student club.

Use: Case evidence; global context: Fairness and development.

You'll make: Checklist (8—10 items) plus 200-word justification

Time: 90 minutes

1. Write a statement of inquiry that links fairness and communication.
2. List what went wrong with the recap caption, one item per line.
3. Turn each item into a yes-or-no checklist question.
4. Write a checklist of 8 to 10 items on the Your draft page.
5. Write a justification of about 200 words that cites the case.
6. Test your checklist on one other real or invented club post.

Statement of inquiry

When a community's public messages blame a group without evidence, fairness requires a correction that reaches the people who were harmed.

What went wrong: 1

The caption named a cause nobody checked.

What went wrong: 2

It blamed a group by age.

- Statement of inquiry connects fairness to communication
- Checklist items are specific and testable
- Justification cites the case
- Applies checklist to a second example

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes. Use your planner from the page before. About 28 minutes.

Your corrections checklist, 8 to 10 items

1. Did we check every claim about a cause against a record? 2. Does the post blame a group of people? 3. Did we correct the original post, not only post a new one? 4. Does the correction name the error in its first sentence? 5. Does it give the checked fact? 6. Did we message the people the post blamed? 7. Did we avoid asking them to reassure us? 8. Did someone check that readers now understand the fix?

Your justification, about 200 words

Our checklist comes from what went wrong with the crew's recap caption. The caption said the screening started late because "the younger crowd" was not organized. Nobody checked Jordy's log, which shows the projector failed at 5:40 p.m. Item 1 would have caught that. Item 2 matters because the caption blamed a whole age group, including Anika and Dec, who were helping set up. Items 3 and 4 come from the crew's own fix: Gia corrected the original post instead of burying the error. Item 7 comes from Jordy's point that Anika already did the work of telling the crew. The last item measures understanding, not views. Fairness here means the correction reaches the people who

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then finish My take. About 10 minutes.

1. The caption felt true to Gia because a few people came in late. Why was that not enough evidence?

A few latecomers matched Gia's guess, but she never checked the cause. The log shows the projector failed at 5:40 p.m.

2. What evidence would show that the repair happened?

The edited caption, a message sent to the people it blamed, and the next recap checked against the log.

3. After the correction goes up, what is still up to Anika and Dec to decide?

Whether to respond at all, and how they feel about the correction. The crew cannot decide that for them.

My take

My claim: ___.

The correction should name the wrong claim before it apologizes.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

Jordy's setup log, because it was written that night and shows the projector failed.

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

An apology that shows feelings is enough between friends.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Stretch

- Compare a real newsroom's published correction policy with the crew's plan.
- Going further: Ask the people affected what the correction missed, without asking them to forgive anyone. Then decide where the corrected fact should go so the original audience sees it.
- Going further: Correct the record where people can see it. Keep enough of the original caption in a correction note to explain what changed.
- Going further: Write a caption correction and a short script for an accessible video. Use the same facts in both.
- Going further: Ask the editor or advisor of a school newsletter, club account or yearbook how they fix mistakes. Suggest three steps: name the error, show the evidence and say what changes.

Overview

Students read a short story about the Common Room, where a nonprofit board is considering paid evening rentals. The rentals would help close a $200 weekly budget gap. Students read the board agenda, a budget note and listening notes from evening users, then map who might miss the meeting. They write a note or a spoken comment with a budget question and an access question.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write a neutral question
- tell a leading question from a neutral one
- use evidence from a case to justify a choice

Objectives

- write neutral survey questions the board can use
- plan a way to reach people who cannot attend the meeting
- justify the survey with evidence from the case

What happened

It is the Friday after the crew's first screening, and the board meeting is coming up. A small neighborhood nonprofit runs the Common Room alongside the bookshop. The nonprofit's board is considering paid rentals on two evenings a week to help cover staffing. No vote has happened yet.

Mari, 19, works the bookshop counter and closes the shop. She knows that "just keep it free" does not pay the evening staff. Sami runs a print workshop in the room after her afternoon shift. It is one of the few step-free rooms nearby.

Caio, 24, runs the crew's Tuesday film night. Tuesday is one of the evenings Option B would rent out. Mateo already has a headline for a petition. The crew agrees the room matters, but they do not agree on the best schedule.

The story: A room with two kinds of value

It is the Friday after the crew's first screening, and the board meeting is coming up. The Common Room is run by a small neighborhood nonprofit alongside the bookshop, and its board is considering paid rentals on two evenings a week to help cover staffing. Nothing has been decided. Still, the group chat moves fast. Mateo announces that he already has a petition headline.

Mari slows him down. She is 19, works the bookshop counter and is the person paid to close the shop at night. She is also one of the people who use the room afterward, for zine nights with her friends. "I can't pretend either half away," she says. On rental nights, she would be staffing a stranger's event instead of making zines. Maybe that is fine, she admits, but it is still a cost, and nobody has written it down.

Sami, who works afternoons and runs a print workshop in the room in the evening, points to a different gap. The crew keeps deciding what evening users need without asking them. Moving her workshop online would not help. Her printing tools do not fit in a video call. Mateo reads the thread and concedes the point. He had a headline. He did not have the budget.

Stop and think. Mari is paid to close the shop and also uses the room at night. How does that shape what she asks for?

Options, numbers and trade-offs

Start with the Case 1 skill and read the original documents. The board agenda lists three options for discussion. Option A keeps the free evenings, and the funding gap remains.

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (596 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: A room with two kinds of value": Mari is paid to close the shop and also uses the room at night. How does that shape what she asks for?
2. After "Options, numbers and trade-offs": Option B frames the $200 gap as the problem. What does that way of stating the problem leave out?
3. After "Who decides, in the room and in the city": If the board chooses an option the crew did not support, how should the crew tell the group what happened?

Option B replaces the Tuesday and Thursday evenings with paid rentals. Option C pilots one rental evening for six weeks while the board seeks more funding. Each is a proposal, a change that someone suggests and that has not been approved yet.

The weekly budget note shows $600 in evening staffing and utilities against $400 in grants and donations, a $200 gap. Each rental is projected to add $120 after its extra costs. Two would add $240 and one would add $120, but the note warns that demand is uncertain. The listening notes add the human side. Sami works afternoons. Dec rehearses on Thursdays. Mari closes the shop. A nearby resident worries about late noise, and the meeting time overlaps several shifts.

Every option is a trade-off, a choice where getting one benefit means accepting a cost or giving something up. Case 2 taught you to ask what a task is meant to measure. Ask the same of each option: what problem is it designed to solve? Case 1's idea of framing helps too. Option B frames the $200 gap as the problem and the free evenings as the price. That frame leaves two questions open. Who loses those evenings, and what happens if bookings come in lower than projected? Ask the same questions about your own favorite option.

> Stop and think. Option B frames the $200 gap as the problem. What does that way of stating the problem leave out?

Who decides, in the room and in the city

A decision-maker is the person or group with the power to make a particular choice. The nonprofit's board controls its own schedule. A city is different. When budget cuts closed New York's libraries on Sundays, Brooklyn's last Sunday of service was December 17, 2023 (NY1, November 17, 2023). The restored funding, part of a $58.3 million investment, let the libraries resume Sunday service in July 2024 (NYC Mayor's Office, July 1, 2024). Council members credited New Yorkers who called and wrote (New York City Council, July 14, 2024).

Other communities have handed more of the choice to residents. Evanston, Illinois, let anyone 14 and older help decide how to spend $3 million in public money (PBS, May 29, 2024). Your role in this case is to check the budget figures before the crew speaks to the board.

> Stop and think. If the board chooses an option the crew did not support, how should the crew tell the group what happened?

Evidence A | Board agenda, Wednesday 6:30 p.m. meeting

The proposal

Evening rentals, for discussion. Option A: keep the current free evenings; the funding gap remains. Option B: replace Tuesday and Thursday evenings with paid rentals. Option C: pilot one rental evening for six weeks while seeking additional funding. No vote has been taken.

Look closely: Is this a vote or a discussion? Which words tell you?

What it shows

Three options are up for discussion, and no vote has been taken.

What it leaves out

Who uses each evening, and what happens if the pilot falls short.

Evidence B | Weekly budget note for the board

The budget note

Evening staffing and utilities: $600. Current grants and donations: $400. Each paid rental is projected to add $120 after its extra costs. Two bookings would add $240; one would add $120. Demand is uncertain.

Look closely: Which number is a guess, and what could change it?

What it shows

The weekly gap is $200. Two rentals could cover it if the projection holds.

What it leaves out

Whether the $120 projection is based on any past bookings.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 10 min.

Evidence C | Listening notes from evening users

The missing voices

Sami works afternoons. Dec rehearses on Thursdays. Mari closes the shop. A nearby resident worries about late noise. The proposed meeting time overlaps with several shifts.

Look closely: Whose voice is missing from these four notes?

What it shows

Four evening users have different needs, and the meeting conflicts with shifts.

What it leaves out

Everyone else who uses the room, including people who cannot attend.

What is still missing from the evidence?

Who uses the room on other evenings, whether the $120 projection rests on any past bookings, what the board will do if the pilot underperforms, and the views of evening users who were not in the listening notes.

Key idea: trade-offs

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

The board is weighing a proposal about the free evenings. A proposal is a change that someone suggests and that has not been approved yet. Option B would help close the $200 weekly gap, but it would end the free Tuesday and Thursday evenings. A trade-off is a choice where getting one benefit means accepting a cost or giving something up. Every option on the agenda has one, including the one you prefer.

Carol Bacchi's policy-analysis approach asks what a proposed solution assumes the problem is. Option B treats the $200 gap as the problem and two free evenings as the price. That leaves two questions open: who loses those evenings, and what happens if bookings come in lower than projected? Ask the same questions about your own favorite option.

A decision-maker is the person or group with the power to make a particular choice. Here, the nonprofit's board controls its own schedule. A community board or a city agency would follow other rules. A strong comment names the proposal, explains one effect with evidence and asks for a decision the board can make. The board can still choose an option the crew did not ask for.

ASPA Code of Ethics: 5. Fully Inform and Advise

"Provide accurate, honest, comprehensive, and timely information and advice to elected and appointed officials and governing board members"

In plain words: ASPA members agree to give decision-makers, such as board members, accurate and complete information.

Question: The budget note projects $120 more per rental. What should it also tell the board about how certain that is?

What should the crew ask the board for first?

- ☐ A Post that the board is taking away the free nights.
- ☑ B Ask for the budget assumptions, who uses each evening and a way to comment without attending.
- ☐ C Support whichever option brings in the most money.

Why I chose it

B. It asks for the assumptions and the users before anyone takes a side. A treats a proposal as final, and C counts only money.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

(1) The board should not take away our free nights. The Common Room is important to the community and a lot of people use it. I have been coming here for movie nights since it opened and it's one of the only places we can all hang out without paying. Renting it out just shows (2) the board cares more about money than people. Sami and Dec would lose their spot and that is not fair. Please keep it free for everyone. Thank you for listening.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

The board is discussing a plan to rent two free evenings. No vote has happened.

Answer key

A revised version: I use the Common Room on weeknights, and I'm commenting on the rental options. Option B would replace both Tuesday and Thursday free evenings. Sami meets clients after her print-shop shift, and Dec rehearses Thursdays, so losing both nights hits people with the least flexible schedules. I understand the $200 weekly gap is real. Option C's one-night pilot could cut it to about $80 if bookings hold. I'm asking the board to choose the pilot, collect written input from evening users who can't attend, and review the results with them after six weeks.

Other notes on the draft:

- "Sami and Dec would lose their spot" Good affected perspectives. Say which evenings and why they matter.
- "Please keep it free for everyone" Clear position, but the board needs a plan for the gap. What could it do?

Your rationale, about 200 words

The listening notes include only four voices, and the proposed meeting time overlaps with several shifts. A survey lets the board hear from evening users who cannot attend. Each question is neutral. This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read a short story in which Gia's bank deposit is smaller than she expected after 18 hours of café shifts. They read her pay statement and shift log, label gross pay, FICA, withholding and net pay, and find out why three hours are missing. They then write a private question to payroll about any line they cannot explain.

Before this case

- write notes from an official government source
- organize information under headings
- write a short reflection on what they learned

Objectives

Students will be able to:

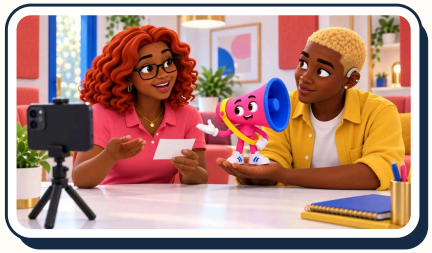
Case 5: Why is my deposit smaller than what I earned?

Gia's bank deposit is smaller than the pay she worked out, so she reads her pay statement line by line before asking payroll.

On your own Read What happened and underline the two hour totals that do not match. About 6 minutes.



Gia holds a small card and talks beside a phone on a tripod. Jordy holds Voz, one of the crew's companions, on an open hand.

Your role: You're the one who adds up Gia's hours before she writes to payroll. New skill: Read a pay statement line by line.

What happened

It is Thursday evening, and it is payday for Gia. She works café shifts around her college classes. She checks her bank account and sees a deposit that is smaller than the pay she worked out. Gia keeps a shift log in her notes app. The log says 18 hours, but her pay statement says 15.

Jordy works event shifts, and their deposit looks different too. Jordy's shifts fall on different dates and hours, so their pay cannot explain Gia's. Jordy asks Gia to name the line that worries her instead of posting her whole statement.

Gia's pay statement lists her hours, her hourly rate and four tax lines. She expected the lines for Social Security and Medicare. She does not understand the line for federal income tax. Before she writes to payroll, she wants to know what her own records show.

Your question: Why is Gia's deposit smaller than her own count, and what should she ask payroll?

Key terms

Gross pay Gross pay is the money you earn before any taxes or other deductions are taken out.

En español: salario bruto

In this case: Gia's statement pays 15 hours at $17.00 an hour, so her gross pay is $255.00.

Net pay Net pay is the money left after taxes and other deductions, often called take-home pay.

En español: salario neto

In this case: The $220.99 that reached Gia's bank account is her net pay, not the amount she earned.

FICA FICA is the federal payroll tax that funds Social Security and Medicare.

En español: FICA (Seguro Social y Medicare)

In this case: On Gia's statement, FICA appears as two lines: Social Security tax, $15.81, and Medicare tax, $3.70.

Withholding Withholding is money an employer takes out of each paycheck to pay taxes or other costs for the worker.

En español: retención

In this case: Federal income tax withheld, $8.40, is a separate line from FICA. The IRS says its amount depends partly on the W-4.

Your first guess

Before you look at the evidence, why do you think Gia's deposit is smaller than she expected?

My first guess is ___, because ___.

My first guess is that payroll made a mistake, because her notes say 18 hours.

Reading passage

Gross, net and the lines in between

On your own Read the passage. At each Stop and think box, pause and answer the question in your head or with a partner. About 5 minutes.

Words to know

- Gross pay: Gross pay is the money you earn before any taxes or other deductions are taken out.
- Net pay: Net pay is the money left after taxes and other deductions, often called take-home pay.
- FICA: FICA is the federal payroll tax that funds Social Security and Medicare.
- Withholding: Withholding is money an employer takes out of each paycheck to pay taxes or other costs for the worker.
- Claim: A claim is a statement that something is true. You can check a claim with evidence.

The story: A smaller deposit than expected

Payday falls on a Thursday. Gia checks her bank app between a café shift and an evening reading assignment, and the number looks wrong. By her own math, she earned more. Gia is careful about this kind of thing. She keeps a shift log in her notes app, and it lists five shifts that add up to 18 hours. Her pay statement lists 15.

Her first message goes to the group chat: “my deposit is way less than what I worked out??” Jordy, who works event shifts for a different schedule, answers quickly. Their deposit looks different too, but comparing deposits would just send everyone in circles, because the dates and hours are not the same. Then Jordy adds a second request. Please don’t post the whole statement. Just say which line.

That request sets up the whole case. Gia is not trying to prove a point to the group. She is trying to understand her own pay before she writes to payroll. You are the person beside her with a calculator. Your job is to add up her hours before she sends that message.

Stop and think. Why does Jordy say that comparing deposits would send the friends in circles?

Matching the statement to the log

Gia’s suspicion, that payroll shorted her, is a claim.

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (574 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After “The story: A smaller deposit than expected”: Why does Jordy say that comparing deposits would send the friends in circles?
2. After “Matching the statement to the log”: Walk through the math from $255.00 to $220.99. Which lines are FICA, and which are income tax?
3. After “Where the money goes”: What would Gia’s statement need to show for the missing hours to be a payroll mistake?

Matching the statement to the log, continued

You met the term in Case 1: a statement that something is true that you can check with evidence. In Case 4, Mari read the budget note figure by figure. Here, you read the statement line by line.

The statement covers the pay period ending Friday the 12th, paid the following Thursday. It shows 15 hours at $17.00, or $255.00. Gross pay is the money you earn before any taxes or other deductions are taken out. For an hourly worker, it is the hours worked times the hourly rate, plus any other earnings.

The shift log explains the gap. Monday the 8th, Wednesday the 10th, Thursday the 11th and Friday the 12th add up to 15 hours. The last shift, 3 hours on Saturday the 13th, falls after the period ended. It should appear on the next statement. Gia wants payroll to confirm that, and she is right to ask.

Then there are four tax lines. Social Security tax ($15.81) and Medicare tax ($3.70) together make up FICA, the federal payroll tax that funds Social Security and Medicare. Federal income tax withheld ($8.40) is a separate line. So is state and local income tax withheld ($6.10). Withholding is money an employer takes out of each paycheck to pay taxes or other costs for the worker. Subtract all four, and $220.99 remains. Net pay is the money left after taxes and other deductions, often called take-home pay.

Stop and think. Walk through the math from $255.00 to $220.99. Which lines are FICA, and which are income tax?

Where the money goes

Rachel's question on Friends, "Who's FICA? Why's he getting all my money?", is funny because so many first paychecks surprise people (TBS, Friends clip, December 14, 2019). A PBS explainer starts in the same place, with a first paycheck that is smaller than expected (Two Cents, PBS, April 10, 2019). NPR's Planet Money team explains why the Social Security part of FICA comes out of nearly every paycheck (NPR, The Indicator, June 6, 2018).

The IRS says the amount of federal income tax withheld depends partly on the worker's Form W-4 (Internal Revenue Service, updated May 1, 2026). It also offers an official Tax Withholding Estimator for checking it (Internal Revenue Service, updated June 27, 2026). One more check belongs before the tax lines. States can set a higher minimum wage than the federal one, which changes gross pay (ABC News, December 29, 2025).

Stop and think. What would Gia's statement need to show for the missing hours to be a payroll mistake?

Look at the evidence

On your own Read the pay statement and the shift log, and fill in both boxes for each one. About 12 minutes.

Evidence A | Pay statement

Gia's pay statement

Pay period ending Friday the 12th, paid the following Thursday. Hours: 15.00 at $17.00. Gross pay: $255.00. Social Security tax: $15.81. Medicare tax: $3.70. Federal income tax withheld: $8.40. State and local income tax withheld: $6.10. Net pay: $220.99.

Look closely: Which line shows gross pay? Which two lines together make up FICA?

What it shows	What it leaves out
Gross pay is $255.00 for 15 hours. Four tax lines leave $220.99 net.	Hours worked after Friday the 12th, and how federal withholding was figured.

Evidence B | Notes app

Gia's shift log for the last two weeks

Mon the 8th: 4 hrs. Wed the 10th: 4 hrs. Thu the 11th: 3 hrs. Fri the 12th: 4 hrs. Sat the 13th: 3 hrs. My total: 18 hrs.

Look closely: Which shift falls outside the pay period? Add the hours inside it.

What it shows	What it leaves out
Five shifts, 18 hours. Four shifts, 15 hours, fall on or before Friday the 12th.	Which pay period each shift belongs to, and whether payroll has the Saturday hours.

Pacing

Full chapter: 12 min.

Short on time: 10 min. Students fill in the What it shows boxes first and finish the rest if time allows.

Say this

"Put your finger on the date the pay period ends. Now find each shift in the log that comes after it." — Wait for Saturday the 13th.

Watch for

Misconception: Students expect all 18 hours on this statement. Listen for: "She worked 18 hours, so she gets paid for 18." Then: Ask which dates the pay period covers. Only 15 of the 18 hours fall inside it.

Support

- Give each document on its own half-page with the dates enlarged.
- Offer calculators and model 15 × $17.00 = $255.00.
- Cognates: deduction (deducción), net (neto), total (total), calculate (calcular), period (período), federal (federal), confirm (confirmar), error (error).

Stretch

- Ask which two lines make up FICA, and why the statement lists federal income tax on its own line.

Heat check

■□□ Low.

What is still missing from the evidence?

Whether the Saturday shift will appear on the next statement, what Gia entered on her W-4, whether any other deductions such as benefits apply to her job, and the minimum wage where she works.

Notes

This page continues page 92. The notes for both pages are on the sheet for page 92.

Key idea: gross pay and net pay

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

A bank deposit shows how much money arrived, but the pay statement shows how the employer figured it. Gross pay is the money you earn before any taxes or other deductions are taken out. For an hourly worker, gross pay is the hours worked times the hourly rate, plus any other earnings. Net pay is the money left after taxes and other deductions, often called take-home pay. Gia's deposit is her net pay.

Deductions are the lines between those two totals. FICA is the federal payroll tax that funds Social Security and Medicare. On Gia's statement, FICA appears as two lines: Social Security tax and Medicare tax. Withholding is money an employer takes out of each paycheck to pay taxes or other costs for the worker. Federal income-tax withholding is a separate line from FICA, and the IRS says its amount depends partly on the worker's Form W-4.

A statement can also list other deductions, such as benefit contributions, so read each line's name before you decide it is income tax. The federal income tax taken from each paycheck counts toward the tax a worker owes for the whole year. One paycheck cannot show what that yearly total will be. This explanation covers employees in the United States. Self-employed workers follow a different tax process.

Short on time: 6 min. Read the key idea. Skip In the news.

Say this

"PayrollOrg members aim for accuracy and timeliness. Which part of Gia's question is about timeliness?" — Wait for the Saturday shift.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the PayrollOrg code as a law. Listen for: "Payroll could get sued for breaking the code." Then: Say: "The code binds PayrollOrg members. Tax and wage laws are separate."

Support

- Read the quotation aloud. Point out the label: a real source, quoted word for word.

Stretch

- Read PayrollOrg Item 5 on confidentiality. Ask why Jordy wants Gia to name one line instead of posting her statement.

Sort the evidence

On your own Compare each piece of evidence with each claim and write supports, challenges or neither in each box. About 8 minutes.

Before calling it an error, sort the evidence. Which facts explain the smaller deposit, and which question is still worth asking payroll?

Evidence	Claim 1 Payroll shorted Gia's pay.	Claim 2 The missing 3 hours belong on the next statement.
1 Shift log shows 18 hours; the statement shows 15	Supports	Neither
2 The period ended Friday the 12th; the 3-hour shift was Saturday the 13th	Challenges	Supports
3 Gross pay of $255.00 matches 15 × $17.00	Challenges	Neither
4 FICA and withholding lines account for the gap between gross and net	Challenges	Neither

Still open

- Will the Saturday shift actually appear next time? Ask payroll.

Whose perspective is missing?

Whose view is missing from these documents? What would you ask them?

The view that is missing is ___. I would ask ___.

The payroll office's view is missing. I would ask where the pay period cuts off and how the federal withholding was figured.

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Do the first two rows together.

Say this

"Which facts explain the smaller deposit, and which question is still open for payroll?" — Model the first row together.

Watch for

Misconception: Students mark the shift log as proof that payroll shorted Gia. Listen for: "The log proves she was cheated." Then: On its own, the log supports that claim. The pay-period date challenges it.

Support

- Let students write S or C in each box before they write sentences.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what Gia should do first and explain why, then fix the two marked lines. About 6 minutes.

Gia's deposit is smaller than the pay she worked out. What should she do first?

- ☐ A Compare her deposit with Jordy's.
- ☑ B Check her hours and the pay period, then read each line of her statement.
- ☐ C Treat the whole gap as taxes and let it go.

Why I chose it

B. The statement separates hours, earnings and deductions. A compares two different jobs, and C ignores the three missing hours.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Hi, my paycheck is wrong. (1) I worked way more hours than what I got paid for and also a lot of money was taken out for taxes which doesn't seem right. I've been working really hard and picking up extra shifts so this is really frustrating. My friend Jordy works similar hours and got more than me. Can you fix it? (2) My account number is 4471-xxxx if you need it. Please let me know as soon as possible because I have bills. Thanks, Gia

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

My log shows 18 hours for the period ending Friday the 12th. The statement shows 15.

Rewrite phrase 2

I can bring my shift log with the dates and times if that would help.

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Short on time: skip this page.

Say this

"Gia just saw the deposit. What should she do first?" — Hold a quick vote before any discussion.

Watch for

Misconception: Students choose comparing deposits with Jordy. Listen for: "Just ask Jordy what they got." Then: Ask what Jordy's deposit could prove about Gia's hours. Jordy works different dates.

Support

- Read the three options aloud before students choose.

Heat check

■■□ Medium. Students may start comparing their own pay or their family's income.

Cool-down: Say: "We use only Gia's and Jordy's numbers today." Return to the statement.

Answer key

A revised version: Hi, I'm checking my pay statement for the period that ended Friday the 12th. My shift log shows 18 hours, and the statement shows 15. I think my Saturday shift on the 13th may fall after the cutoff. Can you confirm whether those 3 hours will appear on my next statement? I also want to understand the federal income-tax withholding line. Is it based on the W-4 I filled out when I started? I can bring my shift log with dates and times to the office if that would help. Thank you, Gia

Your task

On your own Read the steps and fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 20 minutes.

Investigate "Who pays for the safety net?" and design a one-page first-job guide.

Use: Case sources; global context: Fairness and development.

You'll make: One-page guide plus 150-word reflection

Time: 90 minutes

1. Write the statement of inquiry at the top of your planner.
2. Reread Evidence A and B. Note why Gia's deposit is smaller than her own count.
3. Research what Social Security and Medicare fund, using official sources.
4. Plan four sections for your one-page guide in the planner.
5. Draft the guide text and a 150-word reflection in the Your draft boxes.
6. Design the final guide on one page.
7. Check your guide with the questions on the Check your work page.

Statement of inquiry

Social insurance systems link each worker's paycheck to shared protection, raising questions about how societies divide responsibility for risk.

Why Gia's deposit is smaller

Three hours fell after the pay period, and four tax lines came out of $255.00 gross pay.

Pacing

Full chapter: 20 min.

Short on time: 18 min. Give students the four guide sections instead of having them plan their own.

Say this

"Who pays for the safety net, and who is protected by it? Start with Gia's two FICA lines." — Post the statement of inquiry where students can see it.

Watch for

Misconception: Comparisons overgeneralize about another country. Listen for: "Nobody there pays taxes." Then: Ask which official source says that. Keep the comparison to what the source states.

Support

- Statement of inquiry frame
- Guide template
- Source list
- Give students the four section headings if they are stuck.

Standards

Individuals and Societies A: Knowing and understanding — Criterion A in MYP individuals and societies: use subject vocabulary and show knowledge of content and concepts. In this case: Students explain gross pay, deductions and FICA accurately.

Individuals and Societies B: Investigating — Criterion B in MYP individuals and societies: plan and carry out an investigation of a research question, then reflect on it. In this case: Students investigate why a deposit differs from expected earnings.

Individuals and Societies C: Communicating — Criterion C in MYP individuals and societies: communicate information and ideas clearly, organized for the task, and list sources. In this case: Students present an organized guide with correct terms.

D2.Civ.13.9-12 — Evaluate public policies by their intended and unintended outcomes and consequences. In this case: Students evaluate Social Security and Medicare funding in terms of intended outcomes.

D2.Civ.12.9-12 — Analyze how people use and challenge laws at different levels to address public issues. In this case: Students analyze how workers use wage laws to address pay errors.

Answer key

A strong response:

- Accurate U.S. content
- Clear guide design
- Thoughtful comparison without overgeneralizing
- Reflection connects to the global context

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes, using your planner from the page before. About 35 minutes.

Guide text for a first-time worker

Gross and net pay: gross pay is your hours times your rate. Net pay is what reaches your bank. What FICA funds: two lines, Social Security and Medicare, pay for retirement, disability, survivors and health care. Federal income tax is a separate line. Check your dates: a shift after the pay period ends may appear on a later statement. Ask payroll: name the pay period and the line, and keep bank details out.

Reflection, about 150 words

I started with Gia's question: why was the deposit smaller? The answer was partly timing and partly deductions. The FICA lines linked her paycheck to programs that protect people from the risks of old age, disability and illness. That connects to fairness and development, because the system shares responsibility for risk between workers now and later. When I compared the United States with another country, I had to avoid overgeneralizing from one source. Designing the guide made me cut jargon, because a first-time worker needs the order of the steps more than the vocabulary.

Pacing

Full chapter: 35 min.

Short on time: 30 min. Students write the guide text in class and the reflection at home.

Say this

"Hand your guide to a partner. Can they find the step for checking dates in ten seconds?" — Partners mark the first place they got lost.

Watch for

Misconception: Guides copy definitions without an example. Listen for: "Net pay is pay after deductions," with no example. Then: Ask for one example from Gia's statement next to each term.

Answer key

What to notice in the sample:

1. Turns Gia's missing hours into advice any worker can use.
2. Keeps FICA and income tax apart.
3. Connects the guide to the global context.
4. Reflects on a research limit.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete the sentence frames below. About 12 minutes.

1 What would Gia's statement need to show for the missing hours to be a payroll mistake?

It would need to leave out hours worked on or before Friday the 12th. All 15 hours inside the period are paid.

2 Why might a new worker think that every missing dollar went to taxes?

The deposit shows one number and no breakdown. Taxes are the reason people expect, so they stop before they check the hours.

3 Before a first job, what would you want to know about how and when you will be paid?

I would want to know when each pay period ends, when it is paid and where to see my pay statement.

My take

My claim: ___.

My claim: the missing hours are a timing issue, and the tax lines are expected deductions.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The best evidence is the shift log, because the Saturday shift falls after Friday the 12th.

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

Someone who disagrees might say payroll shorted Gia, because her log shows 18 hours.

Pacing

Full chapter: 12 min.

Short on time: 6 min. Use question 3 only.

Say this

"Answer with a line from the statement or the log, not a guess about payroll." — Post the question numbers and hear one answer per question.

Stretch

- Ask what a new worker should keep in their own records before the first payday, and why.
- Going further: What does a new worker need to know before they feel ready to ask payroll a question? Explain the gap between gross pay and net pay without making taxes the answer to every missing dollar.
- Going further: Write down your first guess about why Gia's deposit was small. Then compare it with the line-by-line explanation. What changed?
- Going further: Record a spoken walkthrough of Gia's statement, and mark up a copy of the statement. Ask someone which version answers their question better.
- Going further: Before a first job, ask how and when you will be paid and where to see your pay statement. Keep your own log of hours and shifts. Look up your state's minimum wage on its labor department website, and bring pay questions to a supervisor or payroll in writing.
- Use the IRS Tax Withholding Estimator's public page to list what information it asks for (no personal data)
- Research your state's minimum wage and pay-statement requirements

I would change my mind if ___.

I would change my mind if the next statement still left out the Saturday hours.

This case is about private records. No student should share their own grades, forms, records or family finances, so keep the discussion on Rafa's situation.

This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read about Rafa, an 18-year-old in his first year of college whose family wants to help pay tuition and asks for his login. They read an access form, a college FERPA notice and summaries of federal guidance, then sort billing access from access to grades. They then write the question Rafa could send the records office and the smallest access that would help his family.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write notes from an official source
- organize information visually
- reflect on a choice in writing

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- explain who controls education records and when control transfers
- evaluate official, institutional and sources

Objectives, continued

- organize the rule in a clear infographic for peers
- reflect on identity and independence in a process journal

Try it at your school

Find your school's records notice.

- Search your school or district website for its FERPA or "student records" notice
- Find out what counts as directory information and how families can opt out
- Write one question about who can see a record, and ask the front office or counselor

- If you're heading to college, look up its parent-access and authorization forms early

Who to ask: School counselor, registrar or records office, front-office staff

Safety: Never post screenshots of grades, IDs or forms. Talk with a trusted adult about what to share and with whom.

Case 6: What can your family see in your college records?

Rafa's parents help pay his college bill, and a family-access form asks whether they should also get information about his grades.

On your own Read What happened and underline what Rafa's dad asks for in the family chat. About 6 minutes.

Rafa and Caio sit on a sofa and look at Rafa's phone. Caio explains something with an open hand.

Your role: You're the one who reads each box on the form before Rafa signs. New skill: Read a form section by section before you sign.

What happened

Rafa, 18, has just started college, and his parents help pay his tuition bill. He commutes from the next block and helps at his family's shop after class. At the end of August, the college mailed Rafa a family-access form, but he has not opened the envelope yet.

On Sunday night, his parents ask about the form in the family group chat. His dad wants Rafa's login so the family can handle everything. Rafa is glad to share the bill, but he wants to read the rest of the form first.

Caio, an older friend who rents a room on the block, reads the form with Rafa, not for him. The form has separate sections for billing and for grades. Rafa wants to check the billing box. He wants to talk with his family before he decides about grades.

Your question: What will this form let Rafa's parents see, and what should he ask before he signs?

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Short on time: 4 min. Read What happened aloud.

Say this

"Rafa's dad asks for his login. What is his dad trying to help with?" — Hear two answers. Keep the talk about Rafa's family, not students' own.

Watch for

Misconception: Students assume paying tuition gives parents full access. Listen for: "They pay, so they get to see it." Then: Write "paying" and "seeing" as two columns. Ask which document connects them.

Support

- Read What happened aloud while students follow along.
- Remind students that nobody shares their own records or family rules.

Heat check

■■□ Medium. Students may compare the case with their own family's rules about grades.

Cool-down: Say: "We're working with Rafa's family." Go straight to the form.

Key terms

On your own Read each key term and its example, then write your first guess in the box. About 8 minutes.

FERPA FERPA, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, is a federal law about who can see student education records.

En español: FERPA (Ley de Derechos Educativos y Privacidad de la Familia)

In this case: Rafa is 18 and in college, so under the general rule the FERPA rights to his records are his, not his parents'.

Education record An education record is a record directly about a student that a school or college keeps.

En español: expediente educativo

In this case: Rafa's grades and schedule are education records. Section 2 of his form asks whether his parents may receive information about his grades.

Consent Consent is permission a person gives for something specific, such as sharing a record with a named person.

En español: consentimiento

In this case: Rafa's form asks for consent in two separate sections, one for billing and one for grades. He can say yes to one and no to the other.

Who is involved

Rafa

First-year commuter with a family-access form

"My parents help with the bill. The college mailed this form, and the family chat already wants to know if I signed it. I haven't even opened it."

- Education record: An education record is a record directly about a student that a school or college keeps.
- Consent: Consent is permission a person gives for something specific, such as sharing a record with a named person.
- Decision-maker: A decision-maker is the person or group with the power to make a particular choice.

The story: A login request on Sunday night

Rafa, 18, is a few weeks into his first year of college. He commutes from the next block, helps at his family's shop after class and relies on his parents to help pay tuition. At the end of August, the college mailed him a family-access form. The envelope is still sealed.

On Sunday night, the family group chat catches up with him. His mom asks whether the tuition form came, because they want to help with the bill. His dad offers a shortcut: "Send us the login and we'll take care of everything." The offer is generous and practical, and it would hand over far more than a bill.

Rafa does not want a fight. He wants to understand what he is signing. He asks Caio, an older friend who rents a room on the block, to read the form with him. Caio is clear about his role. He will sit with Rafa while he asks questions, but being older does not make this his decision. When someone suggests sending his parents a photo of the form, Caio points out the trade-off. A photo is easier to send, and it is also easier to lose control of.

Your role is to read each box on the form before Rafa signs.

Stop and think. Caio says a photo of the form is easier to send and easier to lose control of. What does he mean?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (628 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: A login request on Sunday night": Caio says a photo of the form is easier to send and easier to lose control of. What does he mean?
2. After "Separating the parts of the form": What is the smallest amount of access that would give Rafa the help he wants from his family?
3. After "What FERPA does and does not say": Someone says, "Parents can never see college records." How would you revise that claim?

Separating the parts of the form

Case 5 taught you to read a document line by line before deciding what it means. The form rewards the same patience. Section 1 covers billing and payments: the named person could view account statements and make payments. Section 2 covers academic records: the named person could receive information about grades, enrollment and academic standing. Section 3 says the authorization stays in effect until Rafa changes or withdraws it in writing. Each of the first two sections has its own yes-or-no box.

That structure changes the decision. Rafa does not face a single choice between trusting his family and shutting them out. He faces two separate choices, and each has its own trade-off, a word you learned in Case 4. Saying yes to billing gives his parents what they asked for. Saying yes to grades may be fine too, but Rafa wants to talk with them before he decides.

Case 4 also gave you the term decision-maker, the person or group with the power to make a particular choice. On this form, the decision-maker is Rafa. Consent is permission a person gives for something specific, such as sharing a record with a named person. For college records, consent is written and names the record, the person and the purpose.

Stop and think. What is the smallest amount of access that would give Rafa the help he wants from his family?

What FERPA does and does not say

FERPA, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, is a federal law about who can see student education records. An education record is a record directly about a student that a school or college keeps, such as grades, transcripts or schedules. Under the general rule, the rights transfer from parents to the student at age 18 or when the student enters college at any age (U.S. Department of Education, Student Privacy Policy Office, no date listed). The Education Department publishes a plain guide for these “eligible students” (U.S. Department of Education, March 8, 2023).

Helping pay tuition does not, by itself, give those rights back to a parent. FERPA does have exceptions. A college may share records with parents if the student is a dependent for federal tax purposes, or in a health or safety emergency. The Education Department says this sharing is allowed, not required, so each college decides how it handles these cases.

Why do these rules matter so much? Student records now live in large software systems. A breach at the company PowerSchool exposed millions of student records (Education Week, January 9, 2025). Knowing which record, which permission and which office to ask is how Rafa keeps family support from turning into giving away every login.

Look at the evidence

On your own Read the form and the notice, and fill in both boxes for each one. About 12 minutes.

Evidence A | College form

Parent and family access authorization, mailed to Rafa on August 28

Section 1, Billing and payments: allow the person named below to view account statements and make payments. Yes or No. Section 2, Academic records: allow the person named below to receive information about grades, enrollment and academic standing. Yes or No. Section 3: this authorization stays in effect until the student changes or withdraws it in writing.

Look closely: Which section covers billing, and which covers grades? Circle each yes-or-no box.

What it shows

Billing and grades are separate sections, each with its own yes or no.

What it leaves out

What the college may share without Rafa's consent, and where he sends a change.

Evidence B | College notice

Annual FERPA notice on the registrar's page

Students have the right to inspect their education records, to request corrections and to consent to disclosures, except where the law allows disclosure without consent. Questions go to the Office of the Registrar.

Look closely: Which phrase tells you the law has exceptions? Underline it.

What it shows

The rights belong to the student, but the law allows some sharing without consent.

What it leaves out

Which exceptions this college uses, and whether any of them fit Rafa.

Watch for

Misconception: Students read the notice as a promise of total privacy. Listen for: "So nobody can ever see his grades." Then: Point to "except where the law allows disclosure without consent."

Support

- Give each document on its own half-page with the section headings enlarged.
- Read the notice aloud and pause at "except."
- Cognates: consent (consentimiento), privacy (privacidad), authorization (autorización), exception (excepción), information (información), academic (académico), federal (federal), education (educación).

Key idea: education records

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

FERPA, the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, is a federal law about who can see student education records. It gives parents, and later students, rights over those records. An education record is a record directly about a student that a school or college keeps. Grades, transcripts and schedules can be education records, on paper or stored digitally. Under the general rule, the rights transfer to the student at age 18 or when the student starts college, at any age. The law calls that student an "eligible student."

Helping pay tuition does not, by itself, give those rights back to a parent. Consent is permission a person gives for something specific, such as sharing a record with a named person. For college records, consent is written and says which record, to whom and for what purpose. Rafa's form asks about billing and about grades in separate sections. He can say yes to one section and no to the other. He can also change his choice later in writing.

FERPA also has exceptions, which are situations in which a college may share records without the student's consent. A college may share records with parents if the student is a dependent for federal tax purposes. It may also share them in a health or safety emergency. The U.S. Department of Education says this sharing is allowed, not required, so Rafa should ask his records office what his college does.

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Do the grades question together.

Say this

"For each question on the diagram, who decides: Rafa, the rule or the college?" — Model the grades question together.

Watch for

Misconception: Students name the parents as the deciders. Listen for: "His parents decide because they pay." Then: Point to the diagram: his family can ask, and Rafa decides through written consent.

Support

- Let students label each box Rafa, rule or college before they write sentences.

Heat check

Medium. The missing-perspective question can turn to students' own families.

Cool-down: Keep answers about the characters. No student describes their own family arrangements.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose who holds Rafa's rights and explain why, then fix the two marked lines. About 6 minutes.

Rafa is 18 and in college, and his parents help pay his tuition. Under the general FERPA rule, who holds the rights to his education records?

- [x] A Rafa does.
- [ ] B His parents do, because they help pay the bill.
- [ ] C His parents do, until Rafa signs a form that says otherwise.

Why I chose it

A. The rights transferred when Rafa turned 18 or started college. B mixes up paying with permission, and C wrongly makes a form the trigger for the transfer.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Rafa, (1) your parents are paying so they can probably see everything, that's how it works at most schools. My parents could always see my grades on the portal in high school. FERPA is a privacy law but it's mostly for kids. (2) Once you're 18 it doesn't really matter anymore. If you want to keep your grades private you should just not give them your password. Honestly just ask your parents what they want to see. They're helping you a lot so it's probably fair for them to know how you're doing.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

Your parents can help pay, but seeing grades is a separate section of the form.

Rewrite phrase 2

Once you're 18 or in college, the FERPA rights to your records are yours.

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Short on time: skip this page.

Say this

"Rafa is 18 and in college. Who holds the rights to his records?" — Vote before any discussion.

Watch for

Misconception: Students pick the paying-parents option. Listen for: "They're paying, so it's theirs." Then: Ask what the form would be for if his parents already held the rights.

Support

- Read the options aloud before students choose.

Heat check

■□□ Low.

Answer key

A revised version: Rafa, under the general FERPA rule, the rights to your education records are yours now, because you're 18 and in college. Paying tuition doesn't automatically give your family access to your grades. At schools like the one in the guide, parent access for paying the bill is separate from permission to see academic records. You can decide what to share. Talk with your family about what help you actually want, then ask the records office which form covers that, what it allows and how to change it later. There are exceptions, so ask them which ones your college uses.

Your task

On your own Read the steps and fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 20 minutes.

Investigate "Who owns information about me?" and create an infographic for students turning 18.

Use: Case sources; global context: Identities and relationships.

You'll make: Infographic plus 150-word process journal

Time: 90 minutes

1. Write the statement of inquiry at the top of your planner.
2. Reread Evidence A and B. Note who holds the rights and what the form separates.
3. Rate each source with the checklist: official, institutional or fictional.
4. Plan four panels for your infographic in the planner.

Short on time: 18 min. Give students the four panel headings instead of having them plan their own.

Say this

"Who owns information about you, and when does that change?" — Post the statement of inquiry where students can see it.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the AU guide as the rule for every college. Listen for: "So every college works like that." Then: Ask which source states the federal rule and which shows one university's process.

Support

- Statement of inquiry frame
- Infographic layout template
- Source-evaluation checklist

Panel text

Who holds the rights? Until 18, your parents hold FERPA rights to your school records. At 18 or when you start college, the rights transfer to you. Paying is not seeing: a family can pay the bill without seeing grades, if the forms keep them apart. Exceptions exist, so ask. Before you sign: which record, who gets it and how do you change your mind?

Process journal, about 150 words

I started by asking who owns information about me. The FERPA FAQ gave the rule, but Rafa's form showed how it works in practice. I learned to keep three sources apart: the federal rule, one university's process and a form. For my infographic, I cut legal words and put the change at 18 in the middle, because that is the change students notice. Comparing FERPA with an app's privacy settings reminded me that different rules apply to different information. Controlling a record is part of becoming an adult, and so is deciding what to share with family.

Pacing

Full chapter: 35 min.

Short on time: 30 min. Students write the panel text in class and the journal at home.

Say this

"Hand your infographic plan to a partner. Can they find the change at 18 in five seconds?" — Partners mark the first place they got lost.

Watch for

Misconception: Journals describe the steps but not the thinking. Listen for: "First I read, then I made it." Then: Ask what changed in how they think about sharing information with family.

Heat check

Medium. Reflection on independence can lead students to write about their own families.

Cool-down: Say: "Write about the ideas, not your family's private details."

Answer key

What to notice in the sample:

1. States the rule accurately for peers.
2. Avoids promising total privacy.
3. Shows source evaluation in the journal.
4. Connects the work to identity and independence.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete the sentence frames below. About 12 minutes.

1 What is the smallest amount of access that would give Rafa the help he wants from his family?

Billing access only. It lets his parents view statements and make payments, which is the help they asked for.

2 Why might Rafa want to talk with his family before he checks the box for grades?

The chat shows his parents want to help. Talking first lets him explain his choice before they see a box checked no.

3 Someone says, "Parents can never see college records." How would you revise that claim after reading this case?

At college, parents usually need the student's consent. But a college may share records if the student is a tax dependent.

My take

My claim: ___.

My claim: Rafa should approve billing now and decide about grades after he talks with his family.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The best evidence is the form, because it lists billing and grades as separate choices.

Pacing

Full chapter: 12 min.

Short on time: 6 min. Use question 1 only.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from the form or the notice, not from your own family." — Post the question numbers and hear one answer per question.

Stretch

- Ask what Rafa could share with his family in a conversation, without signing any form.
- Going further: Compare FERPA's general rule with American University's parent-access process. Which parts come from the federal law, and which come from one university's forms?
- Going further: What might a student and a family member who pays the bill each misunderstand about access? Write wording that makes the separate permissions clear without promising total secrecy.
- Going further: Draw two permission guides for a sample student: a flowchart and a short conversation. Test both with a reader who does not know this case.
- Going further: Search your school or district website for its FERPA or "student records" notice. Then write one question about who can see a record, and ask the front office or a counselor. If you are heading to college, look up its parent-access and authorization forms early.

Case 7: Did one complaint get the novel banned?

Overview

Students read a short story in which a group chat claims that one parent's complaint got a novel "banned" from Anika's school library. They compare the claim with the district's reconsideration notice, the committee input form and the ALA's example procedure. They map where the novel is in the review. They then write input to the review committee that is tied to the selection criteria.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- analyze how a literary text presents an idea
- research a real process using official sources
- write a short script for listeners

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- analyze how the Matilda extract presents access to books
- investigate how a reconsideration process works
- present at least two perspectives fairly
- reflect on how access to books connects to personal expression

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Evidence A and B

Materials, continued

- The authorized Matilda extract on the Penguin website
- A script template and a recording device

Case 7: Did one complaint get the novel banned?

A group chat says one parent's complaint got a novel banned, so Mari and Gia check what the school library's notice says.

On your own Read What happened and underline the word in the group chat that may go too far. About 6 minutes.

Your role: You're the one who reads the library notice before anyone replies "banned." New skill: Find what stage a process has reached.

Gia, Mari and Sami talk around a table on a rooftop terrace at sunset.

What happened

On Thursday night, a message about a novel in the library at Anika's high school appears in a group chat. The message says one parent complained, so the novel is now banned and gone from the library. Gia replies that this is censorship.

On Friday, the school library posts a notice about the novel. Mari reads it and compares it with the group chat. Gia deletes her first reply, because she had not read the notice or the novel.

Mari works the counter at the neighborhood bookshop. She switches between print and audio, and she is halfway through the novel on audio. Gia is planning a discussion at the bookshop. First, both of them want to know what stage the library's process has reached.

Your question: Is the novel really banned, and what can people who care about it do next?

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Reconsideration policy A reconsideration policy is a library's written process for reviewing a challenge to a book.

The story: Censorship, full stop?

The message appears late on Thursday. A novel in the library at Anika's high school is gone, it says, because one parent complained. The word it uses is "banned." Gia, who has strong feelings about who gets to decide what people read, replies within minutes: "censorship, full stop." It feels like the right side to be on.

On Friday, the school library posts a notice. Mari works the counter at the neighborhood bookshop, and she has been listening to the novel on audio. She switches between print and audio, and she is about halfway through. She reads the notice twice and then compares it with the chat. The chat says the book is gone from the library. The notice says it stays available during the review. Those cannot both be true.

Gia deletes her first reply. She had not read the notice, and she had not read the book. Now she is planning a discussion at the bookshop, which means she has to get the facts right. Your role in this case is to read the library notice before anyone replies "banned."

Stop and think. Why was "censorship, full stop" an easy reply to send on Thursday night?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (595 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: Censorship, full stop?": Why was "censorship, full stop" an easy reply to send on Thursday night?
2. After "Reading the notice as a process map": The input form asks whether you read the whole book. Why might a committee care?
3. After "Why the stage matters in real disputes": How does calling the same action a "review," a "restriction" or a "ban" change what people think happened?

Reading the notice as a process map

Case 1's skill, finding the original source, leads straight to the notice. It says a request for reconsideration has been received for one title. Under district policy, the title remains available during the review. A committee will read the full work and evaluate it against the district's selection criteria. Written input may be submitted by the 15th, and the committee's decision may be appealed.

Read that way, the notice is a map with a "you are here" marker. A challenge is a formal request to remove or restrict a book or other library material. It starts a review, but on its own it does not remove a book. A reconsideration policy is a library's written process for reviewing a challenge to a book. Selection criteria are the written standards a library uses to decide which materials to include. The process has reached the review stage. Nothing has been removed, and nothing has been decided.

That makes the chat's claim wrong about the present, even if people are right to care about the future. Case 3 showed you that a correction replaces wrong information with accurate information, where people saw the mistake. The reply the chat needs is short: the book is under review, it is still available and input is due on the 15th.

The input form shapes what useful input looks like. It asks for your name and role, whether you read the entire work and which selection criteria your comment addresses. Comments are limited to 300 words. Mari decides to finish the book before she writes. Her own experience with books like this is why she cares, she says, but it is not the policy. She plans to include both.

Stop and think. The input form asks whether you read the whole book. Why might a committee care?

Why the stage matters in real disputes

The American Library Association recommends that libraries adopt a formal reconsideration process, with a committee that reads the whole work (American Library Association, updated January 2018). ALA's guidance is a professional recommendation, not a law, and states have taken different paths. Colorado lawmakers debated a bill requiring clear reconsideration policies (Chalkbeat Colorado, February 10, 2025). In Tennessee, a stricter law changed the review steps, and some books quietly disappeared (Chalkbeat Tennessee, September 17, 2024).

The legal question is harder still. Federal courts disagree about how the First Amendment applies when a public library removes a book (Cahill Gordon and Reindel, September 22, 2025). The answer can depend on where you live. Gia puts it plainly. Right now it is a review, and she is not calling it before it is done.

Stop and think. How does calling the same action a "review," a "restriction" or a "ban" change what people think happened?

Look at the evidence

On your own Read the notice and the input form, and fill in both boxes for each one. About 12 minutes.

Evidence A | Library notice

Reconsideration notice, posted Friday by the school library

A request for reconsideration has been received for one title in the library collection. Under district policy, the title remains available during the review. A review committee will read the full work and evaluate it against the district's selection criteria. Written input may be submitted by the 15th. The committee's decision may be appealed.

Look closely: Which sentence tells you where the book is right now? Underline it.

What it shows	What it leaves out
The title stays available during review. Input is due by the 15th.	Which novel it is, who sits on the committee and what the criteria say.

Evidence B | Input form

Review committee input form, due the 15th

Name and role (student, parent, staff or community member). Have you read the entire work? Yes or No. Which selection criteria does your input address? Comments, 300 words maximum.

Look closely: Who can send input? What does the form ask before your comments?

What it shows	What it leaves out
Students and others can comment. It asks if you read it all and which criteria apply.	How the committee weighs comments, and the full list of selection criteria.

Pacing

Full chapter: 12 min.

Short on time: 10 min. Students fill in the What it shows boxes first and finish the rest if time allows.

Say this

"Find the sentence that says where the book is now. Read it aloud." — Wait for "the title remains available during the review."

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat a review as a ban in slow motion. Listen for: "They're reviewing it, so it's basically banned." Then: Ask what the notice says comes after the review: a decision, then a possible appeal.

Support

- Give each document on its own half-page with the key sentence enlarged.
- Offer the notice as a read-aloud.
- Cognates: reconsideration (reconsideración), criteria (criterios), committee (comité), decision (decisión), appeal (apelación), process (proceso), novel (novela), district (distrito), censorship (censura).

This page continues page 132. The notes for both pages are on the sheet for page 132.

Key idea: book challenges

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

A challenge is a formal request to remove or restrict a book or other library material. A challenge starts a review. On its own, it does not remove a book. A complaint, a temporary change and a final decision can happen at different times. Check which stage a process has reached before you repeat a claim.

A reconsideration policy is a library's written process for reviewing a challenge to a book. The American Library Association (ALA) recommends that libraries adopt one, and its example has a committee read the whole work. Selection criteria are the written standards a library uses to decide which materials to include. ALA's guidance is a professional recommendation, not a law. Each district's adopted policy and the applicable law govern its own process.

Whether removing a book breaks the law is a harder question. Federal courts disagree about how the First Amendment applies when a library removes a book. The answer can depend on where you live. Right now, the notice at Anika's school describes a review, and the novel is still available.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

This is so messed up. One parent complains and (1) now the whole school can't read the book?? That's literally censorship and it's illegal because of the First Amendment. (2) Whoever complained is a terrible person and should mind their own business. Everyone should go to the board meeting and yell at them until they put it back. Books like this are the only ones some of us actually finish. I read part of it last year and it was actually really good. I'm so done with this school honestly.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Answer key

A revised version: Update on the novel: it isn't banned. A parent filed a reconsideration request, which starts a review under the district's policy. The book stays on the shelf while a committee reviews the whole work against the selection criteria, and there's an appeal step after the decision. If you care about it, you can send written input to the committee by the 15th; the librarian has the form. Tie it to the criteria and your own reading, and please don't go after the parent who asked. People are allowed to use the process too.

Other notes on the draft:

- "it's illegal because of the First Amendment" The law here is unsettled and varies. Don't claim a verdict.

Script opening

In Roald Dahl's Matilda, a four-year-old finds the village library on her own. The librarian, Mrs Phelps, helps her choose books, and Matilda reads widely for months. Later, her father tears the pages out of her library copy of The Red Pony, and no one reviews his choice. Today's question: who decides what young people read, and how?

Two perspectives

At Anika's school, a parent has asked the library to reconsider a novel. The parent is worried about one scene with mature content. A student who has read the book sees it differently: it follows a character dealing with isolation who slowly finds people she can trust. The district does not let either of them decide alone. The title stays available while a committee reads the full work, judges it against selection criteria and accepts written input by the 15th. Unlike Matilda's father, the parent is using a process that others can join.

How to assess: The educator uses Language and literature criterion A and Individuals and societies criteria B and D, applying the school's own year-level descriptors.

Proficient looks like:

- Evidence: States the current stage from the policy.
- Reasoning: Separates complaint, review and decision.
- Audience & purpose: Gives a useful participation route.
- Revision: Corrects the stage and removes attacks.

One change I made after feedback

I changed ___ because ___.

I rewrote the parent's perspective in words the parent might use, because my first version made them sound like a villain.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete the sentence frames below. About 12 minutes.

1 Whose reading experience is missing from the crew's discussion of the novel?

The parent's and other students' readings are missing. Mari is only halfway through, and Gia hasn't read it yet.

2 Gia says nobody should go after the parent who asked for the review. Why might that matter for her bookshop discussion?

The parent used the same process the crew wants to use. Attacking them would pull people away from the form Gia wants them to fill out.

3 How does calling the same action a "review," a "restriction" or a "ban" change what people think happened?

Each word names a different stage. "Ban" makes people think it is over, so they may not send input.

My take

My claim: ___.

My claim: the novel is under review, not banned, and people can send input by the 15th.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The best evidence is the notice, because it says the title remains available during the review.

Pacing

Full chapter: 12 min.

Short on time: 7 min. Use question 1 only.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from the notice or the form, not a feeling about the parent." — Post the question numbers and hear one answer per question.

Stretch

- Ask how Gia's bookshop invitation could name the book, the stage and the deadline without naming the parent.
- Going further: Find the institution, its written policy and the decision process before you make a claim about rights. Which of the three does the district notice tell you about?
- Going further: What problem does a proposed restriction on a book claim to solve? Which readers' experiences or other options are missing from that proposal?
- Going further: Design a library notice that explains where a book review stands, and write a short guide for interviewing a librarian. Test whether a student can name the next document to ask for.
- Going further: Ask your school librarian how book challenges are handled. Find the written policy on the district website, and learn whether students can give input during a review. If a review is happening, read the whole book before you comment.
- Find your district's reconsideration policy and summarize its stages
- Research how your state's laws about school library materials have changed recently

In this case, a group chat claims one parent's complaint got a novel banned from a school library. Your student compared that claim with the library's notice and learned how a book review works.

Content note

This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read a short story in which a publisher sends Gia a free novel to review. Her video tags the publisher but never says the copy was free. They compare the publisher's email, the video script and Caio's edit notes with the FTC's disclosure guidance for social media. They then rewrite the video's opening and caption so that a viewer watching with the sound off learns about the free copy.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- explain a term in words a younger student would understand
- plan a short activity in steps
- connect a case to a global context

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- analyze how a recommendation video persuades
- explain a material connection and a clear disclosure accurately
- plan a 5-minute mini-lesson with an activity for younger students

Objectives, continued

- connect the inquiry to the global context of personal and cultural expression

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Evidence A, B, C and D
- The statement of inquiry and the mini-lesson template

Case 8: Is it a recommendation or an ad?

Gia loves a novel that a publisher sent her for free, and her video review does not mention the free copy yet.

On your own Read What happened. Underline what the publisher sent Gia and what it asked for. About 5 minutes.

Gia, Caio and Mari set up a camera in a bright studio.

Your role: You're the viewer with the sound off who checks the first three seconds. New skill: Spot and disclose a material connection.

What happened

At 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Caio finishes editing Gia's short video review of a new novel. Gia made the review for BookTok, where people recommend books on TikTok. She stayed up until 2 a.m. to finish the novel, and she loves it.

Two weeks ago, the book's publisher emailed Gia. The publicity team offered her a free copy of its spring novel for review. The email said she did not have to post, but it asked for a tag if she did. In the first cut, Gia never says the book was free. The only sign of the publisher is a tag in the caption below the video.

Caio wants to watch the cut the way a stranger would, on a phone with the sound off. He wants to know whether the first three seconds say the book was free. Gia wants to keep her honest opinion in the video. She also wants viewers to know how she got the book.

Your question: Do Gia's viewers need to know the book was free, and how should she tell them?

Pacing

Full chapter: 5 min.

Short on time: 4 min. Students read What happened on their own.

Say this

Watch for

Misconception: Students decide a free copy makes the review a lie. Listen for: "She only likes it because it was free." Then: Ask what the evidence says about her opinion. Nothing shows it is false; the free copy is context.

Support

- Read What happened aloud while students follow along.

Key terms

On your own Read each key term and its example. Then write your first guess in the box. About 6 minutes.

Material connection A material connection is a relationship with a brand, like payment or a free product, that viewers might not expect.

En español: conexión material

In this case: The publisher sent Gia a free copy of its spring novel for review. That free copy is a material connection.

Disclosure A disclosure is a clear statement that tells people about a relationship or fact they would want to know.

En español: divulgación

In this case: Gia's first cut has no disclosure. The tag in the caption names the publisher but never says the book was free.

Endorsement An endorsement is a message that shares someone's opinion or experience of a product to promote it.

En español: respaldo

In this case: Gia's video review promotes the novel with her own opinion: she stayed up until 2 a.m. to finish it.

Who is involved

Gia
Made the video review

"I stayed up till 2 a.m. finishing it. That part's real. The publisher sending it free is also real, and right now it's nowhere in the video."

Caio
Editing Gia's video

"The publisher's email literally says 'free copy for review.' That's the sentence. It's just not in the video yet."

Short on time: 4 min. Read the key terms aloud. Skip Who is involved.

Say this

"Which key term names the free copy? Which one names what Gia still has to add?" — Wait for material connection, then disclosure.

Watch for

Misconception: Students hear "material" as physical stuff, like paper. Listen for: "The material is the book." Then: Reread the definition: a material connection is a relationship with a brand, such as a free product.

Support

- Pair students who share a language to explain each term in their own words.

A tag is not a disclosure

On your own Read the passage. At each Stop and think box, pause and answer the question in your head or with a partner. About 5 minutes.

Words to know

- Material connection: A material connection is a relationship with a brand, like payment or a free product, that viewers might not expect.
- Disclosure: A disclosure is a clear statement that tells people about a relationship or fact they would want to know.
- Endorsement: An endorsement is a message that shares someone's opinion or experience of a product to promote it.
- Framing: Framing is choosing which parts of a situation a message brings forward.

The story: Watching on mute

Gia stayed up until 2 a.m. finishing a new novel, and the next day she filmed a review for BookTok, the part of TikTok where people recommend books. Her enthusiasm is real. On Saturday at 1:30 p.m., Caio finishes the edit and sends it back. Gia is ready to post.

Caio is not. He wants to watch the cut once the way a stranger would, on a phone with the sound off. His question is specific. In the first three seconds, where does it say the book was free?

The book was free. Two weeks earlier, the publisher's publicity team emailed Gia: "We'd be glad to send you a free copy of our spring novel for review. There's no obligation to post, but if you do, we'd appreciate a tag." The first cut opens with Gia saying, "You guys, I have to tell you about this book because I literally could not put it down!" There is no on-screen text. The caption reads "@publisher #booktok."

Gia points to the tag. Caio's edit notes answer her. A tag is a brand name, not a relationship. The caption also sits below the video, where most people will not open it. In this case, you are the viewer with the sound off who checks those first three seconds.

Stop and think. Caio says a tag is a brand name, not a relationship. What is the difference?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (595 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: Watching on mute": Caio says a tag is a brand name, not a relationship. What is the difference?
2. After "Opinion, relationship and disclosure": Why does Gia cut "best book of the year" even though she loves the book?
3. After "What the FTC and researchers say": Some viewers may treat a disclosed review as just an ad. How could Gia keep their trust?

Opinion, relationship and disclosure

An endorsement is a message that shares someone's opinion or experience of a product to promote it. Gia's review is one, and her opinion is honest. A material connection is a relationship with a brand, like payment or a free product, that viewers might not expect. The free copy is a material connection. Knowing about it gives viewers context. It does not prove that Gia's opinion is false.

A disclosure is a clear statement that tells people about a relationship or fact they would want to know. Case 1 gave you the idea of framing, choosing which parts of a situation a message brings forward. The first cut frames the review around Gia's excitement and leaves the relationship out of view. Caio proposes a three-second fix: "Quick heads-up, the publisher sent me this free." It is spoken and shown on screen, then followed by her hook.

Gia makes a second change that viewers might never notice. She had thought about calling it the best book of the year. Out of the ones she happened to read? She decides to say only what she can support: two nights, and she could not put it down. A disclosure answers one question, which is how she got the book. Viewers can still ask what supports her claims about the book itself.

Caio's test is simple. Someone who has not seen the video watches once, on mute. Then he asks, "Was the book free?" If they have to think about it, the edit is not done. A comment on another creator's review shows the risk of skipping this step: "wait was this sponsored?? kind of feels like an ad now."

Stop and think. Why does Gia cut "best book of the year" even though she loves the book?

What the FTC and researchers say

The Federal Trade Commission's guidance for influencers says a video disclosure belongs in the video itself, ideally both spoken and on screen (Federal Trade Commission, updated December 3, 2024). In November 2023, the FTC warned two trade associations and a dozen influencers about posts promoting aspartame or sugar. The agency said disclosures must be in the video, not buried in a caption (Federal Trade Commission, November 14, 2023).

Research suggests disclosure helps young viewers. A study of 3,149 high school students in Taiwan found that full sponsorship disclosure helped teens recognize a post as an ad (Lin et al., PLOS One, May 27, 2026).

Stop and think. Some viewers may treat a disclosed review as just an ad. How could Gia keep their trust?

Evidence A | Email

The publisher's email

"Hi Gia, we love your book reviews! We'd be glad to send you a free copy of our spring novel for review. There's no obligation to post, but if you do, we'd appreciate a tag. Best, the publicity team"

Look closely: What did the publisher give, and what did it ask for?

What it shows	What it leaves out
A free copy for review, and a request for a tag if she posts.	Whether Gia has any other relationship with the publisher.

Evidence B | Video script and caption

Gia's first cut

Spoken: "You guys, I have to tell you about this book because I literally could not put it down!" On-screen text: none. Caption below the video: "@publisher #booktok

Look closely: Where in this video would a viewer learn about the free copy?

How many of Gia's viewers watch without sound.

Evidence D | Viewer comment

A comment on another creator's review

Key idea: material connections

On your own Read the key idea and the FTC guide. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

An endorsement is a message that shares someone's opinion or experience of a product to promote it. Gia's video review is an endorsement, and her opinion in it is honest. A material connection is a relationship with a brand, like payment or a free product, that viewers might not expect. The free copy from the publisher is a material connection. Knowing about it gives viewers context, but it does not prove that Gia's opinion is false.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is a federal agency. Its Endorsement Guides explain how a federal law against deceptive practices applies to endorsements. A disclosure is a clear statement that tells people about a relationship or fact they would want to know. For a video, the FTC says the disclosure belongs in the video itself, ideally both spoken and on screen. A tag in the caption only names the brand, and it sits below the video.

A disclosure answers one question: how did Gia get the book? Viewers can still ask what supports her claims about the book itself. A clear disclosure does not make every claim in a review accurate. Do not accuse a real creator of hiding a sponsorship based on a guess.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose the change that makes the relationship clearest. Then fix the two marked phrases. About 8 minutes.

Gia loves the novel the publisher sent her for free. Which change to her video makes the relationship clearest to viewers?

- ☐ A Tag the publisher in the caption.
- ☑ B Say and show at the start of the video that the publisher sent her the book for free.
- ☐ C Leave the video as it is, since the email said there was no obligation to post.

Why I chose it

B. It puts the relationship in the video, spoken and on screen. A only names the brand below the video. C ignores that the book was free.

A revised version: On screen and said aloud: "Quick heads-up: the publisher sent me this book for free to review." Then: "Okay, you guys, I could not put this down. The two sisters felt real to me, and the ending caught me completely off guard. If you like slow-burn family stories, this one's for you. If you need a fast plot, maybe not. I finished it in two nights." Caption: "Publisher sent me a free copy for review. #ad #booktok." The disclosure is in the first three seconds, readable without sound, and the claim is about my own reading.

Your task

On your own Read the steps. Fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 22 minutes.

Investigate “How do brands shape what we trust online?” and create a media-literacy mini-lesson for younger students.

Use: Case sources; global context: Personal and cultural expression.

You’ll make: 5-minute mini-lesson plan plus reflection

Time: 90 minutes

1. Write the inquiry question at the top of the planner.
2. List three details from the evidence that show how Gia’s review persuades.
3. Plan a 5-minute mini-lesson: a hook, one explanation, one activity and a check.
4. Design the activity so younger students find a disclosure in a sample post.
5. Write the mini-lesson plan on the Your draft page.
6. Write a reflection of about 100 words that connects the case to the global context.
7. Check your work with the questions on the Check your work page.

Inquiry question

How do brands shape what we trust online?

How Gia’s review persuades: three details

1. She speaks straight to viewers: “You guys.” 2. She shares a strong feeling: she could not put it down. 3. The only brand sign is a tag below the video.

Pacing

Full chapter: 22 min.

Short on time: 22 min.

Say this

“Your audience is younger than you. What is the one habit you want them to leave with?” — Push for a habit they can use in five seconds.

Watch for

Misconception: The mini-lesson tells younger students that sponsored reviews are lies. Listen for: “Ads are fake, so don’t trust them.” Then: Reread the key idea: a free copy is context, not proof that an opinion is false.

Support

- Statement of inquiry frame

The activity for younger students

Show two versions of a post on mute. Students point to the words that say the product was free.

Notes

This page continues page 158.

Standards

Language and Literature A: Analysing — Criterion A in MYP language and literature: analyze how texts create meaning, with evidence. In this case: Students analyze how a recommendation video persuades.

Language and Literature C: Producing text — Criterion C in MYP language and literature: produce texts that show thought and deliberate choices for an audience. In this case: Students produce a revised script with a clear disclosure.

Individuals and Societies D: Thinking critically — Criterion D in MYP individuals and societies: analyze concepts, issues and sources, and weigh different perspectives and their implications. In this case: Students evaluate the effect of brand relationships on trust.

D2.Civ.6.9-12 — Critique the relationships among governments, civil society and markets. In this case: Students critique relationships among creators, platforms, brands and regulators.

D3.2.9-12 — Judge a source's credibility by looking at how experts value it. In this case: Students evaluate the credibility of a recommendation given its source relationship.

Answer key

A strong response:

- Accurate content
- Age-appropriate activity
- Evaluates sources
- Reflection connects to the global context

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes. Use your planner from the page before. About 25 minutes.

Your 5-minute mini-lesson plan

Minute 1, hook: play a book review on mute and ask, “Was the book free?” Minutes 2 and 3, explain: a material connection is a relationship with a brand, like a free product. A disclosure says it clearly, where people will notice. A tag that only names a brand is not enough. Minute 4, activity: students compare two versions of the post and point to the words that say the book was free. Minute 5, check: each student finishes the sentence “I can like the review and still want to know...” out loud.

Reflection on the global context, about 100 words

Our global context is personal and cultural expression. Gia’s review is personal expression: she stayed up until 2 a.m. and loved the book. A business relationship sits behind it, because the publisher sent the book free. Younger students see reviews like this every day and may never look below the video. My mini-lesson teaches one habit: look for the relationship in the video itself. The statement of inquiry says audiences need clear signals. A disclosure is that signal, and it still leaves the viewer free to like the book.

Pacing

Full chapter: 25 min.

Short on time: 24 min. Students finish the reflection at home.

Say this

“Time your plan out loud. Does it fit in five minutes?” — Partners time each other’s plans.

Watch for

Misconception: The reflection retells the plan and skips the global context. Listen for: “In my lesson, first we...” Then: Ask where personal expression and a brand relationship meet in Gia’s video.

Heat check

Answer key

What to notice in the sample:

1. Explains the key term accurately, in words younger students can follow.
2. Includes the activity where younger students find a disclosure.
3. Connects personal expression to the commercial relationship in the global context.

Check your work

On your own Answer the Check your work questions and mark your level in each rubric row. Then write one change you made. About 8 minutes.

Is your mini-lesson accurate about material connections and disclosures?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Does it include an activity where younger students find a disclosure?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Does it fit in 5 minutes?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Does your reflection connect the case to the global context?	☑ Yes	☐ No

How your work is scored

Mark one box in each row.

Skill	Beginning	Developing	Proficient	Advanced
Evidence	☐ No disclosure or claim support.	☐ Tag only.	☐ Names the relationship clearly.	☐ Names the relationship and supports the product claim.
Reasoning	☐ Treats opinion as a substitute for disclosure.	☐ Discloses but can't explain why.	☐ Explains why placement and clarity matter.	☐ Distinguishes opinion, relationship and product claim.
Audience & purpose	☐ Ignores viewers.	☐ Assumes viewers read captions.	☐ Works for sound-off viewers.	☐ Works across channels with consistent wording.
Revision	☐ No change.	☐ Adds a hashtag.	☐ Adds spoken and on-screen disclosure.	☐ Explains each placement choice for different viewers.

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Skip the rubric self-score.

Say this

"Mark your level honestly. Then make one change and say why." — Ask for one moved disclosure or one cut claim.

Watch for

Misconception: Students add a hashtag and call it done. Listen for: "I added #ad." Then: Point to the Revision row: a hashtag alone is the second level. Ask where a viewer on mute would see it.

Heat check

■□□ Low.

Answer key

How to assess: The educator uses Language and literature criteria A and C and Individuals and societies criterion D, applying the school's own year-level descriptors.

Proficient looks like:

- Evidence: Names the relationship clearly.
- Reasoning: Explains why placement and clarity matter.
- Audience & purpose: Works for sound-off viewers.
- Revision: Adds spoken and on-screen disclosure.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then finish My take. About 10 minutes.

1 Would knowing the book was free change how much you trust Gia's review? Why or why not?

It changes how I weigh it, not whether I believe her. The free copy is context, and her two nights of reading still count.

2 Some viewers may treat a review with a disclosure as just an ad. How could Gia keep their trust?

Disclose in the first seconds, then keep claims to her own experience. Cutting "best book of the year" makes the rest easier to believe.

3 Who should make sure disclosures are clear: creators, brands or platforms?

All three have a part. Gia controls her words, the publisher can ask for a disclosure, and a platform can offer a label. Gia speaks to viewers first.

My take

My claim: ___.

Gia should disclose the free copy in the first three seconds, spoken and on screen.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The first cut, because nothing in the video itself says the book was free.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Discuss question 1 only.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from the evidence, not with a real creator you follow." — Post the question numbers and take one answer per question.

Stretch

- Ask what a disclosure checklist for a school media club would include, and who would check it.
- Going further: What does a viewer need to know about how Gia got the book? Plan one way to check that viewers understood the disclosure. A view count cannot tell you that.
- Going further: Design two versions of a sponsored post, with the disclosure in a different place in each. Keep the relationship equally clear in both versions.
- Going further: Find the line in the evidence that shows the book was free. Before you call any real post sponsored, look for that kind of evidence. Do not accuse a real creator based on a guess.
- Going further: The next time you see a recommendation, look for a disclosure in the video itself. Talk with a trusted adult before you accept any brand deal. If you post reviews, practice a clear spoken line, such as "They sent me this for free."
- Analyze three real posts from brands' own accounts (not individual creators) for disclosure
- Compare FTC guidance with another country's advertising standards body

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

Her opinion is honest, so the free copy does not matter.

I would change my mind if ___.

A viewer on mute could already tell the book was free from the first cut.

Notes

This page continues page 163.

Case 8: Is it a recommendation or an ad?

In this case, a publisher sends Gia a free novel, and her video review does not say the book was free. Your student read the email and the video script, then rewrote the opening so viewers learn about the free copy.

Questions to talk about

1. How can you tell when a video review is also an ad?
2. Where in a video would you look for a note that a product was free?
3. Why might a review still be honest if the reviewer got the product for free?

Content note

This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read a story in which Dec, who turns 18 in October, looks past the headline race on his sample ballot. He finds a school board race, a city council race and a transit bond. They compare the ballot with a creator's voter guide that mixes facts with picks, and they read Vote.gov's guidance for people 18 and under. They then write a personal checklist of official sources for registration, deadlines and their own sample ballot.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- explain a fact to classmates in plain words
- plan a short visual text in panels
- connect a case to a global context

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- explain accurately what three contests on a sample ballot decide
- show how local elections touch daily life
- communicate a nonpartisan infographic for classmates
- connect the inquiry to the global context of fairness and development

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Evidence A, B, C and D
- The statement of inquiry and an infographic template

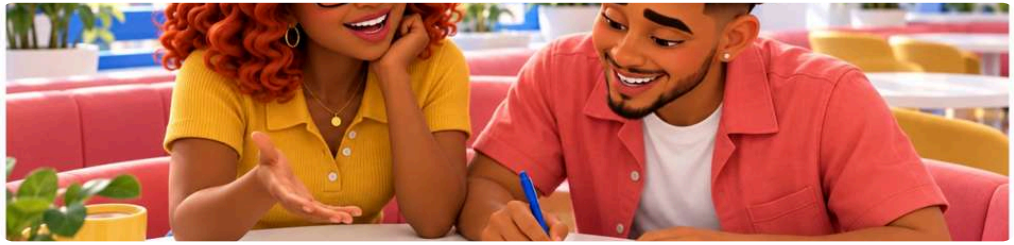
Case 9: What is on your ballot, and where do you check?

Dec turns 18 before the election on November 3, 2026, and his feed covers only one race on his ballot.

On your own Read What happened. Underline the contests Mateo finds below the big race. About 5 minutes.

Your role: You're the one who finds Dec's official sample ballot before anyone tells him how to vote.
New skill: Check an official source for your own area.



Mateo and Gia work in a notebook at a café table.

What happened

It is Sunday at the library desk. Dec turns 18 in October, before the general election on November 3, 2026. His feed is full of posts about one big race. Mateo and Gia are helping him find out what else is on his ballot.

They look at a sample ballot for the November election. The front shows the big race from Dec's feed. The second page has more: a school board race, a city council seat and Measure T, a transit bond. Mateo notices that nobody is posting about Measure T.

A creator's voter guide is also going around. It says registration closes "the 14th," but it never names a state. It also tells people how to vote on the school board race and Measure T. Gia is writing a reminder for the group chat.

Mateo has his own problem. He may still be registered at his mom's address in New Bedford, Massachusetts. Dec says he does not need anyone to pick for him. He needs to know what is on his ballot and whether he is registered in time.

Your question: What is on Dec's ballot, and where should he check his own information?

Pacing

Full chapter: 5 min.

Short on time: 4 min. Students read What happened on their own.

Say this

"Dec's feed is full of one race. What else do you think is on his ballot?" — List guesses on the board. Keep them for the sample ballot.

Watch for

Misconception: Students think a ballot holds only the big national races. Listen for: "It's just president or Congress." Then: Point to the second page of the sample ballot in the story: school board, city council, Measure T.

Support

- Read What happened aloud while students follow along.
- Explain that a measure is a question voters decide directly, like Measure T.

Sample ballot A sample ballot is a preview of the contests and measures that will appear on your ballot.

En español: boleta de muestra

In this case: Dec's sample ballot lists a school board race, a city council seat and Measure T below the big race from his feed.

Voter guide A voter guide is a document that explains or recommends choices in an election.

En español: guía para votantes

In this case: A creator's voter guide mixes one deadline with two picks: "vote Candidate B" and "Measure T: yes, obviously."

Registration Registration is signing up with your election office so that you are on the list of people who can vote.

En español: inscripción electoral

In this case: Dec turns 18 in October and needs to know whether he is registered in time. The guide's deadline names no state.

Jurisdiction A jurisdiction is the place or area where a particular government or rule has authority.

En español: jurisdicción

In this case: Mateo may still be registered in New Bedford, Massachusetts. A different place can mean a different ballot and a different deadline.

The story: The second page

Dec turns 18 in October, a few weeks before the general election on November 3, 2026. If his feed is any guide, only one race matters. Every post is about the same big contest. On Sunday at the library desk, Mateo and Gia help him look past it.

They pull up a sample ballot for the November election. The front page matches the feed. The second page does not. It lists a school board race, a city council seat and Measure T, a transit bond. Mateo says what everyone is thinking: nobody is posting about Measure T.

A creator's voter guide is circulating in their group chat: "All you need for November!! Registration closes the 14th. School board: vote Candidate B, the only one who cares about students. Measure T: yes, obviously." Dec reads it and says he does not need anyone picking for him. He has two questions. What is on his ballot, and is he registered in time?

Gia is writing a reminder for the chat, and Mateo has an uncomfortable realization. He moved from New Bedford for college, and he may still be registered at his mom's address in Massachusetts. Your role in this case is to find Dec's official sample ballot before anyone tells him how to vote.

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (612 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: The second page": Why does the guide's deadline fail as a fact even if it happens to be right somewhere?
2. After "Sorting what can be checked": Which contest on the sample ballot could affect Dec's school or his bus?
3. After "Young voters and the rules": When could a voter guide that recommends choices help a first-time voter?

Stop and think. Why does the guide's deadline fail as a fact even if it happens to be right somewhere?

Sorting what can be checked

A sample ballot is a preview of the contests and measures that will appear on your ballot. A voter guide is a document that explains or recommends choices in an election. The sample ballot is the original source, the Case 1 skill, and the guide is someone's reading of it. Case 1 also taught you that a claim is a statement that can be checked with evidence. The guide contains one checkable claim, the registration deadline, and it cannot be checked because it never names a state. Gia's question is exact: whose 14th?

Case 8 gave you another question to ask, about a material connection, a relationship with a brand, like payment or a free product, that viewers might not expect. The guide does not say who wrote it or who funds it. That does not make its picks wrong. It does mean Dec should treat them as opinions from an unknown source.

The ballot also teaches something about power. A jurisdiction is the place or area where a particular government or rule has authority. Your address decides which contests appear on your ballot, and a friend two districts over may see different local races. A school board and a city council have different jobs. Before researching candidates, Dec can ask which office has power over the issue he cares about, such as his school or his bus.

Registration is signing up with your election office so that you are on the list of people who can vote. Deadlines vary by state, so Gia leaves the date out of her reminder. Her message is short: check your registration and your own sample ballot at Vote.gov, deadlines depend on your state, and please don't post your address.

Stop and think. Which contest on the sample ballot could affect Dec's school or his bus?

Young voters and the rules

The Twenty-Sixth Amendment protects the right to vote for citizens 18 and older (National Constitution Center, no date listed). Its roots go back to World War II and the slogan "old enough to fight, old enough to vote" (The National WWII Museum, October 27, 2020). Most states now allow teens to preregister before 18, and some let 17-year-olds vote in primaries (Ballotpedia News, September 26, 2025).

Young people do vote. About 47 percent of 18- to 29-year-olds voted in 2024, with big differences by state (CIRCLE, April 14, 2025). Anika, who is 16, is checking whether she can preregister. She can also learn what the school board decides before she can vote on it.

This page continues page 169. The notes for both pages are on the sheet for page 169.

Key idea: sample ballots

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

A sample ballot is a preview of the contests and measures that will appear on your ballot. A measure is a question that voters decide directly, such as Measure T. A voter guide is a document that explains or recommends choices in an election. The two have different purposes. Start with the ballot for your address, and then check a guide's facts apart from its picks.

Your address decides which contests appear on your ballot. A jurisdiction is the place or area where a particular government or rule has authority. A friend two districts over may see different local races. A school board and a city council have different jobs, so each one makes different decisions. Before you research candidates, find out which office has power over the issue you care about.

Registration is signing up with your election office so that you are on the list of people who can vote. Rules and deadlines vary by state, so do not copy a friend's deadline. The Twenty-Sixth Amendment protects the right to vote for citizens 18 and older. Most states let people preregister before they turn 18. Several states let 17-year-olds vote in a primary if they will be 18 by the general election.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what you would do with a friend's sample ballot. Then fix the two marked phrases. About 8 minutes.

You live at a new address. A friend sends their sample ballot and says, "Just use this one." What should you do?

- ☐ A Use it, because you and your friend live in the same state.
- ☑ B Check your registration and find the official sample ballot for your address.
- ☐ C Use a creator's voter guide instead, since it covers the whole election.

Why I chose it

B. Addresses in one state can fall in different districts, so A may give the wrong local races. C starts with opinions before the facts.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Guys the election is coming up and it's a big one!! (1) Registration closes on the 14th so do it now. Here's the voter guide I use, it tells you exactly who to vote for so you don't have to research. Also (2) drop your addresses and I'll check if you're registered for you. Only the big race really matters anyway, the rest is small stuff. My cousin in another state said the same deadline works for her too, so just use mine. Let's go vote!!

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

A revised version: Election reminder: registration deadlines and voting options depend on your state, so check yours at vote.gov, which links to your state's election office. You can also look up your sample ballot for your own address there. It shows everything you'll vote on, including school board and local measures, not just the big race. If you use a voter guide, check the facts it gives and remember its picks are someone's opinion. Under 18? Many states let you preregister, and some let 17-year-olds vote in primaries. Check your state's rules. No need to share your address here.

Reflection, about 100 words

Our global context is fairness and development. A fair election depends on people knowing what they are voting on, and many voters, like Dec, see only the big race in their feed. Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then finish My take. About 10 minutes.

1. Which contest on the sample ballot could affect Dec's school or his bus?

The Board of Education, District 3 race for his school, and Measure T for transit. Both sit below the big race.

2. Mateo may still be registered in New Bedford. Why might his ballot differ from Dec's?

A ballot depends on your address. If Mateo is registered in Massachusetts, he gets that state's contests and deadline, not Dec's.

3. Anika is 16. How can she be part of this election before she can vote?

She can check her state's preregistration rule and learn what the school board decides before she can vote on it.

4. When could a voter guide that recommends choices help a first-time voter?

When it labels its picks as opinion and gets its facts right. A reader can check the facts and weigh the picks separately.

Dec should find his own sample ballot and registration status through official sources before he reads any guide.

Content note

This case involves disability access on a city route. No student should share their own disability or health information, so keep the discussion on Sami's trip.

This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read a story in which construction blocks the curb ramp on Sami's route to a city workshop, and the detour points to stairs. They examine the sign, the route map and the workshop flyer. They use the Department of Justice's Title II guide to see which part of the ADA applies. They then audit the whole trip and write a message to the city's ADA coordinator.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- record observations precisely, with the place and time
- ask for consent before recording or quoting a person
- connect a case to a global context

Objectives

Objectives, continued

- plan and conduct a consent-based route audit that covers physical, information and communication access
- evaluate the limits of their own observations
- reflect on fairness and development in a 200-word reflection

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Evidence A, B and C
- The statement of inquiry, an audit checklist and consent guidance
- Access to a public space near school, visited with an adult

Case 10: Whose job is it to fix the blocked route?

A construction detour sends Sami toward stairs on her way to a city workshop, and her bus comes in 12 minutes.

On your own Read What happened. Underline where the detour sign points. About 5 minutes.

Your role: You're the one who writes down the corner, the time and the sign before Mateo posts. New skill: Report a problem to the office responsible.

Sami, Jordy and Mateo plan with picture cards on a whiteboard.

What happened

It is Tuesday, 4:05 p.m., at the corner of Elm Street and 4th Avenue. Sami is on her way to a free community workshop run by the city's parks department. It starts at 5. Sami uses a manual wheelchair, and her bus comes in 12 minutes. Mateo is with her.

The curb ramp on the northeast corner is blocked by construction fencing. A sign reads "SIDEWALK CLOSED AHEAD. PEDESTRIAN DETOUR." Its arrow points to a path that begins with a flight of stairs. That detour does not work for Sami.

Mateo already has the sign on video, and his first idea is to post it. Sami asks whether the video gets her on the bus. It does not, so Mateo puts the camera down. He checks the other corners for a ramp while Sami looks up the next bus stop.

Later, they want to report the corner to the city. Mateo wonders whether the city is breaking the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). First, they need to know what one video can show and which office is responsible.

The story: The camera goes down

At 4:05 p.m. on a Tuesday, Sami and Mateo reach the corner of Elm Street and 4th Avenue. She is on her way to a free community workshop run by the city's parks department, starting at 5. She uses a manual wheelchair. Her bus arrives in 12 minutes.

The northeast curb ramp is behind construction fencing. A sign reads "SIDEWALK CLOSED AHEAD. PEDESTRIAN DETOUR," and its arrow points to a path that begins with a flight of stairs. Sami's summary is four short sentences in the group chat: the ramp is fenced off, the detour sign points to stairs, so no, bus in 12.

Mateo had the sign on video before he even thought about it. He asks whether she wants him to post it. Sami answers with a question: does that get her on the bus? He admits it does not. He puts the camera down and checks the other corners for a ramp while she looks up the next stop. Sami also sets a rule for the future. He can film the ramp and the sign. If he wants to film her, he asks first, and ideally not while she is busy missing a bus.

In this case, your role is to write down the corner, the time and the sign before anyone posts. The report comes later, once Sami is on her way.

Stop and think. Sami decides what the next 12 minutes need. Why should that decision be hers?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (623 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: The camera goes down": Sami decides what the next 12 minutes need. Why should that decision be hers?
2. After "Sizing the claim to the evidence": Which barrier on Sami's trip would a photo miss?
3. After "What the law and history add": Why is "the city is breaking the ADA" a weaker report than a specific question?

Sizing the claim to the evidence

Mateo's next thought is legal: is the city breaking the Americans with Disabilities Act? That is a claim, the Case 1 term for a statement that something is true that you can check with evidence. The evidence is narrow. The sign went up Monday. Mateo recorded it Tuesday at 4:05 p.m. The route map shows five stages: home to the corner, the blocked northeast ramp, the bus stop, the bus to the parks department building and the workshop entrance and room. Nobody has checked that last stage yet. One corner and one sign cannot show whether another accessible route exists or whether the whole city is out of compliance.

A barrier is something that blocks or limits a person from taking part. Sami meets one at the ramp. The workshop flyer could be a second one. It says "All welcome!" and "Call the front desk," but it gives no information about accessible entrances or how to request access.

Program access is an ADA rule that a city's services, taken as a whole, must be usable by people with disabilities. Access covers the whole visit: finding the information, getting there, going in, taking part and leaving. That is why a good report looks at all five stages, not just the corner.

Case 9 introduced jurisdiction, the place or area where a particular government or rule has authority. Here it answers "whose job is it?" The city runs the workshop and manages the street. An ADA coordinator is the staff member a government names to handle disability access questions and complaints. Mateo puts it simply. The report goes to the city's ADA coordinator, not his followers. It lists the corner, the time, the sign and one question: is there an accessible detour, and how long will this stay blocked? He sends it only if Sami says yes.

Stop and think. Which barrier on Sami's trip would a photo miss?

What the law and history add

The Justice Department explains that Title II of the ADA covers state and local government programs and services. Its guide for cities also covers keeping curb ramps usable during street work (U.S. Department of Justice, updated February 24, 2020).

The ADA itself came from protest. On March 12, 1990, activists climbed the Capitol steps to show what stairs do to access, and the law was signed that July (HISTORY, July 24, 2020). Thirty-five years later, NPR looked at what the law changed and what barriers people still report (NPR, July 22, 2025).

Stop and think. Why is "the city is breaking the ADA" a weaker report than a specific question?

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document. For each one, write what it shows and what it leaves out. About 10 minutes.

Evidence A | Construction sign

The detour sign

The sign reads "SIDEWALK CLOSED AHEAD. PEDESTRIAN DETOUR." Its arrow points to a path that begins with a flight of stairs. The sign went up on Monday. Mateo recorded it on Tuesday at 4:05 p.m.

Look closely: Where does the arrow point? Who could not use that path?

What it shows	What it leaves out
The posted detour begins with stairs, so a wheelchair user cannot follow it.	Whether an accessible route exists, and how long the ramp stays blocked.

Evidence B | Route map

Sami and Mateo's route map

1. Home to the corner of Elm Street and 4th Avenue: sidewalk clear. 2. Northeast curb ramp: blocked by construction fencing. 3. Bus stop: next bus in 12 minutes. 4. Bus to the parks department building. 5. Workshop entrance and room: not yet checked.

Look closely: Which stage is blocked, and which stage has nobody checked?

What it shows	What it leaves out
Five stages. The blocked ramp is stage 2, and the bus comes in 12 minutes.	Whether the workshop entrance and room work for Sami. Nobody checked.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 8 min. Students fill in only the What it shows boxes.

Say this

"Find the stage on the route map that nobody has checked. Why does it matter?" — Wait for stage 5, the workshop entrance and room.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the video as proof about the whole route. Listen for: "The video proves the city is breaking the law." Then: Ask which stage the video shows. It shows stage 2, at one time.

Support

- Give each document on its own half-page.
- Provide a printed route map with the five stages labeled.
- Cognates: access (acceso), barrier (barrera), program (programa), route (ruta), ramp (rampa), coordinator (coordinador), construction (construcción), observation (observación).

Evidence C | Flyer

The workshop flyer

The flyer reads “Free Community Workshop Series. Tuesdays, 5—7 p.m., Parks Department Annex. All welcome! Questions? Call the front desk.” It gives no information about accessible entrances or how to request access.

Look closely: What does the flyer tell someone who needs to request access?

What it shows

The parks department runs the workshop and invites everyone.

What it leaves out

How to request access, and whom to contact about it.

What is still missing from the evidence?

Whether an accessible detour exists and how it is marked, how long the ramp stays blocked, and whether the workshop entrance and room are accessible.

Key idea: program access

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

Program access is an ADA rule that a city's services, taken as a whole, must be usable by people with disabilities. The U.S. Department of Justice explains that Title II of the ADA covers state and local government programs and services. Program access generally does not require every older building to be accessible. For example, a city can relocate a service to an accessible place. Existing buildings and new construction have different requirements.

Access covers the whole visit: finding the information, getting there, going in, taking part and leaving. A barrier is something that blocks or limits a person from taking part. Sami meets one barrier at the curb ramp. The workshop flyer could be another, because it gives no way to request access. The Justice Department's guide for cities also covers curb ramps during street work.

One video of one corner cannot show whether a city is following the law. It can show what happened, where and when. An ADA coordinator is the staff member a government names to handle disability access questions and complaints. That office can say whether an accessible detour exists. Before you report a barrier someone else faces, ask them what they want said.

Professional standards

"respect and assist all persons in their dealings with public organizations"

In plain words: ASPA members in public service agree to help every person use public programs and services.

Question: The parks flyer says "All welcome!" with no access information. What should it add so Sami can request access?

Your answer

The flyer should add ___, so that ___.

The flyer should add how to request access and whom to contact, so that Sami can ask before she travels.

Pacing

Say this

"Which claim can you make today, and which one needs more facts?" — Model the photo row together.

Watch for

Misconception: Students mark the photo as supporting "The city is breaking the ADA." Listen for: "The photo proves it." Then: The photo supports the Tuesday claim and narrows the violation claim. Ask who could supply the missing facts.

Support

- Let students write S (supports) or N (narrows) in each box before writing sentences.

Heat check

Medium. The missing-perspective question can turn to students' own access needs.

Cool-down: Keep answers about Sami, the city and the flyer. No student speaks for a group or shares health information.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what Mateo should do and explain why. Then fix the two marked phrases. About 8 minutes.

Mateo wants people to know about the blocked corner. What should he do?

- [ ] A Post the video with a caption saying the city is breaking the ADA.
- [x] B Send the ADA coordinator the corner, the time, the detour sign and one question, if Sami agrees.
- [ ] C Skip the report if Sami finds another bus stop that works today.

Why I chose it

B. It gives the office that can act the corner, time and sign, and it asks Sami first. A claims a violation. C leaves the stairs detour for the next person.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

(1) The city is breaking the ADA. There is construction blocking the ramp and a wheelchair user I know couldn't get to the bus. We were standing there for like ten minutes trying to figure out another way and the sign just pointed to stairs. My friend almost missed her workshop because of it. This is discrimination and completely illegal. Nobody even cares about this. You need to (2) fix every ramp in the neighborhood right away or we will post the photos everywhere.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

On Tuesday at 4:05 p.m., the northeast curb ramp was blocked by fencing.

Rewrite phrase 2

Is there an accessible detour, and how long will this ramp be blocked?

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: skip this page.

Say this

"Mateo has the video. What should he do with it?" — Vote before discussing.

Watch for

Misconception: Students choose A because posting gets attention. Listen for: "Post it, then they'll fix it." Then: Ask whether Sami agreed. Point to her line: "Me, ask first."

Support

- Read the three options aloud before students choose.

Heat check

Medium. Students may bring up real viral videos of disabled people.

Cool-down: Keep it about Mateo's video. Ask what Sami wants.

Answer key

A revised version: Hello, I'm writing about the construction at the corner of Elm Street and 4th Avenue, by the bus stop. On Tuesday at about 4 p.m., the curb ramp on the northeast corner was blocked, and the detour sign pointed to a route with stairs. My friend, who uses a wheelchair and agreed to be mentioned, could not reach the bus stop that way. Could you tell us whether there is an accessible detour during construction, how it's marked and how long the ramp will be blocked? We'd also like to know how to report this if it happens again. Thank you.

Your task

On your own Read the steps. Fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 25 minutes.

Investigate “What makes a city accessible?” and conduct a consent-based route audit of a public space near school.

Use: Case sources plus the DOJ page; global context: Fairness and development.

You’ll make: Audit report plus 200-word reflection

Time: 100 minutes

1. Write your research question at the top of the planner.
2. List the five stages you will audit: find, get there, enter, take part, leave.
3. Add information and communication access to your audit checklist.
4. Write your consent plan. Photograph places, not people, unless they agree.
5. Visit a public space near school with an adult. Stay out of construction zones.
6. Write your audit report on the Your draft page.
7. Write a reflection of about 200 words on fairness and development.

D2.Civ.13.9-12 — Evaluate public policies by their intended and unintended outcomes and consequences. In this case: Students evaluate intended and unintended outcomes of a construction detour.

Answer key

A strong response:

- Clear research question
- Audit covers several kinds of access
- Evaluates evidence limits
- Reflection is thoughtful

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes. Use your planner from the page before. About 30 minutes.

Audit report

Practice audit of Sami's route. Finding information: the flyer says "All welcome!" but gives no way to request access. Getting there: the sidewalk to Elm Street and 4th Avenue is clear, but the northeast curb ramp is blocked, and the detour starts with stairs. The bus stop comes next, with a bus in 12 minutes. Going in and taking part: the workshop entrance and room are not yet checked. Limits: one visit, at one time.

Reflection, about 200 words

Our global context is fairness and development. Before this unit, I thought access meant a ramp at the front door. Sami's trip changed that. Her route had five stages, and the barrier was at stage 2, a curb ramp fenced off for construction. The detour sign pointed to stairs. A route that worked for most people did not work for her. The workshop flyer said "All welcome!" but gave no way to request access. That barrier was about information, not concrete. Our statement of inquiry says fair cities treat access as a whole journey. My audit tried to do that by checking information and communication, not only entrances. It also had limits. I saw each place once, so I cannot say whether a program as a whole is accessible. The hardest choice was about consent. I photographed places, not people, because Sami said, "Me, ask first."

Pacing

Full chapter: 30 min.

Short on time: 30 min.

Say this

"What did your audit show about access as a whole journey?" — Tie each reflection to the statement of inquiry.

Watch for

Misconception: Students photograph people without consent. Listen for: "I got a picture of someone using the ramp." Then: Delete it unless the person agreed. Photograph the place instead.

Heat check

■□□ Low.

Answer key

What to notice in the sample:

1. Audits information access, not only the entrance.
2. Records a gap honestly instead of guessing.
3. Connects the audit to the statement of inquiry.
4. Shows the consent plan in practice.

Check your work

■□□ Low.

Answer key

How to assess: The educator uses Individuals and societies criteria A, B and D, applying the school's own year-level descriptors.

Proficient looks like:

- Evidence: Specific location, time and observation.
- Reasoning: Separates observation from legal question.
- Audience & purpose: Specific, answerable request to the right office.
- Revision: Adds specifics and removes the legal conclusion.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then finish My take. About 10 minutes.

1. Which barrier on Sami's trip would a photo miss?

The flyer, which gives no way to request access. That barrier is about information, so no camera at the corner would show it.

2. What is the difference between recording a barrier and making Sami the content?

A record of the corner, the time and the sign helps the city fix it. Posting Sami without her permission turns her trip into someone else's story.

3. Construction is temporary, but the detour affects people now. What should a city do to keep routes usable during repairs?

Mark an accessible detour before the fence goes up and post how long the closure lasts. Give a contact for people who cannot use the detour.

My take

My claim: ___.

Mateo should send the ADA coordinator the corner, time and sign, and one question, if Sami agrees.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The detour sign, because it shows that the only posted route starts with stairs.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 10 min.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from the evidence, not a story about someone you know." — Post the question numbers and take one answer per question.

Stretch

- With an adult, find your city's ADA coordinator page and summarize how it takes complaints.
- Going further: Write a first description of Sami's trip. Then check one stage you skipped, such as the workshop entrance. Rewrite your description and note what changed.
- Going further: Suppose someone says the fix is to install a ramp. What problem does that fix assume? List two barriers from Sami's trip that a new ramp would not remove.
- Going further: Make a route guide for Sami's trip in two forms, such as a map and a numbered list. Check that each form works without color or a picture.
- Going further: With a trusted adult, search your city's website for "ADA coordinator" or "accessibility" pages. Save how to report a blocked sidewalk or curb ramp, often through 311 or a public works page. Ask the person affected before you report for them, and stay out of construction zones.
- Find your city's ADA coordinator page and summarize its complaint process
- Research how your city communicates construction detours

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

Posting the video would get a faster answer from the city.

I would change my mind if ___.

The city had already marked an accessible detour that Mateo missed.

Case 11: Why are Jordy and Gia paid different rates?

Content note

This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read a story in which Jordy and Gia work the same Saturday event. Jordy is paid $16.50 an hour, and Gia is paid $18.00. They compare the pay statements and the crew schedule, which lists Gia as shift lead, with federal pages on pay discrimination and on discussing wages. They then draft Jordy's message to the supervisor asking how the rates were set.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write a research question that sources can answer
- use an official agency web page as a source
- present findings to classmates with speaker notes

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- investigate why people doing similar work can be paid differently
- compare legitimate and discriminatory explanations for a pay gap
- explain federal equal-pay protections accurately

Objectives, continued

- reflect on fairness using the statement of inquiry

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student

Try it at your school

Know how pay decisions are made where you work.

- Ask for your pay rate and how it's set in writing when you start a job
- Keep your own record of hours and duties
- Talk with a trusted adult or counselor if something seems off

- Look up your state labor department's pay-equity page

Who to ask: Supervisor or HR, school counselor, state labor department, the EEOC's public information line

Safety: Don't share coworkers' pay information without their permission. Deadlines apply to formal complaints, so ask a qualified adviser early if you think there's a legal issue.

What happened

Jordy and Gia work event shifts for the same company. They both worked a Saturday event from 3 to 11 p.m. Both helped with setup and closing, and Jordy also ran the caption and audio check.

They were paid the following Friday. On Sunday afternoon, Jordy and Gia compare pay statements. Jordy's lists eight hours at $16.50 an hour. Gia's lists $18.00 an hour for the same event.

The crew schedule lists Gia as "shift lead," but it does not say what that job includes. That day, Gia opened up and handled one guest issue. She does not know if that explains the $1.50 difference. Gia is fine with Jordy knowing her rate. But she does not want her statement posted.

Jordy wants to ask Dana, the supervisor, how rates are set. Jordy will not post anything before Dana answers.

Your question: Why is Gia paid more than Jordy for the same event, and how should Jordy ask about it?

Pacing

Full chapter: 5 min.

Short on time: 5 min.

Say this

"Two friends, same event, same hours, different pay. What is your first reaction?" — Hear three answers. Write them on the board without judging them.

Watch for

Misconception: Students decide the gap proves discrimination. Listen for: "That's illegal." Then: Ask what else could explain $1.50. Add "shift lead" to the board.

Support

- Read What happened aloud. Pause after each pay rate so students can underline it.

Heat check

Cool-down: Say: "We only know what the documents show." Nobody needs to share their own pay or a family member's.

Key terms

On your own Read each key term and its example. Then write your first guess about the pay difference. About 5 minutes.

Compensation Compensation is all the pay and benefits a worker receives, including hourly rates, bonuses and overtime.

En español: compensación

In this case: Jordy's statement shows eight hours at $16.50 an hour, and Gia's shows $18.00. The statements show the rates but not how they were set.

Equal Pay Act The Equal Pay Act is a federal law from 1963 that requires equal pay for men and women who do equal work.

En español: Ley de Igualdad Salarial

In this case: The Equal Pay Act covers pay differences based on sex, not every difference. Different job duties, such as a real shift-lead role, can be a lawful reason.

Title VII Title VII is part of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It bans job discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

En español: Título VII

In this case: Title VII covers pay decisions based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin. No document shows how Jordy's rate was set.

Your first guess

Before you look at the evidence, why do you think Gia is paid more than Jordy?

My first guess is ___, because ___.

My first guess is that the shift-lead title explains it, because the schedule lists Gia that way.

The story: A $1.50 surprise

Jordy and Gia work event shifts for the same company. On Saturday, they worked the same event, 3 to 11 p.m. Both did setup and closing. Jordy also ran the caption and audio check, a job Jordy takes seriously because Jordy is hard of hearing and knows when captions miss a line. They were paid the following Friday.

On Sunday afternoon, Jordy sends Gia a screenshot: $16.50 an hour. Gia's reply comes fast. Hers says $18.00. Then she asks the question neither of them can answer: is it because she is shift lead?

The crew schedule lists Gia as "shift lead" and says nothing else about it. Gia remembers opening up and handling one guest issue. Gia only learned she makes more because Jordy showed her their statement. Nobody ever told her what the title pays for.

Jordy's next message sets the course. Same event, same hours, and Jordy is asking Dana, the supervisor, before this goes anywhere. Your role in this case is to line up both shifts side by side before Jordy writes to Dana.

Stop and think. List the facts that are the same for both jobs and the facts that differ. Which difference matters most?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (614 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: A $1.50 surprise": List the facts that are the same for both jobs and the facts that differ. Which difference matters most?
2. After "Comparing like with like": What answer from Dana would satisfy Jordy, and what answer would not?
3. After "The law, and a comparison that shaped a lawsuit": Why might it matter that the judge compared contract structures while the players wanted him to compare rates?

Comparing like with like

Case 5 gave you the habit of reading a pay statement line by line. Jordy's shows 8.0 hours at $16.50, for gross pay of $132.00. Gross pay is the money you earn before any taxes or other deductions are taken out. At $18.00, the same eight hours would come to $144.00.

The new skill is comparing two cases on the same terms. Line up every fact the documents give you. Hours: the same. Setup from 3 to 5: all crew. Closing from 10 to 11: all crew. Caption and audio check: Jordy. Title: Gia is shift lead. Lead duties, according to Gia: opening up and one guest issue. What the title pays: unknown.

Compensation is all the pay and benefits a worker receives, including hourly rates, bonuses and overtime. A job title, extra duties or more experience can explain a pay difference. So can a mistake. The comparison narrows the question without answering it. If shift lead carries real extra duties and a set rate, the title may explain the $1.50. If it does not, Jordy has a specific question to ask.

Case 10 taught you to bring a question to the office responsible. Dana sets rates, so Dana gets the message. It should state what Jordy knows for sure: the hours, the duties and Jordy's own rate. It should ask one clear question: what does "shift lead" include, and how are rates set? It does not need Gia's statement. Gia is fine with Jordy knowing her rate, but she does not want her statement posted anywhere. Jordy, for their part, will decide what to do if Dana's answer does not make sense. It is Jordy's paycheck.

Stop and think. What answer from Dana would satisfy Jordy, and what answer would not?

The law, and a comparison that shaped a lawsuit

The Equal Pay Act is a federal law from 1963 that requires equal pay for men and women who do equal work. Title VII is part of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It bans job discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin. Talking about pay is protected too. The National Labor Relations Board says most private-sector workers have a right to discuss pay with coworkers, with or without a union (NLRB, no date listed).

The U.S. women's national soccer team shows why the comparison matters. In 2020, a federal judge dismissed their equal pay claim, pointing to differences in how the teams' contracts were structured (NPR, May 2, 2020). The players appealed, saying he had not looked at rates of pay. In 2022, they reached a $24 million settlement with a promise of equal pay rates (NPR, February 22, 2022). A settlement is an agreement, not a court finding, and it decides nothing about Jordy's employer.

Stop and think. Why might it matter that the judge compared contract structures while the players wanted him to compare rates?

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document. For each one, fill in both boxes. About 8 minutes.

Evidence A | Pay statement

Jordy's pay statement

Event crew, Saturday. Hours: 8.0 at $16.50. Gross pay for the event: $132.00.

Look closely: Multiply the hours by the rate. Does it match the gross pay?

What it shows

Jordy worked 8 hours at $16.50 an hour, for $132.00 in gross pay.

What it leaves out

How the rate was set, and what other crew members earned.

Evidence B | Work schedule

The crew schedule

Saturday event, 3:00—11:00 p.m. Crew: Gia (shift lead), Jordy and two other crew members. Setup, 3:00—5:00: all crew. Caption and audio check: Jordy. Closing, 10:00—11:00: all crew.

Look closely: Circle "shift lead." Does the schedule say what that job includes?

What it shows

Gia is listed as shift lead. All crew did setup and closing.

What it leaves out

What a shift lead does, and whether the title comes with a higher rate.

Pacing

Sunday, 1:15 p.m.

Gia: I'm fine with you knowing my rate. I just don't want my statement posted anywhere.

Jordy: Got it. Did you do anything different as shift lead?

Gia: I opened up and handled one guest issue. Honestly, I don't know if that's why. Let's ask Dana.

Look closely: What does Gia agree to share, and what does she ask Jordy not to do?

What it shows

Gia lets Jordy know her rate but not post her statement. She did some lead work.

What it leaves out

Whether her lead work explains the $1.50, and whether Gia wants Dana to see her rate.

What is still missing from the evidence?

What the shift-lead role officially involves and how rates are set, whether Gia's higher rate reflects experience or other criteria, how other crew members are paid, and whether the company has any written pay policy.

Key idea: equal pay

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

Before you can say why Jordy is paid less, you need to know what each job included. Compensation is all the pay and benefits a worker receives, including hourly rates, bonuses and overtime. A job title, extra duties or more experience can explain a pay difference. So can a mistake. The pay statements show the rates, but they do not show how the rates were set.

Federal laws limit the reasons an employer can use to set pay. The Equal Pay Act is a federal law from 1963 that requires equal pay for men and women who do equal work. Title VII is part of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It bans job discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex or national origin. Both laws apply to covered employers, and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) enforces them. A legitimate reason, such as different job duties, can lawfully explain a pay difference.

Talking about pay is protected too. The National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) says most private-sector workers have a right to discuss pay with coworkers. That right holds with or without a union. It does not make Gia's pay statement Jordy's to share. Jordy can ask Dana how rates are set without naming Gia's rate.

SHRM Code of Ethics: Fairness and Justice

"Develop, administer, and advocate policies and procedures that foster fair, consistent and equitable treatment for all."

In plain words: HR professionals who belong to SHRM agree to use workplace policies that treat workers fairly and consistently.

Question: The schedule lists Gia as shift lead. What written policy would show whether that title explains the higher rate?

Your answer

A written policy that shows ___ would answer this, because ___.

A written policy that shows what shift lead includes and what it pays would answer this, because the schedule gives only the title.

Pacing

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the SHRM code as a law. Listen for: "The company broke the SHRM code, so it's illegal." Then: Say: "SHRM's code binds its members, who are HR professionals. The laws here are the Equal Pay Act and Title VII."

On your own Choose what Jordy should do first and explain why. Then fix the two marked lines. About 5 minutes.

Jordy's statement shows $16.50 an hour. Gia's shows $18.00 for the same Saturday event, and the schedule lists her as "shift lead." What should Jordy do first?

- ☐ A Tell the rest of the crew that Gia is paid more for the same work.
- ☑ B Compare what each of them did, find out what "shift lead" means and ask Dana how rates are set.
- ☐ C Let it go, because an employer can set any pay rate it chooses.

Why I chose it

B. It tests the most likely explanation, the shift-lead title, first. A treats the work as the same and ignores Gia's request. C ignores the limits the law puts on pay.

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes. Use your planner from the page before. About 25 minutes.

Speaker notes for your findings slide, 60 to 90 words

Our evidence shows a title difference but no written duties. Jordy and Gia worked the same hours, and both did setup and closing. The schedule lists Gia as shift lead, and she opened up and handled one guest issue. That could be a legitimate factor. We could not find out how the company sets rates, so we cannot say whether the difference is fair.

Reflection on fairness, 100 to 150 words

Our statement of inquiry says pay systems can reflect fair criteria or hidden bias, so workers need clear information and protected ways to ask. This case changed how I think about fairness. At first I thought equal hours meant equal pay. Now I see that duties matter too, and that a title alone does not tell you what the duties were. Jordy has a protected right to discuss pay, but Jordy still has to ask the company to explain its criteria. Gia's choice to share her rate with Jordy, but not to post her statement, showed me that fairness includes privacy too.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then complete each sentence frame below the questions. About 10 minutes.

1 What information could explain the $1.50 difference, and what might challenge that explanation?

Lead duties could explain it if the role has written criteria. Gia's account challenges that, because one opening and one guest issue may be little extra work.

2 Whose choice is it to make Jordy's pay public, and why?

It is Jordy's choice. Most private-sector workers have a right to discuss pay, and the pay is Jordy's. That right does not cover posting Gia's statement.

3 What answer from Dana would satisfy Jordy, and what answer would not?

A written explanation of what shift lead involves and how someone qualifies would satisfy Jordy. A vague answer that names no criteria would not.

4 In the soccer case, the judge looked at contract structures, and the players wanted him to compare rates of pay. Why does that choice matter?

What you compare can change the answer. The judge focused on how the contracts were structured, and the players said he had not looked at rates of pay.

Pacing

Stretch

- Draft the pay-policy page the company could share: each role, its duties, its rate and how to qualify.
- Going further: Read the EEOC page on pay discrimination. Which law could apply to Jordy's question? Which facts would you need before saying the law was broken?
- Going further: What might make it hard for a worker like Jordy to ask about pay? Write one sentence that names Jordy's concern without claiming more than Jordy knows.
- Going further: Draw a timeline of the evidence, from the posted schedule to Jordy's question for Dana. Mark each open question on it. Then compare it with your message: which one makes the open questions easier to follow?
- Going further: When you start a job, ask for your pay rate and how it is set, in writing. Keep your own record of hours and duties. If something seems off, talk with a trusted adult or a school counselor.
- Find your state labor department's page on pay equity
- Research the EEOC's filing deadlines and how they vary by state

My take

My claim: ___.

Jordy should ask Dana how rates are set before deciding the difference is unfair.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The schedule, because it lists Gia as shift lead but never says what that job includes.

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

The difference is clear, so Jordy should report it right away.

I would change my mind if ___.

Dana refused to explain how rates are set.

Content note

The news sources include 2026 student walkouts against federal immigration enforcement, which grew after federal agents fatally shot two people in Minneapolis. Preview them, and keep discussion on the legal questions in Anika's case.

This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read about Anika, a high school junior whose poster asks students to wear blue Thursday to keep the library open at lunch. They compare her poster, a posting policy and a group chat about a walkout with a summary of Tinker v. Des Moines (1969). They then compare the fact patterns and write two questions for a school contact about the posting policy.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write a research question that sources can answer
- evaluate a source for reliability
- present to peers with speaker notes

Objectives

Students will be able to:

Objectives, continued

- investigate how free student expression is in the United States and one other country
- explain Tinker and school-sponsored speech with accurate terms
- evaluate the reliability of a court summary and an international source
- compare the two approaches without ranking cultures

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- The case sources, including the U.S. Courts Tinker summary
- One educator-provided source on student expression in another country
- A slide template and a source-evaluation checklist

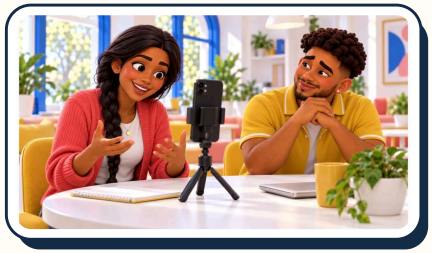
Case 12: When can a school limit what students say?

Anika's poster asks her school to keep the library open at lunch, and now someone in her group chat suggests a walkout.

On your own Read What happened. Underline each plan: the poster, wearing blue and the walkout. About 5 minutes.



Anika records a voice memo while Mateo listens beside a phone on a small tripod.

Your role: You're the one who compares Tinker with each action before anyone says "can't touch us."
New skill: Apply a precedent by comparing fact patterns.

What happened

Anika is a junior at a public high school. She wants the school library to stay open at lunch. On Tuesday afternoon, she prints a poster that says "KEEP OUR LIBRARY OPEN AT LUNCH. Wear blue Thursday."

Mateo did the photo and layout. He put a photo of the school's sign and logo across the top. The poster does not name Anika or any student group. The student handbook says posters need approval from the main office and the name of the student or group responsible.

On Wednesday night, someone in the group chat suggests a walkout if the school takes the poster down. The message says a 1969 Supreme Court case, Tinker v. Des Moines, means the school "can't touch us." Anika never suggested a walkout.

Your question: How far does Tinker cover the poster, the wear-blue plan and the walkout, and what facts are missing?

Fact pattern A fact pattern is the specific set of facts in a situation that a rule is applied to.

En español: conjunto de hechos

In this case: Anika lists each plan's action, place, timing and rule: the poster on a school board, wearing blue on Thursday and leaving class.

Substantial disruption Substantial disruption is the standard from Tinker v. Des Moines: a public school may limit speech that would seriously disrupt school activities.

En español: alteración sustancial

In this case: Wearing blue on Thursday is quiet, like the armbands. Leaving class is conduct under the attendance rule, which Tinker does not settle.

The story: A poster grows a plan

Anika, a junior at a public high school, wants the library to stay open at lunch. On Tuesday at 3:15 p.m., she prints a poster: “KEEP OUR LIBRARY OPEN AT LUNCH. Wear blue Thursday.” Mateo did the photo and layout. Because it looked good, he ran a photo of the school’s sign and logo across the top. No student name or group appears anywhere on the poster.

By Wednesday at 9:02 p.m., the idea has grown in the group chat. “If they take the poster down we walk out Thursday. Tinker says they can’t touch us.” The next reply shows the confusion: “Wait, wear blue AND walk out??”

Anika never proposed a walkout, and she says so. She also checks the student handbook. Page 14 allows posters on the boards outside the cafeteria and the library, but only with office approval and the name of the student or group responsible. Her poster has neither. Mateo sees his own problem. The school sign makes it look like the school is announcing the plan, and it is not. He decides to redo the photo.

Your role is to compare Tinker with each action before anyone says “can’t touch us.”

Stop and think. Anika separates her poster from the walkout. Why is that separation important?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (590 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After “The story: A poster grows a plan”: Anika separates her poster from the walkout. Why is that separation important?
2. After “Precedent and fact patterns”: Which changed fact would make Tinker a weaker comparison for the wear-blue plan?
3. After “What courts and schools have done since”: If the poster had Anika’s name and no school logo, what would change?

Precedent and fact patterns

A precedent is an earlier court decision that judges use as a guide in similar later cases. Tinker v. Des Moines (1969) is the precedent the chat invokes. Public-school students wore black armbands to protest the Vietnam War, the school suspended them, and the Supreme Court ruled for the students. Substantial disruption is the standard from Tinker v. Des Moines: a public school may limit speech that would seriously disrupt school activities. The Court also said a mere fear of disruption was not enough.

A precedent guides a new case only as far as the facts match. A fact pattern is the specific set of facts in a situation that a rule is applied to. The new skill builds on Case 11, where you compared two jobs on the same terms. Here you compare Tinker's facts with three actions. Wearing blue is quiet and stays in class, like the armbands. A walkout means leaving class, which falls under the attendance rule, and Tinker does not settle that. The poster raises a separate question. It shows the school's logo and no student name, so it may look like the school is speaking. Schools have more control over speech that looks like it comes from the school.

Two Case 1 terms fit here. "Tinker says they can't touch us" is a claim that goes far beyond the precedent. And the logo is a form of framing, choosing which parts of a situation a message brings forward. It brings the school forward as the apparent speaker.

Stop and think. Which changed fact would make Tinker a weaker comparison for the wear-blue plan?

What courts and schools have done since

The Tinker opinion says students do not "shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate" (Legal Information Institute, 1969). The federal courts publish a teaching exercise about a walkout scenario that separates the message from the act of leaving class and describes the usual attendance consequences (U.S. Courts, no date listed).

The Supreme Court returned to student speech in 2021. In the case of a cheerleader's Snapchat post, it ruled 8 to 1 for the student but said schools may still act on some off-campus speech, such as threats (PBS NewsHour, June 23, 2021). In early 2026, students in Indiana and other states walked out of class to protest federal immigration enforcement. Schools responded differently. Some counted it as an unexcused absence, and one high school gave one-day suspensions (Chalkbeat Indiana, February 11, 2026).

Stop and think. If the poster had Anika's name and no school logo, what would change?

Evidence A | Poster

Anika's poster, first version

Printed Tuesday, 3:15 p.m. The poster reads "KEEP OUR LIBRARY OPEN AT LUNCH. Wear blue Thursday." A photo of the school's sign and logo runs across the top. No student name or group appears anywhere on the poster.

What it shows

The poster's message, with the school logo at the top and no student name.

What it leaves out

Whether the office approved it, and whether the school has objected to it.

Evidence B | Handbook policy

Student handbook, page 14

Students may post materials on the student bulletin boards outside the cafeteria and the library. Materials must be approved by the main office and must show the name of the student or group responsible.

Key idea: precedent

On your own Read the key idea and the Professional standards card. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

A precedent is an earlier court decision that judges use as a guide in similar later cases. In Tinker v. Des Moines (1969), public-school students wore black armbands to protest the Vietnam War. The school suspended them, and the Supreme Court ruled for the students. The Court wrote that students do not "shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate." It also said a mere fear of disruption was not enough to limit their expression.

A precedent guides a new case only as far as the facts match. Substantial disruption is the standard from Tinker v. Des Moines: a public school may limit speech that would seriously disrupt school activities. Wearing blue on Thursday is quiet, like the armbands. A walkout is different, because students leave class. The school's attendance rule covers that conduct, and Tinker does not settle it.

The poster raises another question. It shows the school's sign and logo but no student name, so it may look like the school is speaking. Schools have more control over speech that looks like it comes from the school. A fact pattern is the specific set of facts in a situation that a rule is applied to. Write a fact pattern for each action before you decide whether Tinker fits it.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose the best reply to the group chat and explain why. Then fix the two marked lines. About 5 minutes.

Someone in Anika's group chat says, "Tinker means nobody can get in trouble for walking out of class." How should you respond?

- ☐ A Agree, because Tinker protected students who protested at school.
- ☐ B Disagree, because schools can make any rule they want about student speech.
- ☑ C Say that the message and leaving class are separate questions, then check the attendance rule.

Why I chose it

C. It separates the speech from the conduct. A goes too far, because Tinker was about silent armbands. B goes too far the other way, because Tinker recognized student speech rights.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

No, the school can't take it down because of Tinker v. Des Moines. In that case (1) the Supreme Court said students have free speech at school. The poster is just saying the library should stay open at lunch which is not hurting anybody. We even used a nice photo of the school sign so it looks professional. The principal would be breaking the law if he took it down. This is America and students have rights. Everyone should wear blue Thursday and (2) walk out if they try.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

Students keep speech rights at school unless it would substantially disrupt school.

Rewrite phrase 2

Wear blue Thursday. A walkout means leaving class, which the attendance rule covers.

Pacing

Support

- Read the options aloud.

Heat check

Medium. Talk may turn to real protests at school.

Cool-down: Ask which fact in Anika's case decides it. Keep real students' names out.

Answer key

A revised version: Tinker v. Des Moines (1969) says public-school students keep free-speech rights at school, unless their expression would substantially disrupt school or invade others' rights. Anika's message, keep the library open at lunch, and the plan to wear blue Thursday are quiet and look a lot like the armbands in Tinker. But two facts matter. The poster uses a school-logo photo, so it may look like an official announcement, which schools can regulate more. And walking out of class is conduct under an attendance rule, a different question. I'd remove the logo and ask the office which posting policy applies.

In the United States, the main rule for public schools comes from a 1969 Supreme Court case, Tinker v. Des Moines. Students there wore black armbands to protest the Vietnam War, and the Court ruled for them. Schools may limit student speech that would substantially disrupt school. They also have more control over speech that looks like it comes from the school. Anika's case shows how that works. Wearing blue is close to Tinker, a poster with the school logo is not, and a walkout falls under the attendance rule. Our second source describes how the other country draws these lines. We compared who makes the rules, where they apply and how students can respond. We are not saying one approach is better. Each one reflects how power is shared in that country's schools.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then complete each sentence frame below the questions. About 8 minutes.

1 Which changed fact would make Tinker a weaker comparison for the wear-blue plan?

If wearing blue came with leaving class, or caused a substantial disruption, the plan would no longer match the quiet armbands.

2 Why might it matter whether a poster looks like it comes from the school?

If readers think the school is speaking, the school has more say over the message. The logo photo creates that impression.

3 If the poster had Anika's name and no school logo, what would change?

It would meet the handbook's name rule and read as student speech, so Tinker would be the better comparison. It would still need office approval.

My take

My claim: ___.

Tinker fits the wear-blue plan, but it does not settle the walkout.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The Tinker facts, because the armbands were silent and nobody left class.

Stretch

- Rewrite the walkout message so it says only what the chat knows for sure.
- Going further: Read the U.S. Courts summary of Tinker. List two facts from Tinker and two facts from Anika's situation. Which difference matters most, and why?
- Going further: Write two headlines about the same walkout, one using the words "a protest" and one using "leaving class" instead. What does each headline make readers think the dispute is about?
- Going further: Write a short dialogue in which Anika explains to a friend why Tinker fits the wear-blue plan better than the walkout. Ask a reader to explain the difference back to you.
- Going further: Find the section of your student handbook on posting, dress or expression. Write down which spaces allow student posters and whether you need approval. Bring questions to a student council advisor before you plan any action.
- Read about Bethel v. Fraser (1986) and Morse v. Frederick (2007) and add them to the comparison
- Find your district's student expression or posting policy and compare it with Tinker

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

Any protest at school is protected, so a walkout is too.

I would change my mind if ___.

The attendance policy allowed students to leave class for a protest.

Case 13: Can the crew cut waste before it reaches the bin?

Overview

Students read a story in which Dec's box of replacement parts arrives half full of packaging. The crew's "recyclable" cups turn out to be on the city's not-accepted list. They place items from the supply list on EPA's waste hierarchy and check them against the city's accepted-materials list. They then fill in an event materials sheet and propose one change with a way to measure it.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write an inquiry question that can be investigated
- collect and record counts with units
- reflect on a global context

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- investigate where an event's waste comes from
- place items on the waste hierarchy accurately
- design a school action with a measurable result and a follow-up count
- reflect on sustainability and access

Try it at your school

Change one thing before the next event.

- Pick one repeated item at a school event: cups, flyers, plates
- Count how many were used last time
- Check your city's recycling list and propose one reduction or reuse option

Case 13: Can the crew cut waste before it reaches the bin?

The last Common Room screening used about 120 cups the city won't recycle, and a box of parts arrived half full of packaging.

On your own Read What happened. Underline the number of cups and what the city list says about them. About 5 minutes.

Anika, Dec and Sami react to a round of their tabletop game.

Your role: You're the one who counts the cups before and after the change. New skill: Count a starting point before you claim a change works.

What happened

It is Tuesday in the theater shop. Dec opens a box of replacement parts. Three separate orders of small LED connectors and switches, placed over one week, arrived together. About half of the box is plastic air pillows and foam.

The supply list from last Friday's screening at the Common Room shows a second problem. The crew used about 120 single-use cups. The cups are plastic-lined paper and labeled "recyclable." But the city's recycling list does not take plastic-lined paper cups.

Dec wants to fix how they order parts before anyone redoes the recycling sign. Anika tracks the parts and the budget. She agrees with Dec, but she wants numbers before anyone says a change saves money. Some people need a disposable cup or a straw, so any plan has to work for them too.

Your question: What could the crew change before the next screening, and how would they know it worked?

The story: The box and the supply list

Dec opens the box in the theater shop on Tuesday and laughs, a little. Over one week, the crew placed three separate orders for small LED connectors and switches. All three arrived together in one full box, and about half of it is plastic air pillows and foam wrapped around parts the size of a fingernail.

Anika tracks the parts and the budget, so she has the other half of the picture. The supply list from last Friday's screening at the Common Room shows about 120 single-use cups, plastic-lined paper and labeled "recyclable." It also lists 80 paper plates, 150 printed flyers and 40 paper straws handed out on request. The folding chairs were borrowed from the bookshop.

Dec, who is thinking about an electrical apprenticeship and likes following a problem to where it starts, wants to fix the ordering before anyone redoes the recycling sign. Anika is on board, with a condition. If anyone says a change saves money, she wants the numbers. Right now, she says, they have one box and a guess.

Your role in this case is to count the cups before and after the change.

Stop and think. Why does Dec start with the order form instead of the recycling bins?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (572 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: The box and the supply list": Why does Dec start with the order form instead of the recycling bins?
2. After "Upstream and downstream": What does the baseline of 120 cups let the crew claim later, and what does it not?
3. After "What the EPA and the straw debate show": How could a change that reduces waste create an access problem, and how would you find out?

Upstream and downstream

Source reduction is preventing waste before it is created, for example by buying less packaging. Reuse is using an item again instead of throwing it away after one use. Dec's ordering fix is source reduction. Borrowing the bookshop's washable cups is reuse.

The cups show why checking matters. They are labeled "recyclable," but the city's recycling list accepts metal cans, glass, rigid plastic bottles and containers and flattened cardboard. It does not accept plastic-lined paper cups, plastic bags and film, foam or items labeled compostable. Local acceptance is the list of materials that your own city's recycling or compost program actually takes. Case 9 taught you to go to the official source for your own area, and this is the recycling version of that skill. Anika adds a warning. Compostable cups are not on the list either, so switching to them would not solve anything by itself.

The new skill is counting a starting point before you claim a change works. The baseline is about 120 cups. The test is one screening with washable cups. The count covers cups used and cups left, plus the new costs of water and washing time. Case 4 gives you the words for the result. It is a proposal, a change that someone suggests and that has not been approved yet. It is also a trade-off, a choice where getting one benefit means accepting a cost or giving something up. Anika also rejects a total ban on disposables. Some people need a disposable cup or a straw, so the plan keeps some on request.

Stop and think. What does the baseline of 120 cups let the crew claim later, and what does it not?

What the EPA and the straw debate show

The Environmental Protection Agency ranks ways to handle waste. Source reduction and reuse come first. Recycling and composting come next, then energy recovery, then treatment and disposal. The EPA also notes that no single approach fits every item (EPA, updated December 19, 2025). An NPR investigation found that less than 10 percent of plastic has ever been recycled, which is one reason reduction comes first (NPR, September 11, 2020).

In 2018, Starbucks announced it would phase out plastic straws by 2020 using a sippable lid (NPR, July 9, 2018). Two days later, NPR reported that some people with disabilities need flexible plastic straws, and advocates said few people seemed to know about the exemption in Seattle's straw ban (NPR, July 11, 2018).

Stop and think. How could a change that reduces waste create an access problem, and how would you find out?

Key idea: source reduction

On your own Read the key idea and the Professional standards card. Then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

Source reduction is preventing waste before it is created, for example by buying less packaging. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) ranks ways to handle waste. Source reduction and reuse come first. Recycling and composting come next, then energy recovery, then treatment and disposal. The EPA also notes that no single approach fits every item or situation.

Reuse is using an item again instead of throwing it away after one use. Borrowing washable cups from the bookshop is one example. Reuse has costs too. Washing takes water and someone's time, so a fair comparison counts those costs along with the cups.

A "recyclable" label does not tell you where an item will go. Local acceptance is the list of materials that your own city's recycling or compost program actually takes. The crew's cups say "recyclable," but their city's list does not take plastic-lined paper cups. The list does not take items labeled compostable either. So the crew has to check the list before choosing any new cup.

Professional standards

Real source | Law or regulation | Federal Trade Commission (FTC)

FTC Green Guides (16 CFR Part 260): § 260.12 Recyclable claims

"A product or package should not be marketed as recyclable unless it can be collected, separated, or otherwise recovered from the waste stream through an established recycling program"

In plain words: FTC guidance says a company should call a product recyclable only when recycling programs can collect and process it.

Question: The crew's city rejects plastic-lined paper cups. What else must you know before saying the "recyclable" label breaks the guide?

Your answer

Before saying the label breaks the guide, I would need to know ___, because ___.

Before saying the label breaks the guide, I would need to know whether other programs collect these cups, because the guide asks about established programs.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose the plan the crew should try and explain why. Then fix the two marked lines. About 5 minutes.

The last screening used about 120 single-use cups, and the city's recycling list does not take that type. Which plan should the crew try for the next screening?

- [x] A Compare a washable-cup option, washing time, cost, access and the city list, then test one change.
- [ ] B Buy a different cup labeled "recyclable" and put up a clearer recycling sign.
- [ ] C Stop offering disposable cups and straws, and ask everyone to bring their own.

Why I chose it

A. It names the trade-offs: washing time, cost, access and the city list. B repeats the label mistake, and C could leave out guests who need a cup or a straw.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

We should make the screening zero waste. Everyone should bring their own cup and we'll (1) ban all plastic. We can also put up posters that say "save the planet" so people remember to recycle. Recycling is the best thing you can do for the environment. This will be easy and (2) it will save money too. Last screening there were cups everywhere and the bins were overflowing by the end of the night. People will love it once they get used to it. Let's start next week!

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

We will offer washable cups and keep disposable cups and straws on request.

Rewrite phrase 2

Heat check

Medium. Talk about bans can turn to who "really" needs a straw.

Cool-down: Say: "Nobody has to prove a need." Keep the focus on how the plan offers items on request.

Answer key

A revised version: For the next screening, we propose one change: cups. Last time we used about 120 single-use cups, and our city's recycling list doesn't accept that type. We'll borrow 60 washable cups from the bookshop, keep 40 compostable cups for anyone who needs one, and ask Rafa and Jordy to run a quick wash station. Flexible straws and single-use cups stay available on request. We'll count cups used and leftover supplies after the event and compare with last time before deciding whether to keep the change. We're not claiming it saves money yet.

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes. Use your planner from the page before. About 25 minutes.

Action plan, about 50 words

At our next school event, we will borrow washable cups and keep some disposable cups and straws on request. Before the event, we will count our cups. After it, we will count cups used and left over and record the washing time.

Reflection, about 150 words

Our statement of inquiry says that choices made before anything reaches the bin shape how communities share the costs of waste. Before this unit, I thought recycling was the main answer. The crew's cups changed that. They were labeled "recyclable," but the city's list does not accept them, so they went to the trash anyway. The EPA ranks reducing and reusing above recycling, and our action tries to act at that level. I also learned that a sustainable choice has costs. Washing uses water and someone's time, and some people need a disposable cup or a straw. A plan that ignores them is not fair. Our count will show whether the change cut waste. It will not show everything, such as the energy used to wash the cups, so we will say that in our report.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question. Then complete each sentence frame below the questions. About 8 minutes.

1 Could a change that reduces waste create an access problem for someone, and how would you find out?

Yes. Banning disposable cups or straws could leave out people who need them, as the NPR straw story shows. The crew could ask guests and keep some on request.

2 How does "add more bins" define the problem differently from "order less packaging"?

The phrase "add more bins" treats waste as a sorting problem at the end. The phrase "order less packaging" treats it as a buying problem, which the EPA ranks higher.

3 What would the crew need to count before saying a change saves money?

Cups used and left over, compared with about 120 last time, plus the cost of water and volunteer time for washing.

My take

My claim: ___.

The crew should test washable cups at one screening and count the result.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The city list, because it shows the "recyclable" cups are not accepted.

Stretch

- Design the count sheet for the next screening: items, numbers before and after, and new costs.
- Going further: Compare two plans for the theater shop: order all the parts at once, or keep ordering when a part breaks. What problem does each plan solve? What new problem could each one create?
- Going further: List who would have to change a routine if the crew switched to washable cups. Write a two-sentence note to them. Say what the crew will count to show whether the change worked.
- Going further: Write two event plans for the next screening and a small test for each. After the tests, explain which plan you would improve and which you would drop.
- Going further: Pick one item that appears at many school events, such as cups, flyers or plates. Count how many were used last time, and check your city's recycling list. Do not sort through trash with your hands.
- Find your city's recycling rules and compare with a neighboring city
- Research where your area's trash goes after pickup

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

Washing cups uses water and time, so it might not help.

I would change my mind if ___.

The count showed washing cost more than it saved, or guests could not use the cups.

Overview

Students read a story in which Caio's film recap uses a sampled track and a six-second TikTok clip. Mateo wants to post it tonight with a credit in the caption. They separate attribution, permission and fair use, then apply the U.S. Copyright Office's four fair-use factors to the crew's planned use. They then complete a rights log and propose a licensed or original alternative.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write a research question
- keep a simple table of sources
- reflect in writing on a choice they made

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- explain copyright, licenses and fair use accurately
- record the source and permission for every element of a project
- make a short remix from licensed or self-made material
- reflect on how a creative constraint shaped their choices

Case 14: Does giving credit let the crew use the song?

Mateo wants to post the crew's film tonight and credit the song's artist, but Caio wants to check the license first.

On your own Read What happened and underline the two pieces of the film that the crew did not make. About 5 minutes.

Your role: You're the one who fills in the rights log before the film goes up. New skill: Check permission, not just credit.

What happened

It is Friday night, and Caio, 24, is editing the crew's festival film. The film is a short recap made from crew footage and interviews. At 9:40 p.m., he saves a rough cut. For 20 seconds, a released song plays under the setup montage. Caio pitched the song up slightly, and the song sets the mood for the whole scene.

The cut borrows one more piece. From 1:40 to 1:46, it shows a six-second clip downloaded from a TikTok post. That post used Stitch, TikTok's remix tool. The crew did not make the song or the clip.

At 10:02 p.m., Mateo texts the crew chat: "We'll credit them in the caption. Post tonight?" He wants the film online tonight. Caio asks what the credit gets them, and Mateo does not have an answer. Caio wants to check the license before they post.

Key terms

On your own Read each key term and its example, then write your first guess in the box. About 8 minutes.

Attribution Attribution is naming the person who made a work, such as a song, a photo or a video.

En español: atribución

In this case: Mateo's plan, "We'll credit them in the caption," would name the artist. It answers who made the song, not whether the crew may use it.

License A license is permission from a rights holder to use a work under specific terms.

En español: licencia

In this case: The rights log says "permission unknown" for both borrowed pieces. A license from each owner would fill in that column.

Fair use Fair use is a part of U.S. copyright law that allows some uses without permission, judged case by case with four factors.

En español: uso justo

In this case: The crew would weigh the four factors for 20 seconds of a released song used as background mood. No number of seconds settles it.

The story: Rough cut, 9:40 p.m.

Caio edits freelance projects and runs film nights at the bookshop, so he knows what a song can do to a scene. On Friday night, he is cutting the crew's festival film, a short recap built from crew footage and interviews. His rough cut, saved at 9:40 p.m., has a problem he likes too much. From 0:18 to 0:38, a released song plays under the setup montage, pitched up slightly, and it carries the whole sequence. From 1:40 to 1:46, the cut also uses a six-second clip downloaded from a TikTok post made with Stitch, TikTok's remix tool.

At 10:02 p.m., Mateo texts the crew chat: "We'll credit them in the caption. Post tonight?" Mateo wants the film online tonight. Caio replies with a question: credit gets them what, exactly? Mateo admits he does not have an answer.

Caio's reasoning is simple. Twenty seconds of the song carries the montage, and that is exactly why he cannot just borrow it and hope. He wants to check the license before anyone posts. Your role is to fill in the rights log before the film goes up.

Stop and think. Why does Caio say the song carrying the montage is a reason not to borrow it?

2. After "Credit, permission and the rights log": Mateo marks the TikTok clip "unknown." What would the crew need to find out to fill in that row?
3. After "When platforms and courts decide": Caio pitched the song up. Does changing a song make it a new work? Why or why not?

Credit, permission and the rights log, continued

It answers “Did the owner say yes to this use?” Mateo’s caption answers the first question and says nothing about the second.

Case 8 taught you that a disclosure is a clear statement that tells people about a relationship or fact they would want to know. Attribution is honest in the same way. It tells viewers where something came from. But honesty about the source is not permission to use it. Changing the pitch does not change ownership either. As Caio puts it, the song is still theirs, just a little higher.

Case 1 taught you to trace a clip to its original source. The rights log does that for every borrowed piece. It has columns for the element, who made it, where it came from, the permission or license and the date. Row 1 is the setup-montage music from a streaming download, permission unknown. Row 2 is the six-second clip from a TikTok creator, permission unknown. Mateo assumed Stitch covered the clip. Stitch permission works inside TikTok, and the festival film is not on TikTok, so the row stays “unknown” until the crew finds out.

Fair use is a part of U.S. copyright law that allows some uses without permission, judged case by case with four factors. The factors are the purpose of the use, the nature of the original work, the amount used and the effect on the original’s market (U.S. Copyright Office, updated July 2026). Case 12 taught you to compare facts against a legal standard, and fair use works the same way. No number of seconds is automatically safe. A short clip can count against fair use if it is the most recognizable part of a song.

Caio’s plan avoids the question entirely if the license falls through. The crew can use a library track with clear terms, or Dec can record a drum loop the crew owns. The film goes up Sunday.

> Stop and think. Mateo marks the TikTok clip “unknown.” What would the crew need to find out to fill in that row?

When platforms and courts decide

When Universal Music Group’s licensing deal with TikTok expired in February 2024, videos using its artists’ songs, from Taylor Swift to Olivia Rodrigo, went silent (NPR, February 1, 2024). Credit was never the issue.

The Supreme Court tested fair use in 2023. It ruled against the Andy Warhol Foundation, finding that Warhol’s new version of a photograph was not fair use when it served the same purpose as the original (NPR, May 18, 2023).

> Stop and think. Caio pitched the song up. Does changing a song make it a new work? Why or why not?

A license is permission from a rights holder to use a work under specific terms. It answers another question: "Did the owner say yes to this use?" Mateo's caption would give attribution. It would not give the crew a license.

Without a license, the crew could ask whether the use is fair use. Fair use is a part of U.S. copyright law that allows some uses without permission, judged case by case with four factors. The U.S. Copyright Office names the four factors. They are the purpose of the use, the nature of the original work, the amount used and the effect on the original's market. No number of seconds is automatically safe. Even a short part can count against fair use if it is the most recognizable part of the song.

Platform tools come with their own limits. Stitch lets people remix another person's video inside TikTok. That permission does not automatically cover a downloaded clip in a film shown somewhere else. Using music the crew records, or a track with a clear license, can avoid the fair-use question. Caio's two backup plans follow this idea: a library track with clear terms, or a drum loop that Dec records.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose the plan you would pick and explain why, then fix the two marked lines. About 6 minutes.

Caio's cut uses about 20 seconds of a released song as background mood for the crew's festival film. Mateo texts, "We'll credit them in the caption. Post tonight?" Which plan should the crew choose?

- ☐ A Credit the artist in the caption and post tonight.
- ☑ B Pause the upload. Check the track's license, and swap in licensed or original music if the license does not cover this use.
- ☐ C Cut the song to ten seconds, since short clips are fair use.

Why I chose it

B. It treats permission as its own question and gives a backup plan. A mixes up credit and permission. C relies on a seconds rule that does not exist.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

We're good to post! (1) We only used like 20 seconds of the song and we're putting the artist's name in the caption so they get credit. Plus it's not like we're making money off it, it's just for our page. (2) Everyone uses songs like this on TikTok anyway so it's fine. We even changed the pitch a little so it's basically our own version now, and the whole cut is under two minutes. If they don't like it they can just ask us to take it down.

Notes

This page continues page 279.

Answer key

A revised version: Plan: we're pausing the upload tonight. We used about 20 seconds of the song as background mood, which isn't commentary on the song, and crediting the artist doesn't give us permission. We'll try two options. First, Caio will check whether the track has a license that covers this use. If not, we'll swap in a track from a library with a clear license, or Dec will record a short drum loop we own. We'll keep a rights log with the source, license and date for every clip and sound, then post by Sunday.

Other notes on the draft:

- "putting the artist's name in the caption" Good practice, but credit isn't permission.
- "it's not like we're making money off it" Noncommercial use is one consideration, not an automatic yes.
- "they can just ask us to take it down" That puts the risk on the artist. Check first.

Your reflection, about 200 words

My inquiry question was who owns a remix. The case showed me that a remix borrows from someone who still owns their work. Caio's cut used 20 seconds of a released song, and a caption credit would not have given the crew permission. For my own remix, I used only a drum loop I recorded and a photo from the school's licensed library. That rule changed my plan. I first wanted a song everyone knows, but I could not find a license that covered it. Recording my own loop was slower, and it sounded rougher. It also meant I could explain every piece in my rights log. The constraint pushed me to make more of the work myself. It also made me notice how much of what I watch is borrowed. Now I think a remix belongs partly to the original creator and partly to the remixer. Fair use is decided case by case, and my rights log shows who said yes to each piece.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete each sentence frame. About 10 minutes.

1 Caio pitched the song up slightly. Does changing a song make it a new work? Why or why not?

No. The song still belongs to its owner, only a little higher. A pitch change adds no new purpose, so the license question stays open.

2 Mateo says the TikTok clip goes in the rights log as "unknown." What would the crew need to find out to fill in that row?

Who the creator is, what Stitch permission covers and whether the creator agrees to this use, with a date.

3 Suppose a student used the same song in a video for class. What changes if that video becomes a public post?

More people see it. A public video could replace a license the artist might sell, and that is the fourth factor, the effect on the market.

My take

My claim: ___.

The crew should pause the upload, check the license and swap in licensed or original music if needed.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The rights log, because it shows "permission unknown" for both borrowed pieces.

- Compare Caio's two backup plans: a library track with clear terms or a drum loop Dec records. What does each need in the rights log?
- Going further: Apply the four fair-use factors to the six-second TikTok clip instead of the song. Which factor is hardest to judge, and why?
- Going further: Sketch two short storyboards of the setup montage: one with the sampled song and one with licensed or original music. Compare what each version makes viewers feel and what each one needs before it can be posted.
- Going further: Choose a sound or clip you have seen reused in several online videos. Trace it back to the earliest post you can find. Write a credit line for it, and note whether that post says anything about permission.
- Going further: Before you edit your next video or slideshow, list every outside clip, image, sound and quote. Record the source and the license or permission for each one. Ask your school librarian or media teacher about any use you are unsure of.
- Compare Creative Commons license types and what each allows
- Research how your school's media policy handles copyrighted material

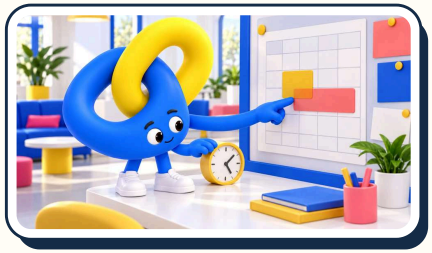
On your own Read What happened and underline what Rafa would do all summer. About 5 minutes.



Nexo, one of the crew's companions, points to where a meeting and a work shift overlap on a calendar. Rafa's internship would take time from his shifts at the family shop.

Your role: You're the one who checks each factor of the test before Rafa says yes. New skill: Apply a legal test factor by factor.

What happened

Rafa, 18, is a first-year college student who commutes to class and helps at his family's shop. In April, a studio posted a listing on the campus job board for a "Summer Editing Intern." The internship is unpaid. The listing says the intern will run the customer inbox all summer. Rafa reads it twice, looking for the editing.

On Tuesday at 11:20 a.m., the studio answers Rafa's message. The email says college credit makes it "totally legal" not to pay him. It also asks him to start right after finals.

At lunch, Rafa talks it over with Gia, who fits café shifts around her classes. Gia asks whether the studio paid someone to run the inbox last year. Rafa says the studio's assistant ran it. Taking the internship would also cost Rafa paid shifts at the shop. He has not said yes yet.

The story: The work behind the title

Rafa, 18, is a first-year commuter who helps at his family's shop after class. In April, a listing goes up on the campus job board: "Summer Editing Intern (unpaid). Join our fast-paced studio! You'll run the customer inbox all summer, help with client files and get great exposure to the industry. College credit available." Rafa reads it twice. The title says editing. The duties say inbox.

He writes to the studio. On Tuesday at 11:20 a.m., the reply arrives: "Since interns get college credit, it's totally legal for us not to pay. We'd love for you to start right after finals." Rafa pastes it into the group chat. Gia asks whether that is how it works. Rafa says he does not know yet and starts looking it up on the train.

At lunch, Gia, who fits café shifts around her own classes, asks the question that changes the conversation. Didn't the studio pay someone to run the inbox last year? Rafa says their assistant did it. Gia also counts what the summer would cost him: shifts at the shop, the commute and a whole summer with no pay. "Exposure," she points out, does not cover the train fare.

Your role is to check each factor of the test before Rafa says yes.

Stop and think. What does the gap between the job title and the duties tell Rafa?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (617 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: The work behind the title": What does the gap between the job title and the duties tell Rafa?
2. After "Applying a test factor by factor": Which factor does the paid assistant's job speak to, and which way does it point?
3. After "The case that set the test": Unpaid summers are easier for people who do not need a paycheck. Who might an unpaid internship leave out?

Applying a test factor by factor

The primary beneficiary test is how the U.S. Department of Labor decides whether an intern at a for-profit company is an employee. It asks whether the intern or the employer mainly benefits from an unpaid internship. If the intern is really an employee, the Fair Labor Standards Act applies. That is a federal law that sets minimum wage and overtime rules for most workers.

The Labor Department lists seven factors. They include training, links to coursework or academic credit, the school calendar and how long the learning lasts. Academic credit is credit toward a degree that a school gives for approved work, such as an internship. Another factor asks whether the intern's work adds to paid employees' work or replaces it. The test is flexible, and no single factor decides it. Calling a position an internship does not decide it. Neither does college credit, or an intern agreeing to no pay.

The new skill is applying a written test one factor at a time. It builds on Case 12, where you set fact patterns beside a precedent. Match each factor to a fact, and mark what is missing. On replacing paid work, the evidence is strong: a paid assistant ran the inbox last year. On academic credit, the listing says credit is "available," but nobody knows yet whether Rafa's school will grant it. On training and supervision, there are no facts at all. Rafa's own summary is exact: credit is one factor out of seven, so what about the other six?

Case 11 gave you the word compensation, all the pay and benefits a worker receives. Here, the compensation is zero, and the cost to Rafa is real. His email to the studio can ask for the missing facts in writing: who trains him, what a normal week looks like, how many hours and whether this is the job the assistant did last year.

> Stop and think. Which factor does the paid assistant's job speak to, and which way does it point?

The case that set the test

Two unpaid interns on the 2010 film Black Swan sued Fox Searchlight, arguing that they should have been paid as employees. In 2015, a federal appeals court adopted the question of who is the primary beneficiary (LAist, July 2, 2015). The Department of Labor's Fact Sheet #71 now lists the seven factors (U.S. Department of Labor, updated January 2018).

Unpaid internships are still common. PBS NewsHour reported that nearly half of U.S. interns were unpaid in 2022 and asked who can afford to take those jobs (PBS NewsHour, August 26, 2023).

> Stop and think. Unpaid summers are easier for people who do not need a paycheck. Who might an unpaid internship leave out?

This page continues page 291. The notes for both pages are on the sheet for page 291.

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document, then fill in both boxes under it. About 8 minutes.

Evidence A | Job listing

Studio listing on the campus job board, April

"Summer Editing Intern (unpaid). Join our fast-paced studio! You'll run the customer inbox all summer, help with client files and get great exposure to the industry. College credit available."

Look closely: Which words describe learning? Which words describe work?

What it shows

The role is unpaid, offers credit and names the customer inbox as the main duty.

What it leaves out

Who trains and supervises the intern, the weekly hours and any editing work.

Evidence B | Email

Studio reply to Rafa, Tuesday, 11:20 a.m.

"Thanks for your interest, Rafa! Since interns get college credit, it's totally legal for us not to pay. We'd love for you to start right after finals."

Look closely: Is credit one factor or the whole test? What does the email skip?

What it shows

The studio says college credit is why it does not have to pay Rafa.

What it leaves out

Training, supervision, weekly hours and whether Rafa's school will grant credit.

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: 8 min.

Say this

"Underline every task in the listing. Now circle the ones where Rafa learns." — Pause and ask what that tells them.

Watch for

Misconception: Students call the studio's email a lie. Listen for: "They're lying to him." Then: The email makes a claim. Ask which document could test it. Nobody knows what the studio believes.

Support

- Read the listing aloud and offer it on its own half-page.
- Reduce the factors to three: training, credit and paid work.
- Cognates: academic (académico), credit (crédito), employee (empleado), supervision (supervisión), beneficiary (beneficiario), factor (factor), minimum (mínimo), experience (experiencia).

Stretch

- Ask which factors the studio's email addresses and which it skips.

Evidence C | Chat

Gia and Rafa, Tuesday lunch

Gia: Didn't they pay someone to do the inbox last year?

Rafa: Yeah, their assistant.

Gia: And it's your summer, not theirs. What about your shifts at the shop?

Look closely: Who ran the customer inbox last year? Was that person paid?

What it shows

A paid assistant ran the inbox last year, so the role may replace paid work.

What it leaves out

How many paid shifts at the family shop Rafa would give up.

What is still missing from the evidence?

What training and supervision the studio actually provides, how many hours a week the role takes, whether Rafa's school will grant credit, and how many paid shifts at the family shop Rafa would give up.

Key idea: the primary beneficiary test

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 12 minutes.

A job title does not show how the work is arranged. The primary beneficiary test is how the U.S. Department of Labor decides whether an intern at a for-profit company is an employee. It asks whether the intern or the employer mainly benefits from an unpaid internship. An intern who counts as an employee must be paid under the Fair Labor Standards Act. The Fair Labor Standards Act is a federal law that sets minimum wage and overtime rules for most workers.

The Department of Labor's Fact Sheet #71 lists seven factors. They include training, links to coursework or academic credit, the school calendar and how long the learning lasts. Academic credit is credit toward a degree that a school gives for approved work, such as an internship. Another factor is whether the intern's work adds to paid employees' work or replaces it. The test is flexible, and no single factor decides it.

So the studio's email does not settle the question. Calling a job an internship does not decide it. Neither does college credit, or an intern agreeing to work for no pay. The test also has limits. It applies to for-profit employers, and state rules may differ. To apply the test, you need facts about the duties, training, supervision and hours.

NACE Principles for Ethical Professional Practice: 4. Comply with laws

"Comply with laws … associated with local, state, and federal entities"

In plain words: Career offices and employer recruiters who belong to NACE agree to follow federal, state and local laws.

Question: The campus job board lists the internship. What should the career office ask the studio about the seven DOL factors?

Your answer

Before posting, the career office should ask ___.

Before posting, the career office should ask about training, supervision, hours and whether the role replaces a paid assistant.

Say this

"The studio says one factor settles the test. What does the key idea say about a single factor?" — Wait for "no single factor decides it."

"The NACE principle asks career offices to follow the law. What should the office ask the studio?" — List answers on the board.

Watch for

Misconception: Students think the NACE principles bind the studio. Listen for: "The studio broke the NACE code." Then: Say: "NACE's principles guide its members, career offices and employer recruiters. A code of ethics is not a law."

Support

- Read the code quotation aloud. Point out the label: it is a real source, quoted word for word, with a gap marked "…".

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what Rafa should do next and explain why, then fix the two marked lines. About 6 minutes.

The studio's unpaid internship has Rafa running its customer inbox all summer, the job a paid assistant did last year. The studio says college credit makes it legal. What should Rafa do next?

- ☐ A Accept the studio's answer, since college credit settles the question.
- ☑ B Ask for the learning plan, supervision, schedule and how the role relates to paid employees' work.
- ☐ C Tell the studio that unpaid internships are against the law.

Why I chose it

B. It gathers the facts the test looks at. A treats one factor as the whole test, and C swaps one broad claim for another.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Hi, thanks so much for the offer! I'm really excited about this opportunity and I know it will look great on my résumé. I just wanted to ask ❶ if this is legal since it's unpaid? My friend said unpaid internships aren't allowed. Also how many hours is it? ❷ I can start whenever you need me. I really want to get into editing and this seems like a good way in. Let me know! Thank you again for thinking of me, Rafa

Your draft

On your own Write your first draft in the boxes, using your planner from the page before. About 20 minutes.

Your reflection, about 150 words

My research question was who benefits from internships. The case gave me one kind of evidence: a legal test with factors. Rafa's offer showed how an employer can gain an inbox worker while calling the role training. My interview gave me a different kind of evidence, one person's path into work. It showed me how much a first job depends on who teaches you. Putting the two together changed my view. Fairness is about pay, but it is also about who can afford to say yes. Rafa helps at his family's shop, so he cannot give up a summer of pay as easily as someone who does not need it. Fair access depends on how work and learning are arranged.

Pacing

Full chapter: 20 min.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete each sentence frame. About 10 minutes.

1 What would count as evidence that the promised training is happening?

A written learning plan, a named supervisor who gives feedback and hours set aside for editing, not only the inbox.

2 Unpaid summers are easier for people who do not need a paycheck. Who might an unpaid internship leave out?

Students who need summer pay, like Rafa, who helps at his family's shop. They may have to turn the internship down.

3 If Rafa's school grants credit, does that settle whether the studio should pay him? Why or why not?

No. Credit is one of seven factors, and no single factor decides the test. The inbox work a paid assistant did still points toward a job.

My take

My claim: ___.

Rafa should ask for the learning plan, supervision and hours in writing before he decides.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The chat, because a paid assistant ran the same inbox last year.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Use question 2 only, with its cool-down ready.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from the evidence, not a story about a job you or your family had." — Post the question numbers and collect one answer per question.

Stretch

- Compare what the offer costs Rafa with what it would cost a student who does not need summer pay.
- Going further: Read Fact Sheet #71 from the Department of Labor. For each of the seven factors, mark whether Rafa's offer points toward training, toward a job or is still unknown.
- Going further: Suppose the studio answers, "We'll give college credit." What problem does that solve for the studio? What problem does it leave for Rafa?
- Going further: Make a two-column worksheet that compares what the listing promises with a normal week of duties. Ask a classmate to fill it in, and see which gaps they find.
- Going further: Before you accept any internship, ask for the duties, hours, supervision and pay in writing. Take the offer to your school counselor or college career center. If you are under 18, involve a trusted adult before you agree to any work.
- Look up whether your state has its own internship or minimum-wage rules
- Compare the for-profit test with guidance for volunteering at nonprofits

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

College credit shows the studio cares about his education.

I would change my mind if ___.

The studio showed a written plan with real editing training.

Content note

This case involves disability access and a request for an exception to a building rule. No student should share their own disability, health information or housing situation, so keep the discussion on Sami's building.

This case explains general rules. It is not legal advice for your situation.

Overview

Students read a short story in which an unsigned notice says a building's rear door will be locked at 8 p.m. That step-free door is the only one Sami can use. Students compare the notice with last year's house rules and the entrance plan, and they map how the rule affects different residents. They read HUD's Fair Housing Act overview as a source of questions, then rewrite the notice or write Sami's question to the building manager.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- write a research question
- identify which document governs a situation
- write clearly for a new reader

Objectives

Try it at your school

Ask who wrote the rule before you argue about it.

- When a new rule is posted where you live or at school, write down the date and take a photo
- Look for who issued it and what document it changes
- Ask a trusted adult to help you ask the building manager or office
- Find your city's or county's tenant or housing help page with an adult

Who to ask: A parent or guardian, the building manager, a local tenant or housing help line, a school social worker

Safety: Don't post neighbors' names, unit numbers or private situations online. Let adults handle lease disputes.

Case 16: Who wrote the new building rule?

An unsigned notice says the building's only step-free door locks at 8 p.m., and Sami's workshop runs later.

On your own Read What happened and underline the two changes the notice announces. About 5 minutes.

Mari hands a yellow sheet to Sami across a white table while Caio listens. This scene comes from Case 4.

Your role: You're the one who photographs the notice and writes down when and where it was found.
New skill: Find who has the authority to make a rule.

What happened

It is Monday morning in Sami's apartment building. A new notice is posted beside the common-room door. It says the rear door will be locked at 8:00 p.m. every night. It also says the common room is "for resident social use only," with "NO BUSINESS USE" in capital letters. The notice has no name, no date and no contact.

That rear door matters to Sami, who lives in apartment 3B and uses a manual wheelchair. It is the building's only step-free entrance. The front entrance has four steps and no ramp. Sami also runs a workshop in the common room, and it goes past 8 p.m.

Caio reads last year's house rules beside the notice. Those rules let residents reserve the common room for classes and resident-run workshops. The new notice does not say whether it replaces them. Before anyone starts arguing, Sami photographs the notice and writes down when and where she found it.

Your question: Who has the authority behind this notice, and what should Sami ask the building manager?

Authority Authority is the power a person or group has to make or change a particular rule or decision.

Reasonable accommodation A reasonable accommodation is a change to a rule or practice that gives a person with a disability equal use of a place.

En español: acomodo razonable

In this case: Sami could ask the building for a key fob for the rear door, so she can get in after 8 p.m.

On your own Read the passage. At each Stop and think box, pause and answer the question in your head or with a partner. About 5 minutes.

Words to know

- Authority: Authority is the power a person or group has to make or change a particular rule or decision.
- Reasonable accommodation: A reasonable accommodation is a change to a rule or practice that gives a person with a disability equal use of a place.
- Documentation: Documentation is a record, such as a photo, a note or an email, that shows what was said or done and when.
- Decision-maker: A decision-maker is the person or group with the power to make a particular choice.
- Barrier: A barrier is something that blocks or limits a person from taking part.

The story: Monday morning, 3B

On Monday morning, a new notice is posted beside the common-room door in Sami's apartment building. "NOTICE TO ALL RESIDENTS. Effective immediately, the rear door will be locked at 8:00 p.m. nightly. The common room is for resident social use only. NO BUSINESS USE." There is no name at the bottom, no date and no phone number or email.

Sami reads it twice. She lives in apartment 3B and uses a manual wheelchair. The entrance plan in the lobby directory tells the rest. The front entrance has four steps and no ramp, and the side door is for service use only. The rear door is the only step-free way in. She also runs a workshop in the common room that goes past 8 p.m. "So, questions," she tells Caio. "Plural."

Her first move is not an argument. She takes a photo of the notice and writes down when and where she found it. Caio, who rents a room on the block, brings last year's house rules, the ones residents got at lease signing, so they can read the two side by side.

Your role is to help Sami keep a clean record of the notice before anyone starts arguing about what it said.

Stop and think. Sami's first move is a photo, not an argument. Why?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (607 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: Monday morning, 3B": Sami's first move is a photo, not an argument. Why?
2. After "Finding the source of a rule": What would you need to know to decide whether Sami's workshop counts as business use?
3. After "What the law says and what tenants have done": A building may want a door locked at night. How could it keep that door secure and still let Sami in?

Finding the source of a rule

Authority is the power a person or group has to make or change a particular rule or decision. The notice uses every visual sign of authority, including capital letters, bold type and "effective immediately." It gives no evidence of who holds that authority. An unsigned notice is not automatically invalid, either. Sami has to find out who issued it and which document it claims to change.

Earlier cases prepared this skill. Case 1 sent you to the original source, and last year's house rules are one. They say residents may reserve the common room for "gatherings, classes and resident-run workshops" through the building office. Case 4 gave you the decision-maker, the person or group with the power to make a particular choice. Case 7 taught you to ask what stage a process has reached. Is this notice final, a draft or a mistake? Nobody knows.

Caio spots the gap in the wording. Last year's rules allow resident-run workshops. The notice bans "business use" without defining it. Is Sami's workshop business? The notice never says.

Case 10's term barrier, something that blocks or limits a person from taking part, describes what a locked rear door would mean for Sami after 8. A reasonable accommodation is a change to a rule or practice that gives a person with a disability equal use of a place. For Sami, a key fob for the rear door would work. Documentation is a record, such as a photo, a note or an email, that shows what was said or done and when. Her photo and note are documentation.

Her message to the building manager will ask three things: who issued the notice, whether it replaces last year's rules and how she gets in after 8. Neither she nor Caio calls it illegal yet.

> Stop and think. What would you need to know to decide whether Sami's workshop counts as business use?

What the law says and what tenants have done

The Fair Housing Act is a federal law. HUD, the federal housing department, says it bars housing discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, familial status or disability, and it covers most housing, with some exceptions (HUD, no date listed). HUD has also explained how a person with a disability can ask for an exception to a building rule (HUD, January 31, 2014).

Tenants have used process before. At a Brooklyn complex, a landlord applied to install a facial-recognition entry system. Because the change needed a state agency's permission, tenants could object, and in November 2019 the landlord withdrew the plan (Gothamist, November 21, 2019).

Key idea: authority

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 12 minutes.

A building rule should name who made it, give a date and list a contact. This notice has none of them. Authority is the power a person or group has to make or change a particular rule or decision. Bold type and capital letters do not show who has that power. An unsigned notice is not automatically invalid, either. Sami has to find out who issued it and which document it claims to change.

A landlord's policy and the law are different sources of rules. The Fair Housing Act is a federal law. HUD, the federal housing department, says it bars housing discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, familial status or disability. It covers most housing, with some exceptions. Under the Act, a person with a disability can ask a building for a reasonable accommodation. A reasonable accommodation is a change to a rule or practice that gives a person with a disability equal use of a place. For Sami, that could be a key fob for the rear door.

Sami cannot yet say the notice breaks the law. She does not know who wrote it, whether it replaces the house rules or how the building handles access requests. Whether a building grants an accommodation also depends on the facts. Documentation helps her keep those facts straight. Documentation is a record, such as a photo, a note or an email, that shows what was said or done and when. Her photo of the notice, with the date and place she found it, is documentation.

The notice says the rear door, the building's only step-free entrance, locks at 8 p.m. It also bans "business use" of the common room. It has no name, no date and no contact. What should Sami do first?

- ☐ A Ignore it until someone signs it, since an unsigned notice may not be official.
- ☑ B Photograph it, compare it with last year's house rules and ask the manager who issued it and how residents get in after 8.
- ☐ C Post online that the building is breaking disability law.

Why I chose it

B. It records the facts and asks about authority and access. A could leave Sami locked out, and C claims a violation she cannot support yet.

Answer key

A revised version: Hi, I'm writing about the notice posted by the common room on Monday. It says the rear door will be locked after 8 p.m. and bans business use of the room. I use a wheelchair, and the rear door is the building's only step-free entrance, so I need a way to get in after 8. I'd like to request an accommodation, such as a key fob for that door. Could you also tell me who issued the notice and whether it replaces the house rules from last year, which allowed resident workshops? Thank you, Sami, 3B

Other notes on the draft:

- "disabled people like me" Sami's access need is real and relevant. Describe it concretely: the step-free door.
- "because the old rules said I could" Useful: quote the older rule so the manager can check it.

- Represents several perspectives
- Reflection connects to fairness

Your draft

On your own Write your first draft in the boxes, using your planner from the page before. About 20 minutes.

Your reflection, about 150 words

My research question was what makes a building rule fair. The notice in Sami's building taught me that fairness starts with knowing who made a rule. The notice had no name, date or contact, so no resident could ask about it. It also landed hardest on residents like Sami, who need the only step-free door. A rule can have a fair goal, like safety, and still shut someone out. For my guide, I included three kinds of residents: a wheelchair user, a workshop leader and a resident worried about safety. Writing for all three showed me that a fair rule says who made it and whom it affects.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete each sentence frame. About 10 minutes.

1 Which missing fact would most change how you see the notice?

Whether it replaces last year's house rules. If it does not, residents may still reserve the room for workshops.

2 The notice bans "business use" without saying what that means. What would you need to know to decide whether Sami's workshop counts?

The building's definition of business use, whether Sami charges for the workshop and whether resident-run workshops still count under the old rules.

3 A building may want a door locked at night. How could it keep that door secure and still let Sami in?

Keep the door locked to the public but give residents who need it a key fob, as Sami suggests.

My take

My claim: ___.

Sami should document the notice and ask the manager who issued it, with a request for a key fob.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The entrance plan, because it shows the 8 p.m. lock falls on the only step-free door.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 5 min. Use question 1 only.

Stretch

- List every kind of resident the 8 p.m. lock could affect, without names or unit numbers, and one question each would ask.
- Going further: Read HUD's Fair Housing Act overview. Which protected characteristic applies to Sami? List two facts you would need before saying the law was broken.
- Going further: The notice affects other residents too. Write a short note from Sami to other residents that explains the change and asks who else it affects. Leave out names, unit numbers and claims you cannot support.
- Going further: Rewrite the notice so every resident can tell who issued it, what changed, when it starts and who to ask. Put your version next to the original. Ask a reader which details they would still want to check.
- Going further: When a new rule is posted where you live or at school, write down the date and take a photo. Look for who issued it and what document it changes. Ask a trusted adult to help you bring your questions to the building manager or school office.
- Research what local tenant organizations exist in your area and what they offer
- Compare federal fair-housing protections with your state's list of protected characteristics

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

An unsigned notice isn't official, so Sami can ignore it.

I would change my mind if ___.

The manager said the notice was a mistake and the door stays open.

Case 17: How should the crew give out ten free seats?

Thirty people want ten free workshop seats, and the crew must choose a fair way to decide who gets them.

On your own Read What happened and underline the sentence that tells how many people want a seat. About 5 minutes.

Duda holds up a phone and points at a blank card on a bulletin board.

Your role: You're the one who writes down the rule before the crew picks the ten names. New skill: Set fair criteria before choosing.

What happened

The crew has ten free seats for a workshop, and thirty people want one. The crew opened a sign-up sheet on Monday at 9 a.m. Twenty-two names were on it before 10 a.m. By Wednesday, the sheet has thirty names.

The sheet says only "How seats will be chosen: to be announced." The crew has argued about the rule since dinner on Sunday. Gia is running the sign-up. She wants to give the seats to the first ten names, because that is simple and fast. Mateo suggests a lottery instead.

Anika, 16, is at rehearsal most days, and she checks her phone after rehearsal ends. Under first-come, she would see the message after the seats were gone. A third option on the crew's whiteboard would give seats to people who cannot afford the paid version of the workshop. That option would ask people for personal information.

Every method seats exactly ten people. The crew has to decide which ten, and then explain the rule to all thirty.

Your question: How should the crew choose who gets the ten seats, and how should they explain the choice to all thirty people?

The story: To be announced

The crew has ten free seats for a workshop and a sign-up sheet that filled faster than anyone expected. It opened Monday at 9 a.m. Twenty-two names were on it before 10. By Wednesday, there are thirty. The line at the bottom still reads, “How seats will be chosen: to be announced.” The crew has been arguing about that line since dinner on Sunday.

Gia is running the sign-up, and she wants first come, first served. It is easy to explain, she can post it tonight and she has a shift at seven. Mateo suggests a lottery. Gia points out what that costs: a sign-up window and someone to run the drawing. A third option sits on the whiteboard, a needs-based rubric that would favor people who cannot afford the paid version of the workshop.

Anika, 16, is at rehearsal most days, and her phone lives in her bag until rehearsal ends. Under first-come, she would see the message after the seats were gone. She is careful about what she is asking for. She does not need a seat. She wants to know how the crew is picking, and she wants them to be honest that someone like her would lose out.

Your role is to write down the rule before the crew picks the ten names.

Stop and think. Gia’s reason for first-come is partly about her own time. Is that a fair criterion? Why or why not?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (644 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After “The story: To be announced”: Gia’s reason for first-come is partly about her own time. Is that a fair criterion? Why or why not?
2. After “Criteria, trade-offs and equity”: Option C would help people who cannot afford the paid workshop. What would applicants give up to be chosen that way?
3. After “Real rationing decisions”: What would make the twenty people without seats accept the result as fair?

Criteria, trade-offs and equity

Criteria are the standards or reasons a group uses to make a decision. The new skill is setting fair criteria before choosing and saying honestly who each rule leaves out. The whiteboard already does part of that work. Option A, first come, first served, is fast to run and favors whoever sees it first. Option B, a lottery after a three-day sign-up, gives everyone an equal chance but needs a sign-up window and a drawing. Option C, a needs-based rubric, prioritizes people who cannot afford the paid version but needs personal information and someone to judge it.

Case 4 gave you the word trade-off, a choice where getting one benefit means accepting a cost or giving something up. Every option seats exactly ten people, so every option leaves twenty without a seat. The choice is which cost to accept. Equity is a way of sharing that adjusts for different needs so everyone gets a fair chance. Option C aims at equity, and it carries a cost Case 6 prepared you to see. Consent is permission a person gives for something specific. A needs-based rule asks applicants to share personal information, so the crew would need their consent and a plan for who sees it.

Timing matters as much as the rule. The sign-up sheet shows most names arrived in the first hour, before any rule was posted. If the crew picks a rule now, after seeing the names, people may wonder whether it was chosen to favor someone. A rule stated clearly and early is easier to accept, even for the twenty who miss out.

Anika also suggests a better way to compare the options. Ask two questions. Which option helps the most people? And is the way we pick fair to everyone? Gia, for her part, admits she mostly wanted the job off her list. What would change her mind is learning that the people the crew most wants in the room are the ones who would see the message last.

> Stop and think. Option C would help people who cannot afford the paid workshop. What would applicants give up to be chosen that way?

Real rationing decisions

Santa Clara University's Markkula Center suggests looking at a decision through several ethical lenses, including consequences, rights, fairness, the common good, character and care (Markkula Center for Applied Ethics, revised November 5, 2021). The lenses can point to different answers.

Real institutions face the same choice. New York City uses random lotteries for some middle and high school seats (Chalkbeat New York, October 1, 2024). For Taylor Swift's Eras Tour, more than 3.5 million people registered for presale codes. Ticketmaster says about 1.5 million received codes, and 2 million were waitlisted (Ticketmaster, November 19, 2022).

> Stop and think. What would make the twenty people without seats accept the result as fair?

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document and write what it shows and what it leaves out. About 8 minutes.

Evidence A | Sign-up sheet

The workshop sign-up sheet

"Free workshop: 10 seats. Add your name to show interest. How seats will be chosen: to be announced." The sheet opened Monday at 9 a.m. By Wednesday it had thirty names. The first 22 names were added before 10 a.m. on Monday.

Look closely: When did most names arrive, and what rule was posted then?

What it shows

Thirty names for ten seats. Twenty-two came in the first hour, before any rule.

What it leaves out

Who signed up after 10 a.m., and why they saw the sheet later.

Evidence B | Group-chat thread

The crew's thread, Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

Gia: first come is easiest to run, we just take the top ten.

Anika: I'm at rehearsal most days, I'd see it after it's full.

Mateo: lottery?

Gia: then we need a sign-up window and someone to run the drawing.

Look closely: Which cost does each person name? Which cost does nobody name?

What it shows

Gia names how much work each method needs. Anika names who first-come leaves out.

What it leaves out

The views of the thirty people on the sheet. Only the crew is talking.

Pacing

Watch for

Misconception: Students read an early sign-up as proof of stronger interest. Listen for: "The first ten wanted it more." Then: Ask what else could explain an early name. The sheet shows timing, not need.

Needs-based rubric: prioritizes people who can't afford the paid version; needs personal information and someone to judge it.

Look closely: Underline the cost the crew wrote for each option.

What it shows

A benefit and a cost for each option. Only option C looks at need.

What it leaves out

Who would see applicants' personal information, and if a second session is possible.

What is still missing from the evidence?

How many applicants have the greatest need, whether a second session is possible and who would see personal information under option C.

Key idea: fair criteria

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

Any way of giving out ten seats to thirty people leaves twenty people without one. A trade-off is a choice where getting one benefit means accepting a cost or giving something up. First-come is fast, but it favors people who see the message first. A lottery gives everyone the same chance, but it does not consider need. A needs-based rubric aims at equity by helping people who cannot afford the paid version, but applicants must share personal information. Each option has a cost, so the crew has to choose which cost to accept.

Criteria are the standards or reasons a group uses to make a decision. When the crew states its criteria early, everyone knows the rule before anyone is chosen. Even people who do not get a seat may accept the result if the rule was clear in advance. If the crew picks a rule after seeing the names, people may wonder whether it was chosen to favor someone.

The Markkula Center for Applied Ethics at Santa Clara University suggests looking at a decision through several ethical lenses. They include consequences, rights, fairness, the common good, character and care. The lenses can point toward different options, and they do not add up to one automatic score. A strong decision explains which concern matters most in this case, who carries the cost and what could reduce it.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose the note you would send, explain why and fix the two marked phrases. About 6 minutes.

Gia is drafting a note to the thirty people on the sign-up sheet. Which sentence could the crew defend?

- ☐ A "We picked the fairest method, so nobody loses out."
- ☑ B "We're holding a lottery so everyone has the same chance. A lottery doesn't favor people with the most need, so we're looking into a second session."
- ☐ C "Seats go to the first ten names on the sheet, because those people wanted it most."

Why I chose it

B. It names the method, the reason and the cost. A claims nobody loses out, but twenty people will. C treats signing up first as wanting a seat most.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

We should do first come first served because (1) it's the most fair. Everyone has the same chance to sign up and if you really want it you'll sign up fast. It's simple and (2) nobody can complain because they had the same opportunity as everyone else. Also it's way less work for us than reading thirty applications or doing some random drawing. The people who don't get in can just come to the next workshop whenever we have one. This is obviously the best way.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

First-come is the fastest to run, but it favors people who see the message first.

Rewrite phrase 2

People like Anika, who check their phones after rehearsal, would start behind.

Pacing

Support

- Read the three notes aloud before students choose.

Heat check

■□□ Low.

Answer key

A revised version: We recommend a lottery after a three-day sign-up period. A lottery gives each of the thirty people an equal chance, while first-come, first-served favors whoever sees the message first, which leaves out people like Anika who check their phones after rehearsal. The cost is that a lottery doesn't prioritize people with the greatest need. To reduce that, we'll announce the sign-up in the group chat, at the bookshop counter and on paper, and we'll run a second session for the twenty people who don't get seats. We'd reconsider if the second session can't happen.

- Process has published criteria
- Tested and revised
- Reflection addresses fairness

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes, using your planner from the page before. About 20 minutes.

Your reflection, about 200 words

I started from the crew's case. Ten free seats and thirty names meant twenty people would miss out under any rule. My process for class trip seats uses a lottery after a three-day sign-up. The crew's sign-up sheet showed that first-come rewards whoever sees a notice first. Twenty-two of their thirty names came in the first hour. Testing with invented applicants showed a gap I had missed. One applicant never saw the online notice, so my lottery was equal only for people who knew about it. I added a paper notice. I now think a fair share depends on two parts: a rule everyone knows before they apply, and a real chance for everyone to apply. My process still does not consider need. I would want to discuss that with the adults who run the trip.

Answer key

How to assess: The educator uses Individuals and societies criteria C and D and Language and literature criterion B, applying the school’s own year-level descriptors.

Proficient looks like:

- Evidence: Names specific people and effects from the case.
- Reasoning: Uses a lens and names the strongest objection.
- Audience & purpose: Explains the process to all applicants.
- Revision: Adds a named cost and revision.

One change I made after feedback

I changed ___ because ___.

I added the limit about need, because my first reflection called the process fair to everyone.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete the sentence frames. About 10 minutes.

1 Whose view would most challenge the option you prefer?

I prefer the lottery. Someone who cannot afford the paid workshop would challenge it, because a lottery gives them no extra chance.

2 Anika says she does not need a seat. What is she asking the crew for?

She is asking the crew to explain the rule and to admit who loses under it. Then they can look for a fix.

3 Option C would help people who cannot afford the paid workshop. What would applicants give up to be chosen that way?

They would give up privacy. Someone would have to read their personal information and judge their need.

My take

My claim: ___.

The crew should hold a lottery after a three-day sign-up and post the rule first.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The sign-up sheet, because 22 names came in before 10 a.m., before any rule was posted.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 8 min. Discuss question 4 only.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from the evidence, such as a time on the sheet or a line on the whiteboard." — Ask for one answer per question.

Stretch

- Find out how your school fills one limited spot, such as a trip or a club seat, and whether the rule is published first.
- Going further: Each method treats a different problem as the main one. For each of the three options, write the problem it tries to solve and one problem it leaves unsolved.
- Going further: Write down the option you picked first. Then find one person in the case that option treats unfairly. Decide whether you would change your criteria or explain them more carefully.
- Going further: Write two short sign-up announcements, each using a different method. Ask a friend to read both. Check whether they can tell who each plan leaves out and how to ask a question about it.
- Going further: Pick one limited spot at school, such as a class, a trip or a club seat. Find out how people are chosen and whether the rule is published. Ask who the rule helps and who it might leave out. Never ask classmates to share financial or personal information.
- Research how a real program uses a lottery and what critics say
- Design a hybrid method and test it against all three lenses

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

A lottery ignores need, so someone who cannot afford the paid version gets no help.

I would change my mind if ___.

The crew could not run a second session for the people left out.

Case 18: Why is the theater curtain still falling apart?

Overview

Students read a short story in which the theater curtain at Dec and Anika's school will not close. Meanwhile, a social post points to the district's $48 million budget. Students label a proposed-budget excerpt by year, stage and units, explain why the post compares a total with a per-pupil figure and map who decides. They then write a budget question and a 60-second comment for the school board.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- read a statistics table with units
- make a labeled bar chart
- write a statement of inquiry from a key concept

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- investigate "How are school resources shared?" using the case and the NCES revenue table
- build a fair, labeled comparison with matching units and years
- explain one reason the comparison might still mislead
- connect the comparison to fairness

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student

Materials, continued

- Evidence A and B
- The NCES revenue table (2022—23) and two district budget summaries you choose
- A chart template with unit labels and a fair-comparison checklist

Case 18: Why is the theater curtain still falling apart?

The district's proposed budget is $48 million, the school theater curtain won't close, and Dec wants to ask the school board about it.

On your own Read What happened and underline the three dollar amounts. About 5 minutes.

Anika, Dec and Mari test a small light circuit in a theater workshop, with Pauta beside them.

Your role: You're the one who works out the per-student number before anyone repeats the post. New skill: Compare numbers on the same scale.

What happened

The curtain in the school theater is torn, and it no longer closes all the way. Dec, 17, pulls that curtain at every show. He and Anika, 16, are on the theater crew. The facilities office gave the theater advisor a quote to replace the curtain: $6,800.

Mari, 19, is helping them prepare a question for the school board. They find the district's proposed budget for next school year. The total is $48 million for a projected 3,200 students. One line sets aside $310,000 for building repairs at all schools. A note says the figures may change before the board adopts the budget.

On Tuesday at 6:10 p.m., a post starts going around. It compares the district's $48 million with another district, Westbrook, at $21,000 per student. "And they can't fix ONE curtain??" it asks. Dec has a photo of the torn curtain. He wants to be the one who asks the board about it.

Your question: What can the $48 million total tell Dec about the curtain, and what should he ask the school board?

Pacing

Key terms

On your own Read each key term and its example, then write your first guess in the box. About 6 minutes.

Revenue Revenue is money that comes into a government or an organization, such as taxes and grants.

En español: ingresos

In this case: NCES reports that public schools get revenue from federal, state and local sources. That national data cannot show what Dec's district spends on a curtain.

Expenditure An expenditure is money that a government or an organization spends.

En español: gasto

In this case: The $48 million is a proposed plan for next school year. It lists planned expenditures, but none of that money has been spent yet.

Per-pupil amount A per-pupil amount is a total divided by the number of students, so that districts of different sizes can be compared.

En español: monto por estudiante

In this case: $48,000,000 ÷ 3,200 students = $15,000 per student. Westbrook's $21,000 is already per student, but its year and stage are unknown.

Who is involved

Mari
Helping the theater crew with a budget question

"Forty-eight million dollars, and the curtain still won't close. Ay, bendito. Before we get mad at the big number, which line is supposed to fix it?"

Dec
Pulls the curtain at every show

"I pull that curtain every show. It doesn't close all the way anymore. That part I can show you."

Pacing

The story: A curtain and a viral post

Dec pulls the stage curtain at every show. The fabric is torn, and the curtain no longer closes all the way. Dec, 17, and Anika, 16, are on the theater crew, and the facilities office has already given the theater advisor a quote to replace it: $6,800.

Mari, 19, is helping them prepare a question for the school board. Together they find the district's proposed budget for next school year. The top line is $48 million for a projected 3,200 students. One line reads "Facilities, building repairs (all schools): $310,000." A note at the bottom says the figures are proposed and may change before the board adopts the budget.

Then, on Tuesday at 6:10 p.m., a post starts circulating: "Our district: $48 MILLION. Westbrook: $21,000 per student. And they can't fix ONE curtain?? Where is the money going?" Anika sends it to the chat. Dec admits the curtain part is true. Mari asks where the numbers come from.

Your role is to work out the per-student number before anyone repeats the post.

Stop and think. What three labels should you check before comparing budget numbers?

Year, stage and unit

Before comparing two budget numbers, check three labels: the year, the stage and the unit. The post skips all three. Its $48 million is a proposed total for a whole district next year.

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (586 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: A curtain and a viral post": What three labels should you check before comparing budget numbers?
2. After "Year, stage and unit": After you work out $15,000 per student, what is still missing from the comparison?
3. After "Real budgets, real limits": Dec wants to ask the board himself. Why might it matter who brings the question?

Its Westbrook figure is a per-student amount from an unknown year and stage.

A per-pupil amount is a total divided by the number of students, so that districts of different sizes can be compared. The new skill is comparing numbers on the same scale, and it builds on Case 11, where you compared two jobs on the same terms. Divide $48,000,000 by 3,200 students, and the district's proposed amount is $15,000 per student. The post's comparison now looks different. It is still incomplete, because Westbrook's budget year and stage are unknown. A per-pupil figure also cannot say whether either district has enough for its students' needs.

Revenue is money that comes into a government or an organization, such as taxes and grants. An expenditure is money that a government or an organization spends. The budget is a plan for expenditures, and it is a proposal, the Case 4 term for a change that someone suggests and that has not been approved yet. A proposed budget, an adopted budget and actual spending are three different documents.

Case 5 taught you to read a document line by line. Mari applies that to the budget. She reads the labels before reacting to the big number, and she looks for the line that could cover a curtain. Case 13 taught you to keep a claim as small as your evidence. Dec does that. His photo shows the tear, and that is all it shows. He brings the photo, the $6,800 quote and a question.

The Case 4 decision-maker, the person or group with the power to make a particular choice, is the school board, which adopts the budget. Dec's question should name one line, one need and the board's next chance to hear requests. He also wants to ask it himself, because it is his crew's curtain.

> Stop and think. After you work out $15,000 per student, what is still missing from the comparison?

Real budgets, real limits

The National Center for Education Statistics reports that public schools get revenue from federal, state and local sources, and the mix differs by state (NCES, May 2024). NPR has explained how local property taxes make school budgets very different from one district to the next (NPR, April 18, 2016). Many large districts are now making cuts because of inflation and enrollment declines, which shows how a large budget can leave little room for extras (Chalkbeat, May 28, 2026).

> Stop and think. Dec wants to ask the board himself. Why might it matter who brings the question?

Key idea: per-pupil amounts

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

Before you compare two budget numbers, check three labels: the year, the stage and the unit. An expenditure is money that a government or an organization spends. A proposed budget is a plan for expenditures. An adopted budget is the plan the board approves. Actual spending is what the district really spent. The $48 million is a proposed total for the whole district. The Westbrook figure is an amount per student.

A per-pupil amount is a total divided by the number of students, so that districts of different sizes can be compared. Dec's district proposes $48,000,000 for a projected 3,200 students. That works out to $15,000 per student. The comparison is still not complete, because Westbrook's budget year and stage are unknown. A per-pupil figure also cannot show whether either district has enough for its students' needs.

Revenue is money that comes into a government or an organization, such as taxes and grants. The National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) reports that public schools get revenue from federal, state and local sources. The mix differs from state to state. National data like this gives context, but it cannot say what one district spends on a curtain. In most states, an elected local school board adopts the budget within state and federal rules. That is why Dec's question should name one budget line, one need and the board's next chance to hear requests.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what the crew should do first, explain why and fix the two marked phrases. About 6 minutes.

A post compares the district's $48 million total with Westbrook's $21,000 per student. Someone reposts it and adds "we get way less." What should the crew do first?

- ☐ A Share it. Both figures are in dollars, and the curtain really is torn.
- ☑ B Check that both figures use the same year, budget stage and units before comparing them.
- ☐ C Divide $48 million by 3,200 students, and post that the district is underfunded.

Why I chose it

B. A total and a per-student amount cannot be compared directly. C fixes the units but still overclaims, because one figure cannot show underfunding.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Our district has a (1) $48 million budget but our theater curtain is ripped and gross. That's so much money and they can't even fix one curtain? It has been like this since before any of us joined the crew and it keeps getting worse every show. Where is all the money going? Other districts get way more. I saw a post that said so. We deserve better and (2) the board needs to explain themselves. We are honestly tired of waiting for this.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

Our district has a proposed $48 million budget for next school year.

Rewrite phrase 2

Could the board explain which line covers stage equipment and how repairs are ranked?

Answer key

A revised version: Our question is about next year's proposed budget. The theater curtain is torn at the seam and no longer closes fully; we have a photo and a $6,800 replacement quote from the facilities office. The proposed budget lists $310,000 for building repairs across the district. We'd like to know whether stage equipment is covered by that line or a different one, how repair requests are ranked, and when the board considers them. Could a student from the theater crew submit a written request before the budget is adopted? Thank you for considering it.

Investigate "How are school resources shared?" and create a visual comparing two districts fairly.

Use: NCES table and two district budget summaries; global context: Fairness and development.

You'll make: Visual plus 200-word explanation

Time: 90 minutes

1. Write the statement of inquiry in the first planner box.
2. Choose two district budget summaries from the same year and stage.
3. Calculate a per-pupil amount for each district.
4. Sketch a labeled chart in the planner, with units and years.
5. Write a 200-word explanation on the Your draft page.
6. Name one reason the comparison might still mislead.

Statement of inquiry

How funding systems divide resources shapes what students experience in each school, and fair comparisons require matching units, years and needs.

Chart plan: title, axis labels, units

Title: Proposed spending per student, same year. Y-axis: dollars per student. One bar for each district.

Pacing

Full chapter: 30 min.

Short on time: 30 min.

Say this

"Before you draw a bar, write its unit and its year." — Check two planners before students start drawing.

Watch for

Misconception: Charts compare a total with a per-pupil figure. Listen for: "Our bar is $48 million." Then: Ask what unit the other bar uses. Convert both to per pupil.

- Connects to fairness

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes, using your planner from the page before. About 20 minutes.

Your explanation, about 200 words

My chart compares proposed spending per student in two districts from the same year. I started from the crew's case. A post compared a district's $48 million total with Westbrook's $21,000 per student, which mixes two units. Dividing $48,000,000 by 3,200 students gives $15,000 per student, so I used per-pupil amounts for both bars. I also matched the year and the stage, because a proposed budget is a plan and an adopted budget is approved. The comparison can still mislead. Two districts can spend the same per student and face different costs and needs. The NCES table shows that the mix of federal, state and local revenue differs from state to state. My statement of inquiry says fair comparisons need matching units, years and needs. My chart matches the first two. It cannot show the third.

Pacing

Short on time: 20 min.

Say this

"Which part of your statement of inquiry does your chart not show?" — Ask for one sentence that names it.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the per-pupil comparison as the full story. Listen for: "They get more, so it's unfair." Then: Ask what else differs: costs, needs and the revenue mix.

Heat check

■■□ Medium. Comparing districts can turn into judgments about wealthy and poor neighborhoods students know.

Cool-down: Keep comparisons to the data on the page. Ask what the numbers show and what they cannot show.

Answer key

What to notice in the sample:

1. Explains the problem the chart fixes.
2. Shows the comparison is fair on units and years.
3. Names a limitation.
4. Connects the chart back to fairness and the statement of inquiry.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete the sentence frames. About 8 minutes.

1 What could make spending rise without the service getting better?

Prices could go up, so the district pays more for the same repairs. More money would not mean better service.

2 Dec wants to ask the board himself. Why might it matter who brings the question?

Dec uses the curtain at every show, so he can speak to what he has seen. The board hears from a student who is affected.

3 What else would you want to know before saying one district gets less than another?

Westbrook's budget year and stage, and whether both figures count the same costs.

My take

My claim: ___.

Dec should ask which line covers stage equipment and bring the $6,800 quote.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The budget excerpt, because it shows $310,000 for repairs at all schools.

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

The district must have money for a curtain, because the total is $48 million.

Pacing

Full chapter: 8 min.

Short on time: 8 min.

Say this

"Answer with a label or a number from the evidence." — Ask for one answer per question.

Stretch

- With an adult, find your district's budget, label its year and stage and find one line for a space you use.
- Going further: Write two headlines about the same budget: one with the $48 million total and one with $15,000 per student. Compare the story each headline tells. Then name one group that uses the theater but is missing from this discussion.
- Going further: Some people say every school should get the same amount. What problem does that plan assume it is solving? Name one need it might miss.
- Going further: Make a chart of the proposed budget that shows the total, the per-student amount and the building-repairs line. Label the year, the stage and the units. Ask a reader to explain what the chart cannot show.
- Going further: With a teacher or advisor, find your district's budget on its website. Label its year and stage. Find one line for something you use, such as facilities, arts or technology. Ask your student council how students can send a budget question. Get permission before you photograph spaces or people at school.
- Find your own district's adopted budget and locate the facilities or capital line
- Compare two years of the same line and explain what might explain a change

The board showed that the curtain is already funded.

Case 19: What should Gia say in her two-minute comment?

Overview

Students read a short story in which Gia wants to speak against a proposal to close the park's lighted courts at 8 p.m. They read the parks committee agenda, the comment instructions and a nearby resident's comment. They find the item, the deciding body, the deadline and the time limit. They then cut Gia's three-page draft into a timed comment that makes one specific request.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- use a statement of inquiry to guide research
- change their register for a formal audience
- write a reflection that connects to a global context

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- explain how the parks committee accepts spoken and written comments
- compare public comment with one other participation route
- produce a formal spoken comment for a decision-making audience
- reflect on how young people can join in local decisions

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student

Materials, continued

- A statement of inquiry frame and a research note-catcher
- A timer for spoken rehearsal

Case 19: What should Gia say in her two-minute comment?

Gia has two minutes to speak to the parks committee about the court lights, but her draft is three pages long.

On your own Read What happened and underline the sentence that says what item 4 proposes. About 4 minutes.

Gia and Mateo sit on a front stoop, each holding pages of notes.

Your role: You're the one holding the timer and listening for the request. New skill: Fit a request to the body's remit and time limit.

What happened

It is Tuesday, 5:40 p.m. The parks committee meets at 6. Item 4 on its agenda is a proposal to turn off the park's court lights at 8 p.m. The reason given is complaints about evening noise from nearby residents.

Gia, 21, wants to speak against item 4. It is her first time speaking at a public meeting. Each speaker gets two minutes. On Monday night, Gia wrote a three-page draft. When she reads page one out loud, it takes two minutes and forty seconds.

Mateo, 22, is timing her from a bench. He follows every word, but he cannot tell what she wants the committee to do. The draft also mentions a friend's private situation, and page two is about the bus. Everything Gia says will become part of the public record, along with her name.

Your question: What should Gia keep in her two-minute comment, and what should she cut?

- Remit: A remit is the set of matters that a committee or other body is responsible for and can act on.
- Public record: A public record is information a government keeps that anyone can ask to see, such as meeting comments.
- Proposal: A proposal is a change that someone suggests and that has not been approved yet.
- Decision-maker: A decision-maker is the person or group with the power to make a particular choice.

The story: A practice run on a bench

At 5:40 p.m. on a Tuesday, twenty minutes before the parks committee meets, Gia is reading her public comment out loud to Mateo. Item 4 on the agenda proposes turning off the park's court lights and closing the lighted courts at 8 p.m., because nearby residents have complained about evening noise. Gia, who grew up in Fort Greene, wants to speak against it. It is her first time at a public meeting.

The rules are simple. Sign up by 5 p.m., speak for two minutes, and know that comments and speakers' names become part of the public record. Written comments may be sent in before the meeting too. Gia's problem is length. On Monday night, she wrote three pages. Page one alone takes two minutes and forty seconds.

Mateo is timing Gia from a bench, and he listens the way a committee member might. He follows all of it. He still could not tell anyone what she wants the committee to do. Instead of rewriting her draft, he asks one question. If they only remember one sentence, what is it? Whatever she answers, he says, that sentence goes first.

Your role is to hold the timer and listen for the request.

Stop and think. Mateo asks what one sentence the committee should remember. Why is that more helpful than rewriting Gia's draft?

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (612 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After "The story: A practice run on a bench": Mateo asks what one sentence the committee should remember. Why is that more helpful than rewriting Gia's draft?
2. After "Cutting to the remit": How could Gia's comment respond to the resident's concern about noise?
3. After "How public comment works in real places": Court users who work late may miss a 6 p.m. meeting. How could their views reach the committee?

Cutting to the remit

An agenda item is one topic listed on a meeting's official schedule of business. Item 4 is narrow: court lights and a closing time. Gia's draft asks the committee not to close the park, which nobody has proposed. A remit is the set of matters that a committee or other body is responsible for and can act on. Page two, about the bus, is a real problem outside the parks committee's remit. Case 10 taught you to send a problem to the office responsible, so the bus goes to a different office on a different day.

The new skill is fitting a request to the body's remit and time limit. It builds on Case 4. There, the crew prepared a comment for a nonprofit board, and you learned that a proposal is a change that someone suggests and that has not been approved yet. You also learned that a decision-maker is the person or group with the power to make a particular choice. The agenda shows the chain. The committee makes a recommendation, and the full council decides.

Gia's answer to Mateo's question becomes the spine of the comment. Name item 4. Share what she counted: twenty or thirty people on the courts between 8 and 9. Explain why it matters: a lot of them work late. End with one request the committee can act on: keep the lights on until 9 on weekdays this summer.

The comment should also acknowledge the other side. A nearby resident wrote that the courts are good for the neighborhood but that late noise carries into their apartment, and they have kids with school in the morning. A request for 9 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. gives the committee a middle option.

Finally, Gia cuts her friend's private situation. A public record is information a government keeps that anyone can ask to see, such as meeting comments. The story is her friend's, not hers.

Stop and think. How could Gia's comment respond to the resident's concern about noise?

How public comment works in real places

Every body sets its own rules. Seattle City Council, for example, takes spoken comments in person or by phone and written comments by email, and each speaker gets up to two minutes (Seattle City Council, no date listed). A Philadelphia guide walks residents through signing up, finding the agenda item and fitting a point into the time limit (The Philadelphia Citizen, March 10, 2025). Students have used this process too. In Newark, a student coalition brought its own research and specific requests to the school board (Chalkbeat Newark, November 26, 2025).

Stop and think. Court users who work late may miss a 6 p.m. meeting. How could their views reach the committee?

Key idea: remit

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

A remit is the set of matters that a committee or other body is responsible for and can act on. The parks committee can make a recommendation about court hours. It cannot change bus routes. That is why Gia's comment should ask for something the parks committee can do.

An agenda item is one topic listed on a meeting's official schedule of business. Each committee, council or board sets its own rules for who can speak, when and for how long. Seattle City Council is one real example. Its public comment page describes speaking in person or by phone and signing up before the meeting. Each speaker gets up to two minutes, and written comments can be sent by email.

A short comment can do four jobs. It names the agenda item, shares something the speaker observed, says why it matters and ends with a clear request. Before adding personal details, check whether comments become public. A public record is information a government keeps that anyone can ask to see, such as meeting comments. At Gia's meeting, comments and speakers' names become part of the public record.

Professional standards

"Inform the public and encourage active engagement in governance. Be open, transparent and responsive, and respect and assist all persons in their dealings with public organizations."

In plain words: ASPA's code asks people in public service to make it easy for every affected person to take part in decisions.

Question: The instructions allow written comments in advance. How does that help court users who cannot come at 6 p.m.?

Your answer

A written comment lets ___.

A written comment lets court users who work during the 6 p.m. meeting reach the committee before it makes its recommendation.

"The ASPA code asks public servants to help people join in. How do written comments help?" — Wait for court users who work late.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the ASPA code as a law. Listen for: "The committee is breaking the law if it ignores her." Then: Say: "ASPA's code is a standard for public servants who belong to ASPA. It is not a law."

Say this

"Follow Gia's comment from the meeting to the final decision. Who hears it, and who decides?" — Model the first box together: the parks committee.

Watch for

Misconception: Students leave out the full council. Listen for: "If the committee says no, it's over." Then: Point to the action line in Evidence A. The full council decides.

Support

- Let students write the name of each body before writing sentences.

Heat check

Medium. The missing-perspective question can turn to students' own work hours or their neighbors.

Cool-down: Keep answers about the court users and residents in the case. No one shares a personal schedule.

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose the best opening sentence, explain why and fix the two marked phrases. About 6 minutes.

Gia has two minutes on item 4. Which opening sentence gives the committee the most to work with?

- ☐ A "The park is really important to everyone, and closing it is a terrible idea."
- ☑ B "Good evening. I'm Gia, and I'm commenting on item 4, the proposal to turn off the court lights at 8 p.m."
- ☐ C "You guys never listen to young people, so I hope tonight is different."

Why I chose it

B. It names the item and the exact proposal. A gets the proposal wrong, and C uses up time without asking for anything.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Hi, my name is Gia and I have lived in this neighborhood my whole life. The park is really important to everyone and closing it is a terrible idea. I go there all the time with my friends and it's one of the only free things to do around here. My friend works late and this is the only time she can play and (1) she's been going through a lot at home. You guys never listen to young people. (2) Please don't close the park.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

Cut it. Many court users work until evening, so after 8 is their time to play.

Rewrite phrase 2

Please keep the lights on until 9 p.m. on weekdays through the summer.

Pacing

Full chapter: 6 min.

Short on time: skip this page.

Say this

"Gia has two minutes. Which opening gives the committee the most to work with?" — Vote before any discussion.

Watch for

Misconception: Students choose C because it feels honest. Listen for: "But it's true, they never listen." Then: Ask what the committee could do with that sentence.

Heat check

■■□ Medium. Students may voice frustration about adults ignoring young people.

Cool-down: Acknowledge the feeling. Then ask which sentence gives the committee a request.

Answer key

A revised version: Good evening. I'm Gia Brooks-Romano, and I live two blocks from the park. I'm commenting on item 4, the proposal to turn off the court lights at 8 p.m. I play there after café shifts, and on weekday evenings I've counted twenty to thirty people using the courts between 8 and 9. Many of us work until evening. I understand the concern about noise from nearby residents. I'm asking the committee to keep the lights on until 9 p.m. on weekdays through the summer and to review noise complaints before making a permanent change. Thank you.

Other notes on the draft:

- "I have lived in this neighborhood my whole life" Good: it establishes a stake. Keep it short.

Your task

On your own Read the steps and fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 20 minutes.

Investigate "How can young people influence local decisions?" and prepare a comment plus a reflection.

Use: Case sources; global context: Fairness and development.

You'll make: Comment plus 200-word reflection

Time: 90 minutes

1. Read the statement of inquiry. Underline the key concept and the global context.
2. Research how the parks committee accepts comments, using Evidence A and B.
3. Compare public comment with one other route, such as a youth council.
4. Write a formal comment on item 4 that Gia could read aloud in two minutes.
5. Rehearse the comment aloud with a timer.
6. Write a reflection of about 200 words on your own voice in local decisions.

Prefer typing? Scan to open the online workspace.

Statement of inquiry

Communities make fairer decisions when people shape clear, purposeful messages for the bodies that hold power.

Answer key

A strong response:

- Clear statement of inquiry
- Accurate process information
- Thoughtful comparison
- Reflection on own voice

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes, using your planner from the page before. About 25 minutes.

Your formal comment on item 4

Good evening, members of the committee. My name is Gia. I am commenting on item 4, the proposal to turn off the court lights at 8:00 p.m. I play on these courts after my café shifts. On weekday evenings, I have counted twenty to thirty people using the courts between 8 and 9. Many of us work until evening. I understand the concern about noise from nearby residents. I respectfully ask the committee to recommend keeping the lights on until 9 p.m. on weekdays through the summer. Thank you for your time.

Reflection, about 200 words

Before this case, I thought influencing a local decision meant being loud. Gia's first draft was three pages long, and it asked the committee not to close a park that no one planned to close. Her comment became stronger when it matched the committee's power. The parks committee can recommend court hours, so a request for lights until 9 is one it can act on. That connects to our statement of inquiry: a clear, purposeful message reaches the body that holds power. The global context, fairness and development, raises a harder question. The meeting is at 6 p.m., and people who work late may not be able to come. Written comments help, but only if people know about the item in time. My own voice counts most when I know which body decides, what it can do and how to reach it.

What to notice in the sample:

1. Uses a formal register for a committee audience (Criterion D).
2. Links the case to the statement of inquiry.
3. Connects to the global context, fairness and development.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete the sentence frames. About 10 minutes.

1 The parks committee cannot fix the bus problem. Who should get that question instead?

The body whose job includes bus routes. Gia would need its agenda and comment rules, the same steps as for item 4.

2 How could Gia's comment respond to the resident's concern about noise?

Gia could say she understands the noise concern and ask for lights until 9 on weekdays, not later.

3 Court users who work late may miss a 6 p.m. meeting. How could their views reach the committee?

Through written comments before the meeting, which the rules allow. Gia could also tell other court users about item 4.

My take

My claim: ___.

Gia should name item 4, share her count of people on the courts and ask for lights until 9 on weekdays.

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The agenda, because it shows item 4 is about the lights and that the committee only recommends.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 7 min. Use questions 1 and 4 only.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from a document, not a guess about the committee." — Ask for one answer per question.

Stretch

- Compare Evidence B with Seattle City Council's public comment page. Which rules match, and which would you check locally?
- Going further: Write Gia's request as one sentence a listener could repeat. Then reread your comment. Does it speak for anyone who has not asked you to?
- Going further: Compare the comment rules in Evidence B with Seattle City Council's public comment page. Which rules match? Which would you need to check for your own city or school board?
- Going further: Record your comment as audio, then turn it into a written comment. Keep the same point in both. Ask a listener which version made the request clearer.
- Going further: With a trusted adult, find the website for your city council, school board or parks board. Open the next meeting agenda and find one item that affects you. Read the comment rules: the sign-up, the time limit and the written option. Leave addresses, phone numbers and other people's private stories out of anything you submit.
- Compare comment rules for two different local bodies
- Track a real agenda item from discussion to vote

My take, continued

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

The noise is a real problem for families nearby, so the lights should go off at 8.

I would change my mind if ___.

The resident showed that the noise starts well before 9 p.m.

Overview

Students read a short story in which a realistic image captioned “Courtyard flooded today, stay away” spreads through a campus group chat. They compare the image, Sami’s zoom-in, a secondhand reply, a detector score and the campus alerts page with NIST’s overview of detection. They then write the verification note Jordy posts instead of the image.

Before this case

Students should already be able to:

- use a statement of inquiry to guide research
- explain a process in plain words for younger readers
- write a reflection that connects to a global context

Objectives

Students will be able to:

- investigate how new image-making tools change what counts as visual evidence
- write accurate verification steps for younger students

Objectives, continued

- include a practice example that is clearly labeled as generated
- reflect on the global context, scientific and technical innovation

Materials

- This chapter, one copy per student
- Adobe’s labeled Firefly examples, previewed by you
- A statement of inquiry frame, a guide template and a source checklist

Case 20: Can the crew post this image as true?

A realistic image says the campus courtyard flooded today, and Jordy must decide what the six o'clock recap can say about it.

On your own Read What happened and underline the caption's claim. About 4 minutes.

Lupa holds a cropped photo of a courtyard next to the full photo pinned on a board. The full photo also shows a blue doorway.

Your role: You're the one who writes the verification note Jordy posts at six. New skill: Confirm an image with independent sources.

What happened

It is Wednesday, 3:10 p.m. For twenty minutes, an image has been going around the group chat. It looks like a photo of the campus courtyard, with water over the paving and benches. The caption says, "Courtyard flooded today, stay away." It showed up at 2:48 p.m. with no link, no date and no name.

Jordy is putting together the crew's recap, which goes out at six. Sami has zoomed in on a hand in the picture, and the fingers seem to merge at the knuckles. Someone ran the image through a free online detector. It reported "12% likely AI-generated."

A reply in the chat says the writer's roommate's friend saw water near the library. Jordy checks the campus facilities alerts page. It shows no active alerts, but its last update was Monday morning.

Your question: Did the courtyard flood today, and what should the recap say about the image?

Pacing

Full chapter: 4 min.

Short on time: 3 min. Read the summary line and the first paragraph aloud.

The story: An image with no when or where

At 2:48 p.m. on a Wednesday, an image lands in the group chat with no link, no date and no name attached. It looks like a photo of the campus courtyard, with water covering the paving and the benches. The caption is urgent: “Courtyard flooded today, stay away.” By 3:10, it has been circulating for twenty minutes.

Jordy has a deadline. The crew’s recap goes out at six, and the first question in the chat is whether the courtyard picture goes in. The evidence piles up quickly, and none of it settles anything. Sami, who studies design and photographs things most people walk past, zooms in on a hand in the foreground. The fingers seem to merge at the knuckles. Someone runs the image through a free detector and gets “12% likely AI-generated.” A reply says the writer’s roommate’s friend saw water near the library. Jordy checks the campus facilities alerts page. It lists no active alerts, but it has not been updated since Monday at 9:15 a.m.

Sami redirects the conversation. Everyone is zooming in on the hand, and she did too. But she still does not know who posted the image. When she takes a photo, it has a when and a where. This one has neither.

Your role is to write the verification note Jordy posts at six. It is the final skill in the casebook, and it combines many of the others.

Pacing

Reading: about 5 min (646 words). Short on time: read it aloud together, pausing at each Stop and think.

Stop and think

1. After “The story: An image with no when or where”: Sami shifts the question from how the image looks to where it came from. Why is that the stronger question?
2. After “From clues to a verification note”: The alerts page shows nothing new since Monday. Does that prove the courtyard did not flood?
3. After “How real newsrooms handle it”: Do you agree with Jordy’s choice to leave the image out of the recap? Why or why not?

Stop and think. Sami shifts the question from how the image looks to where it came from. Why is that the stronger question?

From clues to a verification note

Start where Case 1 started, with the original source. Provenance is information about where an image or a document came from and how it has been handled. This image arrived without any, so its provenance is unknown.

The caption makes a claim, the Case 1 term for a statement that something is true that you can check with evidence. Look at each clue honestly. The hand is a reason to look closer, not proof of anything. A natural-looking hand would not prove an image is real, either. The detector score is a number without context. Sami asks, twelve percent of what? These tools can be wrong in both directions, and none of them can say whether the courtyard flooded today. The secondhand report fails as a source twice. It is a roommate's friend, and it is about the library, not the courtyard. Jordy would welcome it if that person had a photo with a time on it.

Corroboration is support for a claim from an independent source. The best candidates are an official alert or a dated photo from someone on site. Case 9 taught you to check the official source for your area, and the alerts page is that source. Its silence is weak evidence, because it has not been updated since Monday.

Jordy considers posting the image with a question mark and rejects it, because a question mark still spreads the picture. Instead, the recap will carry a verification note, a short record of what you checked, what you found and what is still unknown. It shares its logic with Case 1's holding statement, which says what is known, what is still being checked and when people will hear more. Case 3 adds the last piece. If new evidence changes the answer, a correction goes where people saw the original note.

Stop and think. The alerts page shows nothing new since Monday. Does that prove the courtyard did not flood?

How real newsrooms handle it

After Hurricane Helene in October 2024, an image of a crying girl clutching a puppy in a rescue boat spread widely. Fact-checkers found no original photographer or news source. Digital-forensics researcher Hany Farid pointed to details that did not hold together, like a boat floor with impossible perspective (UC Berkeley School of Information, October 4, 2024). In 2023, fake images of an explosion near the Pentagon spread quickly and briefly moved markets before officials confirmed nothing had happened (NPR, May 22, 2023).

Looking closely is not enough. Research found that people could not reliably tell AI-generated faces from real ones (Nightingale and Farid, PNAS, February 14, 2022).

Look at the evidence

On your own Read each document and write what it shows and what it leaves out. About 7 minutes.

Evidence A | Group-chat post

The courtyard image and its caption

Image, described: a photo-like view of the campus courtyard with water over the paving and benches. A person in the foreground holds up a phone. Caption: “Courtyard flooded today, stay away.” Shared Wednesday at 2:48 p.m. with no link, no date on the image and no original poster named.

Look closely: Underline what the caption claims. Circle what the post is missing.

What it shows	What it leaves out
Someone claims the courtyard flooded today. The image looks like it shows that.	Who first posted the image, and when and where it was taken.

Evidence B | Screenshot

Sami’s zoom-in on the hand

Zoomed screenshot of the foreground hand: the fingers seem to merge at the knuckles. Sami posted it in the crew chat on Wednesday at 3:02 p.m.

Look closely: What does the odd hand tell you? What can it not tell you?

What it shows	What it leaves out
One detail looks wrong: the fingers seem to merge. That is a reason to look closer.	Whether the image was generated, edited or is a real photo from another day.

Pacing

Full chapter: 7 min.

Short on time: 6 min. Students fill in only the What it shows boxes.

Say this

“For each document, ask two questions: what can it show, and what can it not show?” — Model it on the odd hand: a reason to look closer, not proof.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the detector score as a verdict. Listen for: “Twelve percent means it’s real.” Then: Ask what the tool measured and how often it is wrong. The score is silent about the flood.

Support

- Describe the image and the zoomed hand aloud.
- Give each document on its own half-page with the key line enlarged.
- Cognates: image (imagen), evidence (evidencia), verification (verificación), corroboration (corroboración), original (original), confirm (confirmar), alert (alerta), independent (independiente).

Stretch

- Ask which evidence bears on how the image was made and which bears on whether the courtyard flooded.

Look at the evidence, continued

Evidence C | Detector result

A score from a free online detector

"12% likely AI-generated."

Look closely: What did the tool measure? Does it say anything about the flood?

What it shows

One free tool gave the image a low score, 12%, for being generated.

What it leaves out

How often this tool is wrong, and whether the courtyard flooded today.

Evidence D | Web page

The campus facilities alerts page, checked at 3:10 p.m.

"No active alerts. Last update: Monday, 9:15 a.m. Scheduled elevator maintenance in Science Hall, completed."

Look closely: When was this page last updated? Compare that with the caption's claim.

What it shows

At 3:10 p.m. on Wednesday, the page listed no alert about the courtyard.

What it leaves out

How quickly the page would report a flood on the same day.

What is still missing from the evidence?

Who first posted the image and when, and whether it shows this courtyard today. Also, whether anyone has a dated photo of water there.

Key idea: provenance

On your own Read the key idea and the code of ethics, then answer the question in the box. About 10 minutes.

Provenance is information about where an image or a document came from and how it has been handled. Check it first when an image claims to show a news event. An image can look polished and still be generated, edited, old or shared with the wrong caption. The courtyard image arrived with no link, no date and no named poster, so its provenance is unknown.

A detail or a tool can give a clue, but it cannot settle the question. An odd-looking hand is a reason to look closer. A natural-looking hand does not prove that an image is real, either. The National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) describes several ways to track, label, watermark and detect synthetic content, such as AI-generated images. NIST explains that each approach has technical limits.

For a claim about a real event, look for the earliest post, its date and place, and corroboration. Corroboration is support for a claim from an independent source. Here, that could be a campus alert or someone's dated photo of the courtyard. If you cannot confirm the claim, write a verification note. A verification note is a short record of what you checked, what you found and what is still unknown.

Real source | Radio Television Digital News Association (RTDNA)

RTDNA Code of Ethics: Truth and accuracy above all

"Journalism verifies, provides relevant context, tells the rest of the story and acknowledges the absence of important additional information."

In plain words: The RTDNA code asks news staff to say what they checked and to admit what they still do not know.

Question: The facilities page shows no active alerts but was last updated Monday. What should Jordy's note say is still unknown?

Your answer

The note should say ___ is still unknown.

The note should say whether the courtyard flooded today is still unknown. The alerts page has not been updated since Monday.

Watch for

Misconception: Students treat the RTDNA code as a law. Listen for: "The crew could get in legal trouble." Then: Say: "The RTDNA code is guidance for news staff. It is not a law."

Practice: choose a response

On your own Choose what Jordy should do, explain why and fix the two marked phrases. About 6 minutes.

The recap goes out at six. What should Jordy do about the courtyard image?

- ☐ A Post the image with a question: "Is the courtyard flooded?"
- ☐ B Say the image is fake, because the hand looks wrong.
- ☑ C Leave the image out, report what the crew checked and say the flood is not confirmed.

Why I chose it

C. A still spreads the picture, and B treats a clue as proof. C reports only what the evidence supports.

Improve a draft

A student's first draft

Heads up everyone!! ❶ The courtyard flooded today so don't go over there. Some people are saying the picture is AI because the hand looks weird but I ran it through a detector and it said 12% AI so it's basically real. My roommate also said her friend saw water near the library earlier, so that pretty much confirms it. Stay safe and ❷ tell your friends, we don't want anyone getting hurt or ruining their shoes lol. We'll post more if we hear anything else about it.

Rewrite each marked phrase so it says only what the evidence supports.

Rewrite phrase 1

We can't confirm the courtyard flooded today. No independent record shows it yet.

Rewrite phrase 2

Check the official alerts page before you share or change plans.

Answer key

A revised version: About the courtyard flood image going around: we can't confirm it yet. We couldn't find who posted it first, and the campus alerts page shows no active alerts, though its last update was Monday. A detector gave a low score, but detectors make mistakes and can't tell us whether the event happened. So we're not sharing the image as news. If you're on campus now, check the official alert page before changing plans. We'll update here by 6 p.m. Thanks for checking before sharing. If you have a dated photo or an original post, send it to Jordy.

Your task

On your own Read the steps and fill in the planner boxes before you start your draft. About 20 minutes.

Investigate “Can we still believe our eyes?” and make a short guide for younger students.

Use: Case materials and Adobe’s labeled examples; global context: Scientific and technical innovation.

You’ll make: Guide plus 150-word reflection

Time: 90 minutes

1. Read the statement of inquiry. Underline the key concept and the global context.
2. List the verification steps the crew used on the courtyard image.
3. Plan a guide for younger students with four steps and one practice example.
4. Label the practice example clearly as generated.
5. Write the guide on the Your draft page.
6. Write a reflection of about 150 words that connects to the global context.

Answer key

A strong response:

- Statement of inquiry links concepts
- Accurate verification steps
- Practice example is labeled
- Reflection connects to the global context

Your draft

On your own Write your draft in the boxes, using your planner from the page before. About 25 minutes.

Your guide for younger students

Can you believe your eyes? Four steps before you share a picture. Step 1: Find where it came from. Who posted it first, and when? Step 2: Check the date and place. A real photo can be from another day. Step 3: Look for another source, like a school alert or a dated photo from someone who was there. Step 4: If you can't confirm it, say so. "We can't confirm this yet" is an honest answer. Practice picture: a flooded playground. This picture was generated for practice. It shows no real place.

Reflection, about 150 words

Our statement of inquiry says that as image-making technology changes, communities need new habits for evidence. The courtyard case showed me why. The image looked like a photo, and a detector gave it only 12%. Neither told Jordy whether the courtyard flooded. The global context, scientific and technical innovation, cuts both ways. New tools can make realistic images, and other tools try to detect them. NIST says each approach has limits. So the habits matter more than any one tool. Writing the guide made me explain this in plain words. I learned that saying we are not sure yet can be the most accurate answer. I also learned to label my own practice picture, so nobody mistakes it for

Are your verification steps accurate?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Is your practice example clearly labeled?	☑ Yes	☐ No
Does your reflection connect to the global context?	☑ Yes	☐ No

How your work is scored

Mark one box in each row.

Skill	Beginning	Developing	Proficient	Advanced
Evidence	☐ Treats the image as proof.	☐ Cites a detector or a detail as a verdict.	☐ Checks the earliest source and an independent record.	☐ Checks several sources and names what each can't show.
Reasoning	☐ Declares real or fake with no basis.	☐ Hedges without explaining why.	☐ Matches confidence to evidence.	☐ Separates authenticity of the file from truth of the event.
Audience & purpose	☐ Urges spreading.	☐ Warns without guidance.	☐ Gives followers a safe next step.	☐ Gives a next step, a follow-up time and a way to contribute evidence.

One change I made after testing the guide

I changed ___ because ___.

I changed my first step from spotting fakes to finding where a picture came from, because a picture can look wrong and still be real.

Questions to discuss

On your own Write a short answer to each question, then complete the sentence frames. About 10 minutes.

1 What would you need beyond the image to support the caption's claim?

The earliest post with a date, and corroboration from an independent source, like a campus alert.

2 Do you agree with Jordy's choice to leave the image out of the recap, and why?

Yes. A question mark still spreads the picture, and many people see the image and skip the words.

3 Who could be harmed if the crew called a real photo fake?

The person who took it, and anyone who needed the warning. If the courtyard really flooded, people could walk into water.

4 The alerts page shows nothing new since Monday. Does that prove the courtyard did not flood?

No. The page was last updated Monday, so it might not show a flood from Wednesday.

My take

My claim: ___.

The recap should post a verification note and leave the image out.

Pacing

Full chapter: 10 min.

Short on time: 7 min. Use questions 1 and 4 only.

Say this

"Answer with a detail from a document, not a feeling about the image." — Ask for one answer per question.

Stretch

- Compare the crew's note with the RumorGuard check on the Helene image. What does each say is known and unknown?
- Going further: List every place the crew could look for the first post of the courtyard image. For each one, write what it could prove and what it could not.
- Going further: Write two captions that say the flood is not confirmed. Which one makes the image feel more trustworthy than it is? Name who could be hurt if the crew gets this wrong.
- Going further: Write two short notices that tell followers the flood is not confirmed. Ask two readers what each notice lets them conclude. Rewrite any line that made them more certain than the evidence allows.
- Going further: Before you repost an image as news, find where it first appeared. Check an official or independent source for the event. If you cannot confirm it, say so or do not share it. If you help run a club account, suggest a "check before posting" rule.
- Compare how two news organizations describe their image-verification process
- Research what content credentials record and what they cannot show

My take, continued

The best evidence is ___, because ___.

The alerts page, because it is an official source and it shows no courtyard alert.

Someone who disagrees might say ___.

People need a fast warning in case the flood is real.

I would change my mind if ___.

Someone shared a dated photo of water in the courtyard today.

Case 20: Can the crew post this image as true?

In this case, a realistic image in a group chat claims that a campus courtyard flooded today. Your student checked where the image came from and wrote a short note that says what is known and what is not.

Questions to talk about

1. What would you check before you share a picture of breaking news?
2. Where does your town or school post official alerts?
3. Why can saying you are not sure yet be better than guessing?

Nobody needs to share personal stories or private information to talk about this case.

Say this

"After each case, mark your level for Evidence, Reasoning, Audience and purpose, and Revision." — Use the rubric on the case's Check your work page.

"Pick one row you want to raise next time." — Students keep this page private.

Watch for

Misconception: My progress is a grade. Listen for: "Is this going in the grade book?" Then: Explain that it is a self-check; grades come from your scoring with the rubric.

Support

- Model one row with Case 1 before students fill in their own.

Track the work across the year

Each case has the same four rubric rows, so growth is easy to see. Mark the level each student or group reached, case by case.

Case	Evidence	Reasoning	Audience	Revision	Took a civic step
1 Is the screening canceled?
2 Does the worksheet show what Dec knows?
3 What should a group do after a public mistake?
4 Who gets a say when a shared room changes?
5 Why is my deposit smaller than what I earned?
6 What can your family see in your college records?
7 Did one complaint get the novel banned?
8 Is it a recommendation or an ad?
9 What is on your ballot, and where do you check?
10 Whose job is it to fix the blocked route?
11 Why are Jordy and Gia paid different rates?
12 When can a school limit what students say?
13 Can the crew cut waste before it reaches the bin?
14 Does giving credit let the crew use the song?
15 Is Rafa's unpaid internship really a job?

16 Who wrote the new building rule?
17 How should the crew give out ten free seats?
18 Why is the theater curtain still falling apart?
19 What should Gia say in her two-minute comment?
20 Can the crew post this image as true?

About course names and standards

AP, Pre-AP and IB activities are practice designed by No, Pero Why?. They are not official College Board or IB materials. Honors expectations are set by your school.
